What is a Lucky Bag? Well, this year it is an incredible book which attempts to recapture a year that was so significant in the development of Naval and Marine Corps Officers. However, the Lucky memories from the last year. The 2008 Lucky Bag staff has used its incredible literary and photography skills to present this book that captures some priceless moments from our Midshipman lives. If, in years to come, fond memories of undergraduate life may be rekindled through the medium of the following pages the 2008 Lucky Bag, the staff will feel its mission has indeed been accomplished.

First Class Summer

Preparing for the Fleet

by: Marta Drew

With the end in sight, the summer leading up to first class year gives midshipmen one last chance to experience the fleet before commissioning. The last summer training opportunity offered more variety, as well as more responsibility.

Fleet cruises offer midshipmen more experience in their hopeful service selection, giving a chance to shadow junior officers and see what they will be doing in a year. Those hoping to select Marine Corps faced a training block in Quantico filled with bugs and field exercises. Hopeful aviation selectees were treated to a much more relaxed atmosphere, experiencing the life of an aviator.

As the senior members of the brigade, rising firsties were given a chance to practice leadership. Plebe summer was experienced a second time, with even less sleep and more running around. Whether or not surface warfare is a service selection, many experienced YP's for a second or even a third time, this time teaching underclass how to navigate and drive up and down the East coast.

Fleet cruises, YP's and plebe summer were only a few of the many training options. Some traveled to foreign countries through the Language Study Abroad Program to hone language skills, others went to foreign lands with programs such as Bridges to Community to help communities build houses. Internships, whether at Bethesda or the Pentagon gave soon to be graduates the chance to get real life experience in their field of study.

Whatever training options rising firsties chose (or had chosen for them,) valuable leadership lessons were learned, new places visited and new friends made.

After donning new two-stripe shoulder boards, the Class of 2009 departed Annapolis for their 2/C summer training. This training period allowed the class to see a wide variety of warfare communities offered by the Navy and Marine Corps, mainly through PROTRAMID.

With weeks focusing on aviation, submarines, and the Marine Corps, PROTRAMID participants traveled from Kings Bay, GA, to Quantico and Norfolk, VA, experiencing all aspects of the fleet.

A few midshipmen had the opportunity for more specialized cruises, departing on either SUBTRAMID or MCTRAMID. SUBTRAMID afforded those interested in the submarine community an in-depth look at life aboard a submarine, not to mention two weeks in Hawaii. Likewise, MCTRAMID went to either MCAS Yuma in Arizona, or …., to train with Marines.

Apart from their fleet cruises, 2/C acted as XO's aboard the 44's for CSNTS, sailing to Newport, RI, or as crew aboard Yard Patrol craft, traveling north and south out of the bay. The YP's hit ports from Fort Lauderdale, Florida to Nova Scotia.

Finally, more adventurous second class participated in foreign language immersion programs across the globe, from China to Chile to Spain. These trips allowed those studying foreign languages at the Academy to expand their knowledge of both language and culture. Some chose to attend the National Outdoor Leadership School (NOLS), where they trekked across mountains in Wyoming or glaciers in Alaska. ⚓

Third Class Summer

Ask a member of the class of 2010 where he went on youngster cruise and a typical response would be "Australia to Japan, it was awesome!" Of course, plenty of us stayed stateside and enjoyed ports of call up and down the Atlantic and Pacific coasts, but it seemed like our class was especially blessed with international cruises.

Then there was that second block of required summer training as well. Plenty of youngsters spent time living in good ol' Bancroft, retaking pesky Chem II or getting Nav II out of the way (the advantage of taking it over the summer? No YP labs...). Others embarked on YPs or CSNTS voyages up and down the East Coast, finally putting those Seamanship skills to good use. A formidable section of the class used June as a chance to spread their fledgling leadership wings as squad leaders for Summer Seminar.

Regardless of location or activity, the class of '10 endured long hours, red-flag conditions, and new experiences that equaled a summer of fun and camaraderie.

Marley wrote the first part of this article but I will close with a few notes. It was quite a pleaseue to work with your class in Summer Seminar this past summer.

You all showed me many of the good qualities that I look for in leaders and makes me feel confident that there is a good group of Midshipmen to hold down the fort as my class moves out of Bancroft Hall. Take a second to look over the preceeding two spreads and those spreads like the graduation spread and take your upper-class's experiences as motivation to do well and stay out of the Commandant's office, trust me it's no fun. Stay strong Eleven!

Induction Day Class of 2011

Firsts and Lasts

by Anthony Hizon

As members of the Class of 2011 wait outside the doors of Alumni Hall, many of them are too overcome with apprehension to realize the significance of they day the are about to endure. June 27, 2007, Induction Day, will forever be the first day of their prospective Navy careers.

"The first and last words out of your mouth will be sir or ma'am, you understand?"

The feelings of apprehension quickly disappear as the members of 2011 are herded through the passages of Alumni. Form after form of paperwork, phase after phase of medical exams, and pound after backbreaking pound of newly issued gear all add to the stress of the "longest day of their lives."

Eventually, the chaos subsides and the Plebes are divided into their individual companies. Of course, while they wait to join their new companymates, they spend their time studying fresh copies of Reef Points with their forearms parallel to the deck.

However, the stress resumes when the Plebes are told to find their rooms under the vigilant supervision of their Cadre. Struggling under the weight of their gear and distressed by the unfamiliarity of Bancroft Hall, the Plebes move into their rooms, just waiting for the day to be over.

Finally, the culminating event of the day is here. The Plebes find the Induction Ceremony both impressive and intimidating. Surrounded by their Cadre and shrinking under the gaze of the Superintendent and his staff, they take their Oath of Office with the sound of the Blue Angels overhead and cheering loved ones behind.

While the Plebes have one last chance to spend time with friends and family, they find little comfort in the fact that the day is almost over, knowing that Plebe Summer has only just begun. ⚓

Plebe Summer Class of 2011

Trial by fire

by: Anthony Hizon

As the Class of 2011 learns very quickly, after the grueling process of applying and being accepted to the Naval Academy, the biggest challenges are still yet to come, the first of them being Plebe Summer. A seven week evolution designed to transform inexperienced plebes into functioning midshipmen. Plebe Summer is only one of the countless obstacles along the long path to becoming a Navy or Marine Corps officer. As the 4th Class Regiment of approximately 1200 newly-christened plebes endures day after day of fast-paced training, they are challenged both mentally and physically as they prepare to join the Brigade of Midshipmen at Reform.

Led by their cadre of about 500 firsties of the Class of 08, the plebes endure training evolutions such as morning PEP, seamanship training, leadership development, and sports period. The plebes also learn how to handle the stresses of being midshipmen as their cadre lead them through "sense of urgency" training, chow calls, and rapid memorization exercises. Plebe Summer further emphasizes military development through hand-to-hand combat evolutions, swimming instruction, rifle and pistol marksmanship, and military drill instruction. Though most of Plebe Summer appears to be a series of harsh trials, the plebes are still allowed some moments of respite. The positive environment of Blue and Gold at the end of each day, the motivating speeches from civilian and military dignitaries, socializing with shipmates during 11th hour every Sunday, and receiving care packages and letters from loved ones during mail call are some of the things that the plebes look forward to in their effort to survive their training. While the challenges of Plebe Summer are harrowing and difficult, the Class of 11 finds that they can be overcome with teamwork, determination, and perseverance.

Reunited At Last

by Will Cunha

As the sun rose on a warm August morning, the Plebes of the Class of 2011 started their day off like they had every day before it - physical training. Chopping through the halls and down to RIP Miller Field, the commands "1,2,3,4," and "Roundtrips - move!" could be heard from all over the Yard. However normal this day might have seemed, something was different about it. Today, the Plebes kicked off a long-awaited break from the nonstop training they had been engaged in for the last six weeks - Plebe Parent's Weekend. Finally being able to cross the day out on their desk plotter, the Plebes had made it to the end. They had risen to the challenge placed before them and accomplished the mission - Plebe Summer, for all they cared, was over. The cheers and screams of their parents could be heard all over the field as they completed their final set of pushups and flutter kicks. Later that day, formed up in T-Court, the long awaited words "Class of 2011, dismissed," couldn't have come sooner. Instantly, what remained of the 1,202 Midshipmen, scattered all over T-Court and Stribling Walk in search of their friends and families, as parents and friends vigorously hunted down their sons or daughters to see the transformation that had taken place. Once reunited, there was no stopping the emotion. Hugging, kissing, crying, and laughing accompanied the many reunions taking place. "What was it like?" "What was the hardest part?" These are just some of the questions that were being asked by the intrigued and proud loved-ones of the Class of 2011. Before answering any of these questions, however, many thoughts went through the heads of the Plebes. They remembered the many hours they had spent staring at the pages of their Reef Points; the many meals spent spitting out information such as the next three meals or the number of days until the Class of 2008 graduated; they remembered the sweat they and their classmates had poured out while Motivationally Training in the hallways of Bancroft. Most of all, they remembered the bonds they had formed and the lessons they had learned over the past six weeks. Answers to the questions so often asked were not easily answered, for only they would truly understand what they, as a class, had just experienced. How could chopping through the halls, or "hitting a bulkhead" be explained to someone who had not experienced it? In the end, they found that it didn't need to be, for the important thing was that they were with their friends and family and spending time with them, away from the Yard, was really all that mattered. Walking through the streets of downtown Annapolis, younger siblings could be seen gazing at their older brother or sister, with a bigger smile on their face than ever before. Although Plebe Summer was over, Plebe Year was just beginning. The information the Plebes had learned and the discipline they had been given were only the stepping stones needed to reach the light at the end of the tunnel. The Class of 2011 had earned the time they had to spend with their loved ones, and the time away from the Yard was gladly welcomed. Going forward, it would be imperative to keep their perseverance and to keep looking out for their fellow shipmates. No happier of a time, no greater of a challenge before them, the Class of 2011 had made not only their Cadre, but the friends, family, Academy, and country they so willingly vowed to serve proud of what they had just accomplished.

After a long summer of training, reuniting with family is a welcomed change of pace for the Plebes.

The Class of 2009 started the year with a commitment to their country.

TwoforSeven

by Mickey Matus

August 20th, 2007 marked a milestone for the Class of 2009 by not only signifying the half-way point of their four years by the bay, but as the day the class officially became committed to finishing their remaining two years at the Academy and five years of military service. Organized by battalions, the Class of 2009 assembled on the steps of Memorial Hall to reaffirm their commitment to the Honor Concept by signing the Honor Scroll, which is now displayed outside of Mitscher Auditorium. Once inside Memorial Hall, the second class were greeted by their respective company officers and senior enlisted leaders before signing their commitment papers. By signing the "2 for 7," the Class of 2009 became another lasting part of the Academy's heritage of producing future leaders of character in the U.S. Navy and Marine Corps in the midst of a nation at war.

The Class of 2009 Commitment Dinner was held in Alumni Hall to commemorate the class's commitment to service. Thanks to the "Another Link in the Chain" program, nearly 40 members of the Class of 1959 dined alongside the second class. The class officers, Midshipmen Andrew Poulin, Art Griffin, Cody Forsythe, and Micky Matus, presented the Commandant, Captain Margaret D. Klein, USN, with the parchment Honor Scroll containing signatures of all members of the Class of 2009 who made the commitment to service. After a lavish dinner the Honorable Robert C. McFarlane, a member of the Class of 1959 and former National Security Advisor to President Ronald Reagan, offered his remarks. His address focused on the Class of 2009's commission, which entails a strong sense of confidence and character from an officer as well as a remarkable amount of trust from the American people. Mr. McFarlane finished his remarks by stating, "The reason that presidents and all Americans have confidence in placing that trust is because they have known for 162 years, what it has meant to be a graduate of the United States Naval Academy." By committing to a career of military service, the members of the Class of 2009 have not only made a commitment to defend our Constitution, but have also made an unwavering commitment to the measure of our character.

Crab Feast

By: Marta Drew

Despite being forced to eat at least 15 meals a day in Kind (or Dahlgren) Hall each week, midshipmen still looked forward to one meal in the fall. Brown paper covers tables and midshipmen replace working uniforms with blue and gold jogging suits in preparation for the feast. The crab feast allowed midshipmen to enjoy a relaxed atmosphere and a change in cuisine from the normal King Hall food. Some midshipmen proved to be experts at opening the crabs, while others seemed to take more time attempting to open the crabs than actually eating. Real crab enthusiasts stayed well after most had finished eating, scavenging leftover crabs from surrounding tables until they were kicked out so the tables could be cleaned. For those who didn't enjoy crab meat plenty of other food choices were available, so the feast was enjoyed by all. ⚓

Firstie Parent's Weekend

by Brooks Rogers

Every First Class Midshipman creates for themselves a few checkpoints to get them through their last year at USNA. Thanksgiving, Army/Navy, finals, Christmas...Spring Break, finals (again), Intercessionals, and Graduation to name a few. These stepping stones help to get them through the long hours of study and duty. But before any of these comes Firstie Parent's Weekend, a weekend that means as much to the seniors as it does the parents. For every midshipman this weekend represents a time to not only show their parents just what exactly they have been doing for the last three years, but also a time to recharge, a time for their parents to give them perspective and that last bit of energy they inevitably will need to complete their last year by the bay.

Although the most important part of the weekend was just spending time with your parents, the Academy scheduled events to ensure everyone saw many of the things we were able to experience as midshipmen. It all started on Friday when parents were invited to see our rooms in Bancroft Hall; I know my room was never cleaner. Mom's & Dad's also got in inside look at USNA academics when they joined us for class. The work day ended with a parade dedicated to the hard work and support of our parents. The rest of the weekend was all fun for everyone; a football game, tailgates, glee club concerts and a naval ship visit to name a few.

As the weekend progressed our families got a better idea about what it's like to be a midshipman and we got a reminder of why we made the commitment to defend our country. Our families are the most important part of that commitment; they gave us the values that lead to that pledge and they are who we think of when we contemplate who we joined the military to fight for. On behalf of the Class of 2008 I want to thank our parents for their sacrifices, their support, and their attendance at firstie parent's weekend.

Brigade has Spirit

by Brooks Rogers

I'm very impressed with our sports teams but I am certain that the reason Navy/Marine Corps Memorial Stadium is full for every home game and the reason TV networks bid for coverage of our games has more to do with the Brigade's spirit and not their impressive sports skills. When we look back at our days by the bay it is likely that we will not remember the score of every game; however, it will be very easy to remember the celebrations that took place at every pep rally and after every win.

Look around this page and you will see the gamut of ways Midshipmen showed their spirit. From plebe year when we used our limited resources to show our unlimited school spirit to our upper class years when we used our liberty to follow our favorite teams around the country to show support.

This article is short to leave more room for pictures but if you need more examples just go to your nearest Navy sporting event. It doesn't matter what corner of America you are in, you will see at least a few Midshipmen showing the country exactly what school spirit is all about.

Halloween in the Hall

Time to Play Dress Up

by Marta Drew

With Fall comes the changing of uniforms, fall-colors on the trees, and a favorite holiday for the Brigade - Halloween.

Like many other events this year, the holiday came with many changes. The haunted hall traditionally put on by midshipmen for children of faculty and staff was not held, and midshipmen could not dress up for dinner on the evening of the halloween celebration.

Despite the changes, midshipmen still took full advantage of the day, enjoying the opportunity to dress up in something other than working blues and khakis. Plebes handed out candy to upperclass dressed in a wide array of costumes, ranging from cross-dressers to superheros. Enterprising midshipmen donned roller blades in an effort to cover a maximum amount of p-ways before trick-or-treating was secured for study hour. In addittion to dressing up themselves, some midshipmen decorated their rooms for the holiday as well, ranging from a pumpkin or two to full out haunted houses.

While some costumes were outrageous enough to stand by themselves, many mimdshipmen chose to dress up in common themes, ranging from Dr. Suess characters to the traditional Super Troopers outfits. Incorrectly placed or missfitting uniform pieces played a large role in many costumes, with a large proportion of males wearing either too small clothes, or clothing made for the opposite gender.

Whether handing out candy or collecting it all midshipmen were sad to see the night come to an end, as it signaled the beginning of study hour. Although celebrations were officially ended, chocolate and sugar helped keep everyone awake much of the night.

BeatTheIrish

In 1963, midshipman Roger Staubach quarterbacked the last team to beat the Fighting Irish of Notre Dame. The next 43 years would prove to be frustrating, as the Blue and Gold earned the dubious distinction of the longest losing streak to one opponent in NCAA football history. But on Nov.3, in South Bend, in front of 80,795 fans, that streak was not only broken, it was demolished!

This time, Kaipo-Noa Kaheaku-Enhada was the winning quarterback, completing six of eight pass attempts for 81 yards and one touchdown.

An uneventful first half saw both teams trading touchdowns until Notre Dame went back to their locker room with a 21-14 lead. Much the same happened after the half until early in the fourth quarter. Navy's defense, with just five sacks credited in the previous eight games, hit Notre Dame's quarterback hard. The third sack of the game allowed the Blue and Gold defense to take the lead with a fumble recovery and touchdown run, followed by a 2-point conversion, to bring the score to 28-21. The fourth sack of the game effectively kept Notre Dame from winning the game, and forced it into overtime.

The teams answered each other's scoring attempts in the first two overtimes with a touchdown and field goal each. The score at the beginning of third OT was 38-38. The biggest lead of the game came after the Midshipmen scored a touchdown and 2-point conversion. Notre Dame responded with a touchdown to bring the game to 46-44, but missed its own 2-point conversion to effectively end the game.

Thousands of Mids and Navy fans descended on the field, screaming and cheering, to celebrate the end of the streak. Victory sounded sweet that afternoon in Indiana, and continued to be heard long after the return to Annapolis.

Pass In Review

by Danika Denzer

Twice a year comes a time of order and chaos, excitement and dread, tradition and alteration. We call it 'Parade Season.' Everyone loves it...except midshipmen. Four parades in the fall and four in the spring, not to mention countless parade practices that never seem to help.

Every parade is packed with spectators. Visiting parents, tourists, faculty and staff, and local residents of Annapolis show up in force to marvel at the precise drill routine, flashy Formal Dress Blues and impressive size of the Brigade of Midshipmen. It is a rare occasion indeed to see the entire Brigade doing the same thing at the same time.

But who wouldn't love scrambling after class on Friday to locate and don all 18 pieces of the parade uniform, rush outside with your rifle to stand in formation before following the band to Worden field where so much grass and pollen is stirred up you can't stop sneezing? Not to mention that your arm is numb by the end of the parade from lack of blood flow.

Yet everyone turns out to see parades, no matter how many they have seen before. The military tradition of the Pass in Review is enduring to our institution and the public praises it no matter how disorderly it is in reality. Formal parades can be good bonding experiences for a company and make perfect subjects for practical jokes. Let us not forget the excitement caused when a plebes from the class of 2008 switched the numbered markers on the field inducing pandemonium.

Love it or hate it, Pass in Review is something midshipmen do only because they are midshipmen.

ServiceSelectFate

by Charles Miller

While underclass midshipmen look to service selection night as a milestone to be eargerly awaited and appreciated, many firsties spend weeks on pins and needles as they await the fate that the Navy has decided for them.

For the class of 2008, their service selection process was made more exciting by rumors of surface warfare being highly restricted, as well as rumors of there being an "NFO and Nuke Draft." Soon, SWO became a badge of merit, as more and more people were denied SWO as a top choice.

But to the class of 2008, most got over any initial disappointment on their assignment, and soon embraced whatever service came their way. The main reason for the change in attitudes was simple - whatever service they selected, it meant freedom and a ticket to a new command.

As usual, Special Warfare and Navy Pilot billets remained competitive, though the SWOs of 2008 certainly had to have the right stuff to make it through the tougher selection process.

The day of service assignment begins just like any other. After noon meal, however, the firsties went to their company wardrooms to find out their future. Many company officers and senior enlisted presented miniature warfare pins corresponding to the service of the different midshipmen.

But for all the formality and ceremony of service selection, the real attraction to most mids almost goes unnoticed. Stricter alcohol policies the past few years have put more regulations on the evening's festivities in DTA, but the regulations also added some responsibility. The threat of breathalyzers and early liberty expiration hours forced many parties to be called off a good half hour before midnight, but thankfully the evening was a success on the whole.

For the foreseeable future, service assignment night will continue to have the allure that it always has had, but it will also have a little moderation thrown in for good measure.

But to the class of 2008, most got over any initial disappointment on their assignment, and soon embraced whatever service came their way. The main reason for the change in attitudes was simple - whatever service they selected, it meant freedom and a ticket to a new command. ⚓

army navy week

Army/Navy week is the week leading up the Army/Navy game. It is a time for the Brigade of Midshipmen to engage in spirited events and prepare for an exciting game.

The week included a few pep rallies, including one on the Baltimore Harbor waterside as well as one at the Pentagon.

In contrast to recent years where the game has taken place in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, the game occurred in Baltimore, MD. All Midshipmen attended the game, but did not have to travel as far as in the past.

The 13th company was the most affected by the change in that they only had to run the ball the thirty miles to Baltimore, much less than the normal distance to Philadelphia. In the past, the ball run has begun on Thursday in order to make it up to the game in time. This year the run began on Friday afternoon.

Inside Bancroft Hall, companies and classes play practical jokes on each other. Plebes are given more freedom during the week and are allowed to escape their normal duties by showing spirit and yelling "beat Army" wherever they go.

The week provides a break from the normal activities of the academic year. It is full of spirited events to embrace the competition and rivalry between the Navy midshipmen and the Army cadets. Most midshipmen look forward to this week and enjoy the festivities of the week. Army/Navy week ends on Saturday with the Army/Navy football game, which is watched by Army and Navy personnel around the world. ⚓

Good football seasons are determined by one game...

GoNavy BeatArmy

By Charles Miller

Each year the Army-Navy game is remembered by a memorable turning point in the game, an incredible play, or a player or group of players that especially distinguish themselves. Sometimes it is the weather that is memorable, as December in Philadelphia is never the rosiest of times for good weather. In the 2007 Army-Navy game, there wasn't much memorable about the game, except for the utterly lopsided score and the incredible performance of many of Navy's all-time greatest players.

Offensive team captain and senior Midshipman 1/C Reggie Campbell was one of these memorable players. Assisted by his teammate Midshipman 1/C Zerbin Singleton, another of Navy's most versatile slotbacks, the two managed to rack up over 200 yards on the ground, accounting for three touchdowns between the two of them. With comrades Midshipman 1/C Adam Ballard, Midshipmen 2/C Kaipo-Noa Kaheaku Enhada and Jarod Bryant, the offense pushed a devastating ground attack that rolled up nearly 300 yards total offense.

Whereas the offense had been performing well all year, the defense had been devastated by injuries and setbacks. The defensive unit stepped up, holding Army to the fewest points of any opponent the entire year. The defense blocked a punt and held Army to only 217 yards of total offense. Led by Midshipman Michael Walsh, the defense registered numerous tackles for a loss and sacks on the Army offense. Midshipmen Wyatt Middleton, Ross Pospisil and Greg Thrasher rounded out the top performers for the Navy defense.

The game was relatively uneventful, and the score of 38-3 showed just how nerve-wracking the four hour spectacle really was. The most entertaining part was the impromptu performance of Reggie Campbell as he led the Drum and Bugle Corps in the playing of Navy Blue and Gold. Campbell's picture as band director pretty much summed up the day. With assistance from his teammates, he orchestrated success on the field, and with assistance from some D&B members, he orchestrated a solid performance of Navy Blue and Gold.

As the Midshipmen improved to 52-49-7 in the 108-year series, they also increased their score advantage, outscoring the Cadets by 169 points in the last six meetings. Army head coach Stan Brock summed it up best: "Thirty-eight to three is not much of a rivalry." Die-hard football fans looking for a close game like the 2006 contest were sure to be disappointed with the excitement of this years game. The halftime scuffle between Bill the Goat and the Army Black Knight, however, more than made up for any lack of excitement in the game.

With the return of the option offense to Army's team for the 2008 season, next year's game may prove to be much more entertaining. In terms of a lopsided victory, however, the 2007 game more than fit the bill. ⚓

Naval Academy Foreign Affairs Conference

Beyond Borders

by Marta Drew

Each year for a week in April the Naval Academy hosts undergraduate students from around the world at the Naval Academy Foreign Affairs Conference. The conference is run entirely by midshipmen, from the initial planning to the execution of the conference itself.

The theme of this year's conference "Beyond Borders: Latin America and the Caribbean in the 21st Century," gave students the opportunity to learn more about the countries to our south. Each year the midshipmen leadership chooses a topic relevant to the current affairs of our world, where midshipmen, along with their military and civilian colleagues will be emerging as new leaders in the coming years.

Participants are divided into 14 roundtable discussion groups, led by midshipmen moderators, with Naval Academy professors and other academics serving as senior advisors. Roundtable topics ranged from "Energy Resources in Latin America" to "The role of religion in Latin America." Delegates met with their discussion groups several times throughout the conference, talking about not only their topic but also the speakers offered throughout the conference.

In addition to the roundtable discussion groups, delegates also had the opportunity to listen to several distinguished speakers, including Robert Zoellick, President of the World Bank Group, and Admiral Stravridis, Commander, United States Southern Command. The conference also featured a Forrestal Address by Senator Dodd, Senior member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

The conference provided an excellent opportunity for Midshipmen to gain a greater understanding not only of international affairs, but also to learn more about their future colleagues in an age where the military and foreign policy are increasingly intertwined.

ShipSelection2008

by Julia Kaelberer

The Class of 2008 is clearing hurdles left and right on their way to the fleet. For these firsties having already selected Surface Warfare, ship selection is the last big unknown regarding their future in the US Navy. Where will they go and who will join them? This May, these midshipmen will be entering the SWO community, spreading their talents among many locations such as San Diego, Pearl Harbor, Norfolk, Little Creek, Mayport, Ingleside, Everett, Sasebo, and Yokosuka.

So where will your life take you? Will it be on a destroyer, a small boy, a cruiser, frigate, LCC, LHA, LHD, LPD, LSD, or even an MCM. A wise man once said "The road of life twists and turns and no two directions are ever the same. Yet our lessons come from the journey, not the destination." These future SWO's have started their journey, the destination matters not, for they will see the world, forge into the future, and grow with each and every experience that they encounter throughout the way.

Although these seemingly small steps come at us within a blink of an eye, they are the most important stepping stones in our lives. These steps are a few snapshots of how life will change and lead us down the paths of greatness or despair, but it is up to us to decide whether we sink of swim, as with all things we are the masters of our fate, we are the captains of our souls.

Good luck 2008 on your journey into the future, fair winds and following seas! ⚓

Spring Break Leave

by Charles Miller and Brooks Rogers

While most college students enjoy spring break as much as any other, midshipmen enjoy it more than civilian students could possibly imagine. After 11 weeks of incarceration in Mother B, every mid from the lowliest plebe all the way up to the Brigade Commander are literally itching to get out in the fun and the sun, though the itching might be from the cotton nylon twill of the winter working blues.

Although Spring Break doesn't officially begin until the last military obligation on the Friday before leave, the true celebration really begins about the middle of the week. Whether it is the impromptu hallway parties in the evenings or the rambunctious behavior every day at noon tables, the Brigade never ceases to find a way to make the countdown to the Spring Fling go faster even as time seems to slow down. Most midshipmen have plans made up in January or earlier, and the destinations range from South America to Europe to Africa. This past year, there was a group of midshipmen that travelled to Israel as part of a larger group with the Command Religious Programs office.

While the trip to the Holy Land was popular this year, with several dozen midshipmen attending, trips to the Caribbean remained the mainstay for those wishing to delve into more run-of-the-mill collegiate exploits. The Virgin Islands, Aruba, and Jamaica, as well as cruises that hit all the islands in between, were the most popular for most sun-loving midshipmen. One group of midshipmen even went as far as Morocco, where they of course found plenty of sand.

Not all of the Brigade got to enjoy Spring Break in the classical sense. Many varsity athletic teams had games or training during the week of spring break. The men's baseball team had several games during Spring Break, and all of the crew teams for men and women travelled somewhere during that time to get into shape for an intense racing season. The men's lightweight crew team went to Oak Ridge Tennessee, where the pried their oars under the shadow of nuclear research facilities, while the heavyweight team got to stay in sunny Annapolis. The women's team got a better deal, and was lucky enough to travel to Miami, Florida to train in the sun and the surf.

Whether it is athletic, religious, or suntan-oriented, Spring Break will continue to remain one of the most prized leave period for midshipmen for generations to come. ⚓

Forrestal Talk Time

by Brooks Rogers

Several times per year, midshipmen have the unique opportunity to listen to the words of many important and famous military, academic, and political figures. On these special Wednesdays the seats of Alumni would fill to capacity as speakers came to talk on a broad variety of topics ranging from leadership to ethics to embracing diversity in the military.

Through a gift from the Forestal Lecture Series fund, these guests were invited to speak, especially during weeks of important events such as the Naval Academy Foreign Affairs Conference. Some of this year's speakers included the Chief of Naval Operations Admiral Gary Roughead, Admiral James Stavridis, Dr. Samuel Betances, and Senator Christopher Dodd (D-CT).

This year Admiral Stavridis gave us his perspective on current events in South America. Hearing directly from the Commander of Southern Command certainly was a unique experience for the Brigade. However, for many midshipman Dr. Betances was their favorite speaker. With his funny anecdotes and wealth of knowledge on diversity Dr. Batances was able to teach us all so much while keeping Alumni Hall roaring with laughter. At graduation this year our speaker was Admiral Roughead, but the Brigade was able to get a preview of the CNO's speaking abilities at his Forrestal earlier in the spring.

It was not uncommon to hear a few grumblings amongst midshipman who were not very excited about their loss of liberty; however, most realized what an amazing honor it was to have so many distinguished individuals share their life experiences and life lessons.

Each speaker took their jogging suit jacket and left us with a few examples of good leadership and some insight into the real world. Forestall lectures helped open our eyes to current events and significant events of the past. They have given us all tools that we'll use throughout our careers in the military and as civilians and they will continue to enrich the education of midshipman for years to come.

Company Competition and Pride

Intramurals provide an opportunity for companies to compete in various sports throughout the year.

Intramurals were given a more prominent role in midshipmen training this year. As a part of the physical training, intramurals were expanded to occur nearly every day.

Each of the sports included more games, matches, and races than recent years. Additional practices were also implemented for the days where teams had a bye.

Intramurals are one of the few activities on the yard where company divisions play a greater role than class division.

Some companies even bring a cheering section to some of the later games such as the semi-finals and championships. Company officers and senior enlisted leaders often show up to support their companies.

The year is broken up into three different sports seasons. Those that participate in intramurals get to choose a different sport for each season.

Sea Trials 2008

by Spencer Jurkiewicz

Loud yelling, clanging, and obnoxious music at 3 in the morning. Is it plebe summer again? Nope, it is the accumulation of the entire plebe year: Sea Trials.

MREs are on the menu throughout the day. They weigh you down, stuffed in every cami pocket available, while you are running or crawling or getting wet-and-sandy or just doing pushups or situps.

A full day evolution of either heaven or hell (depending on who you ask) is the Plan of the Day. For many, the devil himself oversees the pool phase in Macdonough gym. He summons water from the Arctic Seas to rinse you off in the showers or surround you in the pool. Not only must you tread water, but you must do it with extra weights above your head or in every position possible. The inevitable honey-comb brings everyone close and sweeps even the best swimmers under - possibly because the ones drowning are pulling them down. A nice and easy four mile jog across the mighty Severn, brings the paintball course in sight. A quick game uplifts everyone's spirits, and gives a bit of color to muddy camouflage utilities. The entire E-course lies ahead with its many hills. The ruck sack run with 50 pound bags is the breaking point for most. Going over cement walls taller than Yao Ming without teamwork is truly impossible. A short dip at the Riverine course gets dirt and scum in all the wrong places. Marvelous BBQ treats end the day, and with Sea Trials, the only challenge left is climbing Herndon.

Although Sea Trials has a negative connotation in many mids' minds, the feeling at the completion of this epic day is like no other. You are working as one group in every activity. There is absolutely no better bond between your classmates than right after this day. Disagreements are set aside as you focus on the completion of the task at hand. Everyone and anyone is your best friend in these trying moments. As one participant, Midshipman 4/C Nathaniel Brady, summed up: "With the end of plebe year in sight, Sea Trials brought everyone together, and the triumph of achievement felt afterwards is a once-in-a-lifetime experience."

Plebes No More

by Anthony Hizon

Tension and anxiety mount on the morning of 15 May 2008 as the Class of 2011 eagerly awaits the start of the "Plebes No More" Ceremony. Yet, the atmosphere is elated and euphoric; for the 1142 members of the 4th Class Regiment, these are their last moments as plebes, the end to their grueling first year at the United States Naval Academy. Still sore and bruised from their Sea Trials ordeal just two days before, these plebes have one last obstacle to conquer before their days of chopping and chow calls are over: climbing the 21-foot tall lard-covered Herndon Monument and replacing the tightly secured "dixie cup" cover on top with a Midshipman combination cover.

But for many members of the Class of '11, this ceremony marks more than just the end of their plebe year. Just a week and a half before, MIDN 4/C Class Kristen Dickmann, died suddenly of what was later declared a cardiac arrhythmia. A varsity volleyball player and a beloved member of 21st Company, Dickmann had a vibrant personality and was well liked by her classmates. In the short time between her death and the Plebes No More Ceremony, the Class of '11 overwhelmingly voted in favor of using Dickmann's combination cover for the Herndon Climb, the first time in Naval Academy history that a female cover was used for this purpose.

MIDN 4/C Travis Nicks passionately states, "People can say what they want about us using a female cover, but we know we did it for the right reason. We did it for a fallen classmate."

When the ceremony finally begins, the plebes storm the obelisk. Adrenaline pumps and shouts of encouragement can be heard over the din, but the going is slow. The alumni, parents, and media surrounding the monument become enthusiastic every time the plebes near the summit and provide motivation every time they fall.

After several failed attempts, MIDN 4/C Sir Charles Williams' voice can be heard over the crowd, "Listen up, everyone, one voice! Here's the plan." Heeding his advice to reform a solid base, the Class of '11 was finally able to push MIDN 4/C Gregory Reichel up to place Dickmann's combination cover atop the monument, ending the ceremony after 2 hours and 35 minutes.

The crowd immediately erupts into a deafening cheer. A chant, "Plebes No More! Plebes No More!" is heard throughout the yard. The emotions of the Class of 2011 are captured by MIDN 4/C Brian McShea, "I was amazed to see everyone's reaction. We cheered for a full 10 minutes, high-fiving and hugging people we knew and didn't know. It felt as if a huge weight was lifted off my shoulders, and I knew we were ready to be upperclassmen." Plebe year is finally over.

On a surprisingly cool night for mid-May, the class of 2010 poured out of Bancroft Hall and ventured to Farragut Field for the classic Youngster Luau. Donning their bright gold shirts (complete with lava-spewing volcano on the back), the rising second class enjoyed a night of fun, food, and fighting. Not real fighting, of course, but the inflatable pugil stick arena was in constant use all night long. The other carnival games–particularly the slip-and-slide and the faux surfboard–provoked impromptu challenges. Those of age were corralled in the "adult beverage pen" where the beer flowed and officers kept a close eye on any possible shenanigans.

The Hawaiian-themed seemed complete when Hula dancers arrived. To a background of Polynesian music, mids were soon mimicking the moves of the dancers and drummers–though our costumes weren't quite as cool. Between the palm-tree fruit trays, the carnival games, and the live entertainment, the class of 2010 capped off a fantastic youngster year with a night of fun. ⚓

RingDance2008

by Jennifer Velasquez and Apphia M Maxima

There are dances and then there is the U.S. Naval Academy Ring Dance. Back in the Roaring Twenties, in late May of 1925, the Naval Academy Class of 1926 danced the Charleston, the foxtrot, and even the waltz. That summery night marked the first Ring Dance, a now time honored tradition at the Academy. While those men and their flapper girlfriends are long gone, we have been proud to carry on the torch in continuance of this tradition.

This year's Class of 2009 Ring Dance was not only an event that symbolized a right-of-passage, but as well, a special night where midshipmen of the Class of 2009 had their class rings blessed by dipping them into the "waters of the seven seas." This year's theme was "A Breath of the Orient." In the joyous company of their classmates and dates, hundreds of couples gathered together. They were rocking out to a great disc jockey on the dance floor of Dahlgren Hall and simply enjoying the food and homey atmosphere to be had.

The Ring Dance is ranked second in social importance only to a presidential inaugural. Hailed as the social event of all four years at the Academy, the gowns and tuxedos worn by the dates of midshipmen that evening were all very elegant and sophisticated. Midshipmen and their dates continued the tradition of baptizing their rings in the binnacle that contained water from the "Seven Seas;" - the North Pacific, South Pacific, North Atlantic, South Atlantic, India, Antarctic and Arctic - plus a drop or two of the Severn River.

The class of 2009 ring symbolizes everything we have gone through during our time near the bay and it serves as a reminder of our ties to our Alma Mater: the United States Naval Academy. The ring has served as a distinguishing mark of the Naval Academy graduate for over one hundred years, and it is still recognized around the world as a symbol of pride, authority and excellence.

The 2009 Class Motto is: "Devotion to Honor, Strength from Courage" inscribed in Latin on the rings as: "Deditus Honori, Vires Ex Virtute." As the Class of 2009 continues to prepare itself, having committed to a career of service to the U.S. Navy and U.S. Marine Corps, they devote themselves to a service marked by honor, gaining their strength from courage in all that they do. As a midshipman, the ring is worn with the seal inside, but after graduation, midshipmen can then justifiably become "ring knockers," as they turn the ring with the crest inside and the seal outside, so everyone can read the United States Naval Academy.

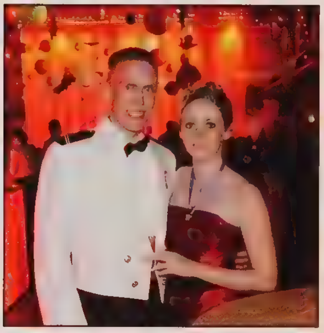
Ring dance will forever be a special night to remember for the class of 2009. Whether you rented a house for after the dance, spent the night on a cruise with friends, or ended your night in a hotel room, or "hotel Bancroft," the night of May 17, 2008 will always be engraved in our hearts, minds, and souls.

We would like to once again give a special thanks to all of you who made the event possible. To Ellen Sherman for knowing everything there is to know about anything (and all the right people to help make it happen), to all of the Company Representatives, and to all of you who made it out to the dance and had a great time!



Sometimes it looked like more pictures were being taken than dancing since no one wanted to forget the memorable night.

17th and 20th companies earn Color Company honors

by Sarah Andrews

Each year the Color Parade serves as the last parade of the year and honors the Color Companies from each semester of the academic year. This year, 17th company earned the most Color Company points to be fall semester's Color Company and 20th company earned the most points for second semester.

Seventeenth Company was led by Midshipman 1/C Jillian Bahlman as Company commander in the fall semester and 20th company was led by Midshipman 1/C Victoria Moore as Company commander during the spring semester.

As is tradition, the Company commander of the spring semester Color Company has the privilege of choosing a Color Honoree for the parade. Twentieth Company commander, Midshipman 1/C Victoria Moore chose her father, CDR Edmund Moore (Ret), as the Color Honoree. CDR Moore was a Naval Academy graduate in the Class of 1970.

Fall semester Color Company commander received the Forrestal Award which is an engraved silver tray and spring semester Color Company commander received the honor of having her name inscribed on the Stewart Wight Hannah Memorial Trophy which is displayed in Bancroft Hall.

United States Navy Flight Demonstration Team

by Marta Drew

For one day in May each year the Severn River is shut down, the Naval Academy bridge is shut down, and the gates to the Naval Academy is shut down to all traffic. However no one is complaining, instead everyone grabs blankets and chairs and sits on the grass to watch the sky. The United States Navy Flight Demonstration Team may disturb everyday life, but the show is well worth it.

Thousands of people line the banks of the Severn for a chance to see one of the most prestigious flying teams in the world. Local residents anchor boats in the Severn for a chance to see the planes fly overhead.

The six F/A-18 Hornets and one C-130T Hercules perform shows to over 15 million spectators each year all around the country, but Annapolis is always on the schedule. The Hornets fly at high speeds in tight formations, so low that they appear to be below the rooftops. While the C-130, known as "Fat Albert" does not fly as fast or as close to the other planes, the transport plane is still a big hit. ⚓

HipHipHooray

by Brooks Rogers

Our graduation was epic, a culmination of four years of academics, athletics, training cruises, leadership training, and developing friendships. It all happened so fast. For our first three years commissioning week and graduation seemed to take forever as we waited to begin our summer, but this year our families arrived and we were 2nd Lieutenants and Ensigns in no time. We spent the week saying good-byes and saw our friends for the last time as they walked across the stage. As each name was called we thought of the experiences we shared and the places each of us will go and the things we will all do.

Our honorary graduates included Mr. & Mrs. Carr (the parents of our classmate Ben Carr), Rear Admiral Charles J. "Joe" Leidig, Jr., and CNOCM(SW) Bernard B. Quibilan. After introducing the honorary graduates Erik Westland wrapped up our four years with a special speech. I cannot summarize our time here any better than he did so here is our class president's speech from May 23rd, 2008:

"So here we are; four years, eight semesters, and 2 million buffalo chicken sandwiches after I-Day, ready to scatter far and wide. We know that we are a class of many firsts, but it turns out that we are also an experimental class. A class where policies were applied to test our reaction time to change. What happens when you take the class of 2008 and: add 2 sets of khakis for each person, 3 mandatory meals a day, 2.5 mandatory study hours per night, and 30 breathalyzers (where the BAC limit was a motivating .08), then you subtract 5 weekends, weekday liberty, 2/3 of king hall, and 7,000 tasteless websites? I'll tell you what happened, we adapted, we overcame, and somebody called the Baltimore Sun.

But the greatest change is yet to come, it is beyond the chapel dome, and past MacGarvey's, it's over the horizon, and across the oceans. As we set out to promote a more peaceful and prosperous world in order to preserve our sovereignty and safety of our loved ones.

We owe a large debt of gratitude to this country, its citizens, and especially to our families for their unwavering support over the years. Indeed, it has often been said that the only difference between the mother of a midshipman and a pitbull is that the pitbull eventually lets go. Nowhere else is this more evident than on the numerous parent's webpages dedicated to discussing the lives (and sometimes secrets) of their midshipmen.

However, this trend represents something much greater than being protective. It's indicative of the love and dedication that has gone into raising a principled son or daughter and the pride felt when that child commits to the service of our nation. We cannot forget that while the Naval Academy endeavors to instill honor, courage, and commitment, the bulk of a midshipman's values come from the home. To the families here today, let it be known that the class of 2008's success is your success, and we thank you very much.

Class of 2008, as our cruise aboard the USS Bancroft comes to an end, let us strive to maintain the standards of excellence that so many before us have toiled to create, and more importantly let us cherish the sacred friendships that we're made, thank you."

Thank you Erik for a very funny ending to four long years, and good luck to everyone in the great class of 2008. Beat Army! ⚓

Navy Football stepped up their game to make some big wins this season!

Turning Heads

by Sian Stimpert

Boy oh boy! What a season it turned out to be for the football team this year. The stadium is packed, the midshipmen section screams their heads off, and the fans go wild as Navy scores another touchdown. "That's another Navy First Down!" Many of us have experienced the football phenomenon here at USNA over the past years. there were some very memorable moments this year, some for the better and some for the worst, but one in particular sent everyone over the edge. We all know and remember well the night the Navy Midshipmen faced the Fighting Irish of Notre Dame. Triple overtime and then chaos ensued in T-court as an impromptu Pep Rally got routy as the football bus pulled up the team, the Supe, the Dant, and Coach "PJ" Paul Johnson got out. Best of all a day off from school that Monday! Quaterback Midn 2/C Kaipo-Noa Kaheaku-Enhada (No. 10) and the rest of the team were treated like kings as they ended the 43 year losing streak. "It's finally over!"

The 2007-08 football season had some surprises. For one, it was Coach Paul Johnson's last year as head coach, but he did it with style. Navy posted an 8-6 record, with a loss to Utah in the second year at the Poinseittia Bowl in San Diego. Most importantly, the Commander-In-Chief's Trophy was once again claimed by Navy, for the fifth year in a row that Navy has dominated the other sister services. Next season, new head coach Ken Niumatalolo and the Navy team will have a challenging season with five teams from BCS conferences and four teams who earned bowl bids in 2007, but it should be a promising one. The class of 2008 left the young guys to continue the winning legacy,winning the Trophy, and hopefully beating Notre Dame again next year.

There were some major points scored this season as well and some upsets, but all in all the season faired well. Many were inspired by the leadership of co-captains Midn 1/C Irv Spencer (defensive captain) and Midn 1/C Reggie Campbell (offensive). "It was an honor being a first class leading the team this year. The brotherhood we have as a team is irreplaceable and is a highlight of my career as the Naval Academy" said Midn 1/C Zerbin Singleton.

The team really had to overcome a lot of adversity and persevered from game to game. The boys lost a few starters like Jeff Deliz and Clint Sovie from the class of 2007. Defensively, players like Midn 1/C Irvin Spencer really embraced the role as a leader and have managed the defense throughout the season. Offensively, Midn 1/C Antron Harper has been the anchor of the whole offense for the past few years with help from fellow lineman: Midn 1/C Ben Gabbard, Paul Bridgers, and Josh Meek. As far as kicking goes, Midn 1/C Greg Veteto did a great job punting this year as did Midn 1/C Joey Bullen who was instrumental in place kicking and field goals. And no one can forget Midn 1/C Zerbin Singleton who continually dominated on the field on almost every special team by returning kickoffs and making key tackles. His work off the field was unnoticed either, he was selected as spring semester's Brigade Commander.

"It was a great experience to lead the team this year. The one thing I learned is that your teammates will often look at you to see how you handle a certain situation, so you have to keep a level head even in the most stressful times" Midn 1/C Reggie Campbell said cooly.

Next year is looking very promising because of all the game experience many of the young players are getting now. Lucky for Navy players like slot back Midn 2/C Shun White, quaterbacks 2/C Jared Bryant and starting quarterback 2/C Kaipo-Noa Kaheaku-Enhada will be there to lead the way. Don't forget to watch other key players like safety Midn 4/C wyatt Middleton and Midn 3/C Ram Vela on defense. Due to injuries and athleticism, these young players have gotten a chance to play this year and that will benefit the team in the upcoming 2008-09 season. Watch out 'cuz Navy is gonna git-r-done!

A New Season, Different Team

by Peter Corcoran and Gaberielle Francisco

Varsity women's volleyball has always attracted large crowds to their games, especially home games in the Patriot League championship series. This year's team proved to be adept at attracting large crowds and winning some big games.

After a tough 2006 season, going 11-20, the 2007 squad stepped up and filled in the gaps and came away with several victories against their competitors. The team finished the year with a solid 21-11 (0.653) overall record, while going 8-6 (0.571) in Patriot League matches.

The head coach of the team, Mike Schwob, finished his 13th year of coaching with this past season. The 21-11 record was the third 21-win season in 4 years. Some of their biggest sweeps came against Bucknell, Columbia, Lafayette, and Lehigh.

Junior standout Jessie Sims of 22nd Company thought the new season went well, noting the increase in selflessness among the team members: "Our team made a complete turn around this past season with our record and with our court attitude. Everyone was to thank for that because everyone put the team before themselves. We had such an awesome time on and off the court together; in my opinion we are the closest team on the yard."

Team unity plays a huge role in volleyball, since as there are only six players, and a rather large court, communication is extremely important to prevent losing a series, a game, or a match.

Midshipman Sims also noted that the team has no intentions of slowing down in the coming years. She mentioned that "We will be very strong next season and we are working hard to finally make it to the NCAA tournament."

After a solid season like this past one, and after returning many of their best players, Navy women's volleyball has a lot to look up to, but also has a lot to be proud of. Their accomplishments on the court in the 2007-2008 season are certainly ones for the record books. The Naval Academy will certainly be watching next year as the ladies try to make it to the big game at the NCAA Championships.

Navy Sprint Football reclaim their throne with an undefeated record, two bowl game wins, and another N-Star.

by Elena Yoshimura

Under new head coach, Maj. Jacob Jenkins, USMC, the Navy Sprint Football team placed first in the Collegiate Sprint Football League with an undefeated season. Their core values are unique among other Sprint Football opponents encompassing hard work, discipline, dedication, humility, and tradition. Navy earned the N-star with a defeat over Army 41-13 on November 2nd devastating the cadets at West Point, NY. Team captains, Midn 1/C Taylor Brashear and Midn 1/C Todd Barriger acknowledges, "The N-star game as the most meaningfully for the team because it is not just our rivals, but is for the league and for the seniors, the last game we may play on a football team."

This season's team was more prepared than ever before. They began training during their off-season, completed 4th quarters, made time for two-a-days, and focused on their mission to reclaim their title. The first game of the season was a scrimmage verses Washington & Lee, which set the tone for the rest of the season with a final score of 14-7. This was going to be the season by which Navy Sprint Football was going to take it all.

On September 9th, Navy defeated Frostburg State JV, 47-8 at Frostburg, MD. Navy's defense made an outstanding effort allowing only 36 yards of total offense. On September 22nd, Navy's victory over Army in the Allegiance Bowl was a 30-17 win in Saratoga, NY. Midn 2/C Enrique Harris rushed for 160 yards on 24 carries and a touchdown to earn him the game MVP honors. On October 7th, Navy defeated Defending League Champion Cornell in Pride Bowl XXIX, 35-14 at Union, NJ. Midn 3/C

Tyler Hawkins made 17 tackles for a career-best to earn him the Pride Bowl MVP honors. Navy's only home game this season was another Navy victory over Princeton in a shutout of 83-0 on Rip Miller Field. This would be the second highest scoring mark in program history. On October 26th, Navy dominated the field at Philadelphia, PA against Penn for a 56-7 win. Midn 2/C D.J. Green threw for two touchdowns and ran for two more. His decisions on the line and getting first downs at critical points of the game led the team to victory. Navy's final game of the season against Army resulted in a 41-13 win claiming the N-Star and the CSFL Title. Midn 2/C D.J. Green threw for 179 yards and ran for 57 yards, accounting for three touchdowns. Midn 1/C Richard Engel completed this 24th career rushing touchdown, the most in school history.

Each player performed optimally and continually improved throughout the season. They finished the 2007 season undefeated demonstrating each player's devotion and discipline towards perfection. The seniors are the first class in the program's 62 year history to go undefeated against Army during their midshipman career, 8-0. They would complete their Sprint Football Career with an astonishing 24-1 record.

This season marked many players breaking their own records, setting new records, and earning impressive recognitions from the CSFL for their performance. Midn 2/C D.J. Green, quarterback, was named CSFL Most Valuable Player for leading Navy in the league's most productive offense. He completed 58-of-103 passes for 853 yards, rushing for 179 yards on 49 carries, seven touchdowns, a league-best, and only three interceptions for the season. 12 Midshipmen join Green in being named First-Team All-CSFL. Two Midshipmen were named Second-Team All-CSFL and 10 Midshipmen earned Honorable Mention All-CSFL.

Next year it is only expected that the team will go undefeated and defend their Collegiate Sprint Football League Title. This team makes brothers, trains warriors, and develops leaders. The Navy Sprint Football Team approaches each game as a new battle, ready to improvise, adapt, and overcome.⚓

Navy Women had yet another excellent year as they brought home both the fifth N star of the season plus a second consecutive Patriot League Championship with a proud record of 14-5-4.

The season started off great with early wins over IUPUI and St. Peter's, where 1/C Katie Traster scored the first goal just 2:30 into the game that would result in a 4-0 victory.

Navy's most decisive victory was over Howard with a crushing score of 8-1. 1/C Brigitte Fox put 4 in the net all by herself. In addition to Fox, 3/C Shelly Moeller, 2/C Sam Schroth, 4/C Jessica Grupp, and 4/C Carissa Youker all helping bring Navy victory.

When Army came around, Navy refused to let them in this year. Captain Kari Weniger and 1/C Brigitte Fox, in their final game at Glenn Warner Soccer Facilty, gave Navy the lead over Army in a 2-0 victory. While Army lead the game in shots on goal, 2/C Lizze Barnes refused to let anything in her net.

With the Army victory, Navy was seeded 3rd in the Patriot League Championship. From there, they went on to beat American 2-0 and then Bucknell 1-0 to bring back the Patriot League Championship. ⚓

Navy Men's Soccer

by Charles Miller & Brooks Rogers

Most soccer fans think of the World Cup or the Olympics when they think of the game. For Navy Men's soccer, however, they think of the Glen Warner soccer facility, their classmates standing, cheering them on, and the roar of the crowd. For men that immediately join the Fleet and Marine Corps after graduation, their objective isn't about getting a professional US Soccer contract or advertisement endorsements. Their objective is about fighting every game, and never giving up. The 2007-2008 season proved to be a tough one, challenging the team at almost every turn.

Led by Head Coach Rich Miranda, as well as by assistant coaches Patrick Kennedy and Mark Gower, the team worked hard through the end of the summer to get back into top form, running drills and hard practices in the August heat to get ready for the tough games coming up in the fall.

Starting out in the fall with a tough set of games against James Madison, George Amson, and Temple, the team bounced back from two ties and a loss to win against Air Force 1-0. Navy then went 4-2 in the next 6 games, beating Iona, Florida Gulf Coast, and Florida International.

The biggest challenge the team faced this year was not only the high level of competition but also the loss of several key players from 2007. This was a big reason for the first few games being really tough and hard to close. The leaders from the class of 2008 managed to step up and lead the team on to win some close games.

Midshipman 1/C Justin Waskey was reminiscing when he told Lucky Bag, "Looking back on the four years, my best memory was beating Army 4-2 at home on national television, and in doing so, scoring my first collegiate goal." This Lucky Bag reporter can tell you from personal experience that Justin must have been recruited for his speed based on how quickly he could wear his friends out during pickup basketball games in Halsey.

St. Francis 3-1 (L) Florida Gulf Coast 4-0 (W) Florida Int'l 3-1 (W) Bucknell 2-0 (L) Philadelphia 3-0 (W)

Navy Soccer also had winning players on and off the field. One particular player was Midshipman 1/C Evan Barnes. As Navy's starting goalkeeper for the 2006 and 2007 seasons, Barnes had plenty to think of on the field. His academic and leadership pursuits off the field led him to win the inaugural Lowe's CLASS Award. The CLASS Award goes to the most outstanding Men's Division I player in the areas of classroom, community, character, and competition on the field. Barnes was also named Third Team Academic All-American.

Several other Navy players were named to the Patriot League Men's Soccer Academic Honor Roll. Mishipman 1/C Justin Waskey, Brett Copare, Anthony Parker and Travis King all were nominated to the roll as well. Underclassmen nominated included Midshipman 3/C Chris Marino, Chris Schneider, and Scott Robertson.

The team could be seen practicing on the practice fields on Dewey or at Glen Warner playing scrimmages nearly every day after school. They were dedicated not only to the soccer field but also to the classroom. Their skill and determination were constantly put to the test through hours of drills and physical conditioning. For the 2008 Navy team, however, it was all worth it. They worked their best and fought their hardest to live up to the standard of "Expect to Win."

Leading the Pack

by Marta Drew & Brooks Rogers

Navy Women's Cross Country had a stellar season, running all over the competition at their dual meets and in the larger invitational meets. The team had a solid core of runners that returned, with many underclassmen stepping up to lead the way.

With a roster of 26 runners, led by head coach Karen Boyle and team captain Kyleigh Millhouse,, Navy Women's Cross Country had a strong season in the fall of 2007. They managed to solidly dominate every team they came across in the regular season. Going 4-0 in dual meets, they went into the Patriot League Championships ranked as the 11th best team in the Mid-Atlantic region.

Endurance was on the face of all of the cross country team.

Navy started the season at the Appalachian State Invitational Meet in August 2007, finishing third overall. They then went to Dartmouth in September where they had three wins from the four entered teams. The Salty Sea Dog (or Navy) Invitational was a good meet as well, where Navy finished third of nine teams from all over the East Coast.

The firsties from did their best this past year and left the team strong. Navy women's cross country proved themselves a force to be reckoned with this season. The girls have some work to do next year as their competitors are sure to look at Navy as the team to beat. Beat Army! ⚓

The Navy Men's Cross Country Team continues to be a tough competitor through the 2007 season

Pride and Tradition

by Bradley Craig

The Men's Cross Country Team had a sensational season. With several top finishes throughout the fall, it would not have been a victorious season without the defeat of Army. To conclude the year, the men's team competed in the NCAA Mid-Atlantic Regional Championship and clinched 5th place while competing against 27 other teams.

Among the top performers was the captain, John Kress who, along with John Olsen, earned Mid-Atlantic Region recognition for performance in the NCAA Championship. Other top runners include Bill Prom, Andrew Grant, Chris Horel, Andrew Hanko, Matthew Leyndyke, and Ben Kozy.

One of the most memorable accomplishments of the 2007 season was the 2nd place finish in the Patriot League Championship. The Navy Midshipmen earned only 48 points, a mere point out of beating the six-time champion, American University. This race marked the closest finish in Patriot League history. To round out the outstanding victory, freshman Andrew Hanko was voted the Patriot League Outstanding Rookie of the Meet after finishing 16th place out of 88 total runners.

""Beating Army this year was special because we had a lot of younger guys step up that day. The underclassmen really showed that Navy will be a tough force even after '08 is gone," said Kozy. Even with a number of graduating seniors, the strength of the Navy Midshpmen cross country team will continue to be upheld in the years to come. The up and coming underclass include Patrick Quinn, Nathan Liversedge, Ricky Griffith, and Patrick Cooper.

With the season over, the underclassmen of the Navy Midshipmen cross country team look to the future with the utmost confidence. The pride and tradition that defines this team will continue to allow for success, especially against the Army Black Knights.

Prepare to Dominate

by Elena Yoshimura

The Navy Water Polo team embodies the meaning of 'the whole is greater than the sum of the parts.' With miles of swimming, endless hours of treading water, drills, and practice, the team was able to demonstrate one of the greatest records Navy has seen yet.

These midshipmen were the few determined to excel in a sport where the weak willed or weak minded are not found because of the sport's high intensity and endurance required. Water polo in the United States is growing slowly and is very much a west coast sport in the nation, but Navy still puts forth the same competitive spirit each and every year.

Each year, the midshipmen can be found at the Annual Hawaiian Invitational where they gather together in early August to begin bonding and training together. Navy opened the season at the Navy Labor Day Open where they concluded with a 3-1 record, ranking second in the tournament. The following weekend, Navy played at the Princeton Invitational where they won three games with a combined score of 41-10. At the NorCal Tournament in Berkeley, CA, the midshipmen won in the final day of the tournament with a win over Air Force, 11-4.

September 29th, the midshipmen began the ECAC tournament in Lewisberg, PA, where they dominated against George Washington and Bucknell but fell short by one goal against St. Francis. The following weekend, the midshipmen began League Play against Princeton. This beginning led to a very successful road to victory in clinching the CWPA Southern Division Championship. They defeated Johns Hopkins 11-7 and headed for the CWPA Eastern Championships.

At the CWPA Eastern Championship, Navy scored over Iona, George Washington, and St. Francis (NY) where they came from behind in the second half to win for the second straight year and earned a bid to the NCAA Final Four Championship. In December, the midshipmen finished third place in the tournament, the first in school history, and hopes to grow even greater as a team and conquer the NCAA Final Four next year.

At the end of the season many of Navy's athletes had accomplished above and beyond and a few were nationally recognized such as, Midn 1/C Aaron Recko, Midn 2/C Mike Mulvey, and Midn 1/C Eric Gardiner. Midn 1/C Recko was selected to the second-team NCAA All-Tournament Team and All-American for this second straight year. Midn 2/C Mike Mulvey was selected to the first-team NCAA All-Tournament Team and All-American. Midn 1/C Eric Gardiner was named an NCAA Postgraduate Scholarship Recipient for his outstanding academic and athletic performance. The midshipmen finished the year with a 30-6 record for the season.

Water polo teaches each man how to deal with adversity, how to dig deep inside, find out more about himself by pushing his limits, and the importance of a team's triumph than just of an individual. The work by motivating each other and play knowing they are there supporting their teammates, friends, and brothers in the cool water.

Ladies shoot high on Navy...

Women's BasketBall

by Charles Miller

Navy women's basketball is a class act. Their perseverance, toughness, and work ethic are just as strong as any other women's team on the East Coast. Although this year was a very difficult year in terms of the win-loss record, the team gave an honest fight to all of their opponents, and didn't quit even when the odds were against them.

The women's team had numerous challenges to overcome for the 2007-2008 season. One of the biggest was experience. With only one returning senior player, the team was comprised of only 5 total upperclassmen. With over 60% of their players as freshmen or sophomores, the team had to do quite a bit of learning early on.

Led by head coach Tom Marryott, son of the late Rear Adm. Ron Marryott, USNA '57, the women's team had a rough start, losing three straight to Rice, Winthrop, and North Texas. They didn't quit, however, and kept working hard, and were rewarded with two wins over Howard and Rider just a few days later. After losing close games to Colorado State and Kent State, the girls had another four tough games before they met their perennial archrival Air Force on the hardwood of Alumni Hall. But once again, they didn't let a bad start get to them. They rallied, and whipped the Falcons 72-69 in a thrilling overtime victory. Coach Marryott noted that "There were a number of opportunities in which we could have hung our heads, but to their credit, the girls didn't and always believed they could come back." This was an accurate description, as Air Force led 43-39 with only 10 minutes left to play. The girls did the right thing, however. Instead of getting mad that they were behind, they just got even. They tied the game at 48-48 with 6:35 to play, and with the shooting skills of Midshipman 2/C Whitney Davidson, 3/C Kelly Altschull, and 3/C K.C. Gordon, Navy held a shaky 5 point lead with two minutes left to play. After a couple of foul shots that went for Air Force, the game was hustled

Navy fought tooth and nail for a small 1-point lead with 30 seconds to play, and managed to snag the ball on an Air Force inbounds pass. After keeping it out of the Falcon's hands for 14 more seconds, the buzzer sounded and Navy had won.

So despite the rough season and a string of games that were snatched out of their hands at the last second, Navy women's basketball did have its share of triumphs to celebrate when the season's final buzzer sounded. And the honor and distinction with which the Lady Mids conducted themselves wasto the highest of standards, and for , they can be proud. ⚓

Navy Men's Basketball

by Charles Miller

Navy men's basketball has had a storied tradition, and every year the team has to step up to fill the ever-larger shoes of David Robinson, USNA '87. The 2007-2008 squad, led by Midshipman 1/C Greg Sprink, fought hard and torched the Patriot League opponents in numerous statistics. But for a lucky last-second buzzer beater in the Patriot League tournament, this year's squad would have advanced to the final rounds of the Patriot League Tournament. David Robinson would be proud of them.

The coaching staff for the men's basketball team was headed up by Head Coach Billy Lange. Unlike Batman, he didn't work alone, however, as he wad a whole crew of dedicated assistants to help him. Joe Burke, Eugene Burroughs, and Jason Crafton helped with practices and games. Ron Ginyard and Aaron Goodman recently joined the crew and also pitched in to make Navy Basketball 2008 a tough and competitive team.

The men's team started off the season with a game at Longwood University. Winning the game 86-70, Navy started the season off on a strong note. The next six games were a tough set of matches, and Navy went 1-5 in those games, narrowly losing to Seton Hall in a 79-75 thriller.

Rebounding from the temporary setback, they then went 6-4 in the next 10 games. Navy then caught on fire, getting fired up for the last 12 games of the regular season. Starting at Holy Cross, the men's team began a 6-game winning streak, where Lehigh, Lafayette, and plenty of other teams all got a piece of Bill the Goat's wrath on the basketball court.

After losing 69-67 in a thrilling home game that literally went down to the last second, Navy decided to get even with the men on the Hudson. The team (and their trusty spirit squad with Bill the Goat) traveled all the way to West Point, where they then proceeded to whip the tail of the Army mule 71-63 in front of the Corps of Cadets.

The strong winning streak gave Navy a non-conference record of 10-6, and a conference record of 4-10 on the season. Though their overall record was 16-14, five of their games were decided by 4 points or less, with two of their losses coming in overtime or triple overtime.

Navy also had an historic season ending in that their final game against Bucknell was the first triple overtime game in the Patriot League since 1977. The only reason Bucknell won was a last-second, 40-foot three pointer that lifted them over Navy, 87-86. The fact that Navy stayed strong and fought tooth and nail for four quarters plus three overtimes is a testament to the true grit of the players, and the can-do attitude of the coaching staff. Look for Navy to be out for blood next year. Fear the Goat, Go Navy.

The Navy women swimmers prove that they are a force to be reckoned with in the water.

Setting new standards

by Sarah Andrews

The S'Women, as the Navy women's swimming team call themselves, had an unparalleled season of achievements.

Navy women's swimming has reached the next level of competition and class by developing two Olympic hopefuls and earning second in the Patriot League Championship. The Naval Academy hosted the Patriot League Championship this season for the sixth time in league history.

The women tied their record for most meets won during regular season including a win over Army. Notably, they achieved a close win over the University of Pennsylvania that came down to the last relay race.

Commenting about the team at the University of Pennsylvania meet, team captain Kristin Lowd said, "They fought to the very last relay and was the most incredible race I have ever seen in my sixteen years of swimming."

In a testament to the quality of the swimming program at the Naval Academy, both Midshipman 3/C Mallory Dietrich and Midshipman 3/C Thuy Mi Dinh earned the opportunity to compete for a spot in the 2008 Beijing Olympics. 3/C Dietrich qualified for the trials in the 100-meter breaststroke, while 3/C Dinh qualified in the 50-meter freestyle.

During the season, Midshipman 3/C Thuy Mi Dinh broke both the Navy and the Patriot League records in the 50-meter freestyle and the 100-meter freestyle.

This determined group of women has grown close as a team and has set a new standard for Navy women's swimming.

The team graduated a number of talented first class midshipmen but looks to have a talented and competitive team for the 2008-2009 season. ⚓

FiveTimeChampions

by Sarah Andrews

The Navy Men's Swimming and Diving team completed another impressive season. One of their own even participated in the 2008 Olympic trials.

After a nearly perfect season, the team showed a strong performance at the Patriot League Championships and the EISL Championships.

Midshipman 3/C Adam Meyer capped his season with a showing at the 2008 Bejing Olympic trials. He nearly made the finals for the Olympics in both the 200 Fly and 200 IM. He earned a rank in the top 100 worldwide for both events.

The team as a whole also had a successful season. For the fifth year in a row, the men's team won the Patriot League Swimming and Diving Championships. Thirteen midshipmen received all-league accolades and eight were named to the league's first team.

Individuals that stood out in the Patriot League during the season were Midshipman 2/C Jon Galinski and 4/C Alex Buck. Midshipman 2/C Jon Galinski was selected as the league's diver of the year while Midshipman 4/C Alex Buck was named the rookie of the year.

After the Patriot League Championship, the Navy swimmers competed at the Eastern Intercollegiate Swimming League Championship. At the Eastern Intercollegiate Swimming League Championship in Boston, the team fought hard and finished in fifth place.

As a testament to the team's athletic and academic success, eleven of the men's swimmers and divers were named to the Patriot League Academic Honor Roll.

Naval Academy hosts 2008 College Squash Association Individual Championships

Navy Squash

by John Moore

Supported by the strong play and solid leadership of seniors Jeff Sawin, Tucker George, and Brian Hamilton, the Navy Squash team recorded another successful season in 2008, finishing thirteenth overall in the College Squash Association (CSA) team championships followed by two division victories and three top-50 rankings in the CSA individual championships.

The Mids started the season on fire, winning eight of their first nine matches, including notable wins over Northwestern, Stanford, and Hobart. Arguably the most disappointing match of the season, however, came in late November against long time squash rival, Dartmouth College. With nine players to a team, Navy nearly upset the number six-ranked "Big Green," with impressive wins from Midn 1/C Tucker George, Midn 2/C Kit Zipf, Midn 3/C Nils Mattson, and Midn 4/C Alan Lutz. "The loss to Dartmouth was tough," said Kit Zipf, "but it definitely gave us the confidence that we could play with the best teams in the country."

Navy continued to perform well throughout the rest of the season, finishing strong with a solid 17-11 record. After their last match of the season, a close 3-6 loss to Cornell University, the Mids headed to Harvard University for the CSA Team Championships. With a healthy team and good play during the past weeks, Navy finished the championships ranked thirteenth in the nation. When asked about the team's finish, sophomore standout, Midn 3/C Nils Mattson said, "I'm proud of the intensity and focus that our team displayed at nationals. We have a lot to work on as a team, but I think we're headed in the right direction."

With team championships coming to a close, the highlight of the Navy squash season was still to come. Indeed, on the weekend of February 27-29, the Naval Academy hosted the CSA Individual Championships, where the top 100 players, male and female, from around the country come together to play in a double elimination, two-bracket tournament. This was the first time in nearly 30 years that the Academy hosted a national squash tournament, and with the newly renovated Gurneé squash complex, and a specially installed four-wall class court placed in the center of Halsey Field House, the school was excited to show off Navy's outstanding facilities.

During noon-meal formation, more than 2,000 midshipmen set a new college squash match attendence record and packed in to Halsey to watch Midn 1/C Tucker George, Navy's top player, face off against Trinity College's, Supreet Singh. George lost in a hard-fought four game match, and although the outcome was disappointing, he was well supported by the entire student body. With strong support throughout the weekend, Jeff Sawin and Alan Lutz earned impressive victories in their respective consolation brackets, while Nils Mattson experienced success of his own with a national ranking of forty-second at tournament's end.

With a solid group of returning players, state of the art facilities, and the enhanced support of the Brigade after the CSA championships, there is no doubt that Navy Squash can compete at the highest levels of college squash. "This program is on the upswing," concluded Jeff Sawin, thinking back over his four years with the team, "we've got a lot of talent and great work ethic- I'm definitely looking forward to watching the team progress during the upcoming 2009 season." ⚓

Navy Wrestling

by Darryl Abriam

Navy wrestling is now on its 100th year of training warriors! This years team accomplishments would make Navy's first wrestling team of 1908 very proud. The team finished 4th in the conference and was ranked 18th nationally. The team also had three EIWA champions, four NCAA qualifiers and three All-Americans (who were all from the same original class of 2008). This level of success has not been reached since 1967, the last time Navy had three All-Americans. Coach Burnett stated that this year was a challenging year because they wanted it to be a challenge, the team wrestled 28 of the top 30 teams! Despite this, the team was consistent in working hard and being tough, this led to everyone stepping up and dominating. This was evident during the Army Navy match which could only be described as pure domination. 4/C Saddoris commented that it was his birthday during this match up and pinning Army in the first period and earning his N-star was a great feeling! According to 1/C Manley, Coach Burnett is like the Mister Miagi of wrestling. He has an answer for any question. His greatest talent, however, is preparing us for an opponent. He can watch films of other wrestlers and predict what they will try against us. This skill really shines through on our N-star matches, because we seem to consistently tip the score in our favor. This year's team was led by team captain 1/C Stolpinski, who was one of the three All-Americans and is also a two time All-American. According to 1/C Jacobs, Stolpinksi was the hardest worker bar none and he is dedicated to what he does. He always works harder than anyone in the room this makes him a great role model and a leader of example both on and off the mat. The other seniors also did an excellent job says assistant coach Captain Antonelli. 1/C Prendergast was another two time All-American. The other firsties would wrestle at different weight classes not for self but for the team and this set a great example for the others on what teamwork is about. 2/C Baker, another All-American, states that it was because of the other seniors understanding and following through with what needed to be done was the reason the season was as successful as it was. Next year's first class will have big shoes to fill but are on the right track. The team expects a lot from 2/C Baker (especially now that he is following all the rules) and 2/C Steele since they are a good nucleus to build from. 4/C Stein mentions that with the 2/C Baker, Steele, Ahern, and Caldwell, their leadership next year will be unstoppable. This year's plebe wrestlers were also the most talented class to point. They definitely amped up the competition for the varsity spot and they all improved exponentially throughout the season. Despite the fact that Bryce looks good in girls clothes not making Scott Owen's pamphlet of the things that he actually likes, or the play day Saturday practices, or that Justin has a pet named Snoop, the team's future is looking very bright... so bright, that you have to wear shades, the coaches said as they donned on sunglasses at the banquet. Finally, the last words of wisdom that Coach Batman would like to provide his warriors who are getting ready to graduate is to "Keep on getting up till the good Lord tells you not to." ⚓

Navy Men's Gymnastics wants to score...

The Perfect Ten

by Elena Yoshimura and Charles Miller

Navy Men's Gymnastics completed a successful season this year with a solid record of success against top teams on the east coast.

Navy gymnastics has had a long history, stretching over a century, all the way back to 1908. The 2008 season was one that certainly would have made the 1908 team proud. The team went 3-1 at home, as well as beating Army and placing in the top three places in several large invitational meets.

The biggest victory of the season was a 340.75-322.6 win over Army at home in Macdonough Hall. The team also had a strong showing at the USAG Collegiate Division Championships, where they won first place. They also did well at the ECAC Championships at West Point, New York, where they placed fourth.

The team was led this year by Midshipman 1/C Jon-Michael Chombeau. Elected by his teammate peers, the Beaverton, Oregon native was a first team Academic All-American. The biggest challenge that the team faces this year was not only the stiff competition from rivals such as Army, Air Force, and Penn State, but also filling the holes left by the class of 2007.

Led by Midshipman 4/C Dylan Parrott in the all-Academy Championship, Navy finished 8.05 ahead of Air Force and 12.85 points ahead of Army.

Navy didn't stop there, as they went on to beat Temple 343-339. Their biggest tournament in terms of size was the USAG Collegiate Division Championships, with Springfield College, Navy, William & Mary, and MIT all in attendance. Navy won the tournament by 0.85 points to beat William & Mary and the other competitors.

With so much young talent returning for the 2009 season, Navy looks to have another very successful year in the gymnastics arena. ⚓

Aim Small, Miss Small...

Hitting the Bullseye

by Kristen Eriksen

Head coach Bill Kelley and team captain Monica Amagna led the way throughout the year as a team mixed with 6 Plebes, 4 Youngsters, 3 Second Class, and 4 Firsties were brought together based on a mutual fervor for shooting and shooting good. The challenges that presented themselves for the team this year, such as far less range time due to the mando meals, were outdone with the addition of exceptional plebes and the ability to transform individuals into a cohesive team.

The amazing leadership on this team was not only a result of a being in charge of a very dangerous weapon, but was also due to the absolute dedication of the first-class who were involved in morning workouts and their performance with leadership, talent, and commitment. The Firsties of 2008 have impacted the team positively and will graduate this summer, leaving behind a legacy for leadership.

The second-class from this season are equipped and ready to go for next year as they take on the rifle team in hopes for as good of a season in 2009 as there was this year. There were an astounding 9 wins, 2nd at the President's Trophy, and 7th at the NCAA championships. The expectations are set high for the upcoming year. In qualifying for the 5 person NCAA spots from USNA, 2 were plebes. As Captain, 1/C Amagna says, "Having 2 plebes out of 5 is a rarity."

Next year's goals include dominating Army, getting more time on the range after learning how to deal with the new command, welcoming more under class on the team to fill the empty spots from this year's graduating class, and most importantly letting the brigade know that the academy has a great rifle team with a great indoor range and hopes to see more supporters cheering them on next year. The talent that exists within this team is phenomenal. The rifle members can consider themselves the epitome of a team, bringing individuals together when the shooter appears to be working alone, and producing a unified cohesive unit, working together to win. ⚓

Track and Field

by Sarah Andrews

Track and field is divided into two parts: indoor and outdoor seasons.

The indoor season began in December with the Navy Invitational. The Midshipmen began the season well by earning first place at the Invitational.

The Midshipmen competed in a few duel meets as well as a number of multi-university competitions.

During the indoor season, Midshipman 1/C Paul Harris earned the honor of being named Patriot League Track Athlete of the Week two weeks in a row. This recognition was due to his superior performance in the 500-meter run and the 4x400-meter relay.

Two Midshipmen earned the honor of Patriot League Track Rookie-of-the-Week. Midshipman 4/C Jake Palmer earned the honor at the beginning of January. Midshipman 4/C Andrew Hanko earned this title two weeks in a row at the end of the season.

An N-Star meet against West Point in late January led to another victory for the Midshipmen. This was the seventh year in a row that the Midshipmen defeated the Cadets at the indoor track and field N-Star meet.

The regular indoor season ended with the Iowa State Classic, which consisted of individual races with no overall team score recorded.

The Indoor Patriot League Championship took place in late February with Navy winning first place.

At the IC4A Championships, the Midshipmen performed well with Midshipman 1/C Ron Belany earning fourth place in the heptathlon, 1/C Darryl Hunter earning fifth place in shot put, 1/C Craig Meekins earning sixth place in the 800-meter run, and 1/C Dante Marshall earning seventh place in the triple jump.

The outdoor track and field season began as soon as the indoor season ended. The Midshipmen started the outdoor season with a win at the Point Loma Invitational. Early in the season, the Midshipmen were recognized as League favorites.

Midshipmen earned all of the weekly recognition honors the first week of April. Midshipman 1/C Ron Belany earned the track award, 1/C Bo Lawson the field award, and 4/C Devan Clark the rookie-of-the-week award.

In the outdoor N-Star meet against Army, the Midshipmen performed well against their rival. In a decisive victory, Navy athletes won fourteen of the nineteen races and field events.

Navy completed the regular season with a perfect record in duel meets.

The Midshipmen went on to win the Patriot League Outdoor Track and Field Championship. They surpassed West Point, who earned second place in the Championship.

The win at the Patriot League Championship was the first in Navy men's Track and Field history. It also ended a West Point winning streak.

A number of the men then traveled to the IC4A Championship, where Bo Lawson recorded the best performance with eighth place in the javelin.

To finish the season, nine of the men competed at the NCAA Regional Championship. ⚓

NavyMen'sBaseball

by Charles Miller

Navy baseball often doesn't get the respect they deserve. While competing with football, soccer, and lacrosse for the time, hearts, and minds of Navy sports fans, baseball does its best to drum up excitement for their games. With the new Terwilliger Brothers stadium up and running this year, Navy saw a big spike in their visibility, and they backed it up with stellar performances on the baseball pitch.

Navy had a 32-25-1 (0.561) overall record, and went 21-16-1 at home (0.567). They also had a winning away game record, going 9-8 on the road, and 11-9 overall in Patriot League play.

Led by team captain Midn 1/C Michael Garcia, Navy started the season off in Millington, Tennessee, where they trounced Air Force 6-5 and 16-5 in two rock-solid performances. Although they gave up on match to Arkansas State in that weekend, the opener against archrival Air Force was a great way to start the season.

After coming off the road from their first three games, Navy dropped three tough matches at home. Losing twice to Dartmouth, 4-3 and 1-0, and once to UMBC 18-6, but they redeemed themselves by thrashing Dartmouth in a third game, winning 12-5.

Navy then lit on fire, starting a 6-2 streak at the Navy baseball round-robin Tournament in March of 2008, beating Iona and Rhode Island. They then traveled to Maryland Eastern Shore, where they won 20-6.

The next Navy Baseball Round-Robin Tournament came on March 14th, 208, and it proved to be another very successful one. Navy went 7-2 in the tournament. Some of the biggest wins were against Princeton (6-3), Belmont Abbey (11-9), and against Towson (8-7).

The next part of the season focused heavily on Patriot League opponents. Navy spent much of the next month on the road, where they won big against Lafayette, beating them 13-5, as well as beating Lehigh 4-2 and Bucknell 16-6. However, the Black Knights of Army proved to be too slippery for the Mids, outlasting them in 4 separate games, though only by a few points.

After returning home to play Holy Cross, winning big in 3 of 4 games against them, the Mids trounced Delaware State 17-5 in Dover, and geared up for the Patriot League Championship Tournament.

In the Patriot League Championships, Navy forced a tiebreaker game against Holy Cross, and won, to advance to the next round. Unfortunately, their bid fell short at the end, where Bucknell nipped the Midshipmen by a razor-thin 1 point each time. All things considered, however, Navy's season was a solid one, finishing strong and allowing Navy to give every opponent a serious run for their money. ⚓

Navy Men's Lacrosse going for the big hits to show off their

by Elena Yoshimura

Lacrosse at the Naval Academy is king of the spring. No other sport draws as many fans, as many midshipmen, or as much attention as the blue and gold jerseys of Navy "Lax."

One of the main reasons lacrosse is so appealing to midshipmen is of course the hard-hitting nature of the game, the huge competition and rivalry between the teams, and the incredible talent and exhibition of athleticism seen on the field of play.

The players for Navy are renowned for practicing three or more times per day during their peak training season, and all the midshipmen are anxious to see their incredible skills on display. Furthermore, the entrance of the Navy team under the Stars and Stripes at the beginning of every game is always enough to make even the most cynical midshipman

The 2007-2008 season proved to be yet another chapter in along history of thrilling Navy lacrosse seasons. With a 9-4 regular season record, as well as advancing to the quarterfinals in the NCAA tournament, Navy made yet another strong statement that it's lacrosse program is among the best in the country.

Navy's perennial archnemesis, Johns Hopkins University, got the better of them this year, but Navy put up a stiff resistance until the very end of the game.

One of the most exciting games this year was the upset over the University of North Carolina in the first round of the NCAA tournament. Although UNC was heavily favored to win, Navy pulled out an 8-7 win, thrilling Navy sports fans everywhere.

Another exciting match was the rainy victory over Bucknell. Winning it 4-3, Navy provided yet another incredible example of the Navy athletic motto of "Expect to Win."

After a season like this past one, the team held mixed feelings, after winning some great close contests as the underdog, but at the same time giving up close decisions ot major rivals Army and Johns Hopkins.

Hard work and dedication paid off this season for...

Navy Men's Tennis

by Charles Miller

Tennis is full of exciting turns and twists in the course of a single game. Navy tennis is no different, and all the Navy players fight tooth and nail for every point and every match.

While the long-standing rivalry with Army is of course the centerpiece of each year's season, Navy also has to battle numerous other programs, many of which are top-tier schools. This year, their opponents included UNC, Georgetown, Maryland, Villanova, and Yale. As most of their fall matches had no team scoring, their season really didn't take off until January, when the opened their first team scoring match by playing Campbell and East Tennessee State in Richmond, Virginia.

The team then had to face a string of tough opponents at home in the Brigade Sports Complex. Georgetown, Mount St. Mary's, Howard, and Villanova all showed up to try to get the best of the Midshipmen, but all of them walked away in defeat. The closest of the matches was Georgetown and Villanova, which Navy prevailed in both with a score of 6-1. Navy then moved on to College Park Maryland where they lost 7-0 to the Terrapins. The team had to defend their home turf again against UNC-Greensboro, George Mason, and Lafayette. Navy won all of those, and narrowly lost to Yale before the midpoint of the spring season.

After compiling a 9-3 record, Navy travelled to Clemson, South Carolina to take on the Tigers at home, and then went to Raleigh, North Carolina to play NC State. These were tough matches, and Navy lost both of them.

Not to be discouraged, Navy made up for those two bitter defeats by going on a 9-3 streak, en route to the Patriot League Tournament, where they beat Lafayette and Army to earn a spot in the NCAA Tournament.

Navy tennis had some tough games this past season, but they never let a few hard losses get to them. Always coming back for more, Team Bill could be counted on to beat Army, and to produce another quality winning season for Navy Tennis.

For Navy Men's Lightweight Crew

Every Stroke Counts

by Regina Feeks

The men's light weight crew team graduated fourteen rowers in the class of 2007. The lose forced dependence on the strength of the rising youngsters to fill the void left by the commissioning of 2007. The return of five varsity members ensured finely honed skills and an experience base to foster the new members. The team was determined to row a strong season and avoid the title of "rebuilding year". The Varsity lightweights had a strong fall season of Headraces, competing on a longer course. After sweeping the Navy Day Regatta, the team carried their momentum to place fifth in the Head of the Charles. Winning the Princeton Chase provided a memorable finish to the fall season and increased the team's moral as they began the long winter season off the water. Time on the erg during the winter season began to pay off with success in the spring. Navy's light weight program swept Princeton, Harvard, Columbia and Georgetown, with all navy boats winning their respective races. The first and third varsity boats faced tough competition from Yale, who brought their only defeat of the season. The Junior Varsity was undefeated and ranked second going into the Eastern Sprints championships. The team continued their streak of winning the Jope Cup, the lightweight team points championship, for the second year in a row. Team captain Midn 1/C Dave Bates led the team to an outstanding season. Bates said, "As plebes, the class of 2008 went undefeated and set a course record, this season was a great end to our collegiate rowing careers."

HeavyweightCrew

by Charles Miller

Like their lightweight brethren, the rowers of the heavyweight crew team spend endless hours morning and night prying on their oars and pulling on their ergs. The competition is equally as fierce and the races equally as grueling.

The 2007-2008 year saw a Navy heavyweight team that saw a strong season, finishing first in October's Navy Day Regatta in Philadelphia, as well as winning the George Washington Invitational in the springtime on the Potomac. Navy did well at the Head of the Charles Regatta in Boston, where the late October chill didn't deter them. The team finished ninth of 44 teams from all over the country.

Navy had a tough schedule for competition this year. The first varsity boat had to contend with national powerhouses Washington and Wisconsin, as well as the usual Harvard, Yale, and Columbia Ivy League types.

Navy made a strong showing in the Maxwell Stevenson Trophy race, but fell short to Columbia and Syracuse. After losing by less than 1.5 seconds to Syracuse, Navy became more competitive and thumped Cornell with a six-second win.

Navy got geared up for the next of their incredibly hard matches in a very tough schedule. Facing the number one ranked team in the country, the Washington Huskies, as well as the Under-23 Polish National Team, Navy dropped tough decisions to incredibly skilled competition.

The Eastern Sprints were the crowning event of the team's season. Navy won the petite final, and in doing so exacted revenge on Syracuse and Harvard for losses earlier in the season. The team also finished strong at the IRAs in June, finishing sixth in the petite final and 12 out of 24 overall in the varsity race.

For a team that had one of the toughest schedules in the country, Navy heavyweight crew, like all other Navy athletic teams, proved that its not the size of the dog in the fight, but the size of the fight in the dog that really matters in every competition.

Pledge in the Fall, Rush in the Spring

Everyday is Raceday

by Regina Feeks

The over whelming interest of the plebes in the fall boded well for the Navy Women's Crew. Interest exceeded that allowed by the roster when the team reformed in the fall. 2011 easily impressed the returning members of the team with their strength, speed and tenacity. The new wave of rowers formed a fiercely competivitve team. The mids swept the Navy Day Regatta. The varsity eight boat placed seventeenth in a field of thirty-nine at the Head of the Charles, a grueling three mile course. In the final race of the fall season the mids placed first and second in the Varsity Eight and Novice races. Spirits remained high through the so called "erg season", practices can become monotonous, and numbers dwindle, but this time is crucial for developing stamina necessary for spring competitions. After spring break training in Miami, the 2nd Varsity and Varsity Four beat out George Washington and Boston University at the Playfair Cup in New Jersey. On the nearby Potomac River at the George Washington Invitational the Second Varsity, Varsity Fours and Novice Eights placed one-two in many of their heats. Navy tied for the Patriot League Championship Regatta with first place brought in by the Second Varsity and Varsity Four shells. Bucknell University was awarded the championship title due to their victory in the Varsity Eight heat. Varsity rowers Kerry Hannon, Meredith Meehan and captain Fiona McFarland were named members of the all Patriot League rowing team. The Varsity Eight was invited to compete in the Windermere Cup in Seattle, Washington where they competed against nationally ranked Washington and Melbourne University of Australia. The annual race takes place on the first day of Seattle's yacht season. Thousands of spectators in attendance, including Admiral Fowler, saw Navy place second beating out the Australian rowers. The Team faced a crashing blow to morale near the of the season. Just days before Eastern Sprints Championships a rower in the Varsity Eight was removed from the team, resulting lineup shifts. The camaraderie from hundreds of hours of training brought the team together during these trying days and gained the team great success at sprints with all boats making it to finals. ⚓

Heroes of the Seas

by Bradley Craig

The Varsity Offshore Sailing Team (VOST) faces impending danger everytime they set sail. In order to champion the rough wind and high seas, each member of the team must perform each task to perfection in order to maintain swift speed and safety. With unfaltering execution, the team competed to achieve one of their most successful seasons in history.

The season began last summer in July of 2007, when a group of Navy sailors competed in the Regate des Ecoles Navales Etrangeres, a three-day competition among International Naval Academy teams in Brest, France. Competing was skipper Andrew Vaan who, with the help of crew members Kevin McGill, Mike Mullee, Matt Libby, and Noah Gray, won the regatta. This had been the second year in a row for Navy to win the international competition. Go Navy!.

As the academic year approached , the sailing team competed in the Around Long Island Race at the beginning of August in New York, placing second with their 66-foot sailboat "Zaraffa," led by team captain Matt Recker.

Shortly after the "Zaraffa" snatched silver, Navy was set sail in the Maryland Governors' Cup, a 70-mile overnight race from Annpolis to St. Mary's. Once again, Navy beat out their competition by placing first. The midshipmen were also awarded with The Patuxent Partners Award, honoring the boat with the best performance with onboard military personnel.

Among other spectacular achievements was Navy's first place finish in the McMillan Cup and the Kennedy Cup. To complete the season in March of 2008, the team earned a third place finish in the Inaugural Harbor Cup in Los Angeles, California.

The incredible season could not have been possible if not for the hard work and dedication provided by each member of the Offshore Sailing Team. The Naval Academy looks forward to the continuing years of triumph and success that has defined this team for so many memorable years. ⚓

Sailing over the yonder blue with Navy...

InterCollegiateSailing

by Charles Miller

The US Naval Academy Intercollegiate Sailing Team naturally has some big shoes to fill. As students at the centerpiece school for sailing and all things nautical, the midshipmen must work incredibly hard to fill the required shoes.

The Intercollegiate Sailing team had dozens of races for the entire year, running from September all the way through June of 2008. Navy placed very well at every meet, and even had a handful of All-Americans to show for their work this year. Team members Midshipman 1/C Charlotte Hill and Midshipman 2/C Mary Hesler were named All-Americans at the Intercollegiate Sailing Association National Championships in New York City. The women's team finished 11th overall and the coed combined team finished eighth.

The season started in September as the Mids travelled to Boston to take on MIT and Brown and then travelled to New York to take on SUNY Maritime College. The team placed well at Maritime, coming in sixth overall.

Navy also had its fair share of close calls over the season. One of the regattas in October, the TS Stern Sloop Event hosted by the College of Charleston, was one fraught with danger and excitement. The winds and waves were so high that the race committee boat was sunk. However, team captain Ian Gill looked at it in a more positive light, as he noted the experience gave them the "opportunity to compete in a variety on conditions and see some of our competition." A very true statement.

The women's team, the team racing team, the sloops team and Martin Sterling (single handed sailing) qualified for nationals. After a rainy and cold spring season the team really grew together at practice week in Newport, RI.

Team member MIDN 1/C Charlotte Hill noted that "We learned a lot as a team and we all grew up a lot too...this spring was a great season for Navy Sailing." Their record speaks for themselves. A great season it was for them, indeed. ⚓

Ffinally a Varsity Division One team for Navy

Women's Lacrosse

by Darryl Abriam

Midn 1/C Amanda Towey puts a powerful spin on her pass in the match versus American University.

The first Women's Lacrosse season went really well. The team worked extremely hard every day at practice and set the record for most games won in an inaugural season which was a great accomplishment. The entire season was very successful and rewarding and was shown through the NCAA record for most wins by a first year program. The team had a record of 13-4, was undefeated at home and was 4-2 at the Patriot League. Although it was the team's first year in division one, they truly bonded as a team. They were out on our field every day in the rain, snow, sleet or shine and it really brought the team closer together. Everyone gave their all and it always showed. All of the girls were amazing and everyone improved exponentially throughout the season. Coaching this years team was Cindy Timchal. According to 1/C Rosa, It's hard to summarize our head coach in a few sentences...Despite her quirky quotes, she really wanted us to succeed as a team. She always had really good pep talks before games and could always give us a good laugh. She never ceases to entertain us. We actually keep a quote book of funny quotes of things she says. It's no surprise that the most successful coach in history could set a record with a brand new division one program. She also had the support of some amazing assistant coaches who were there to fine-tune our skills and help make us the best team that we could be. Aside from coach Timchal coaching the team, they were also led by team captains 1/C Towey and 1/C Klingenstein. 4/C Dauernheim states that Towey was a great person on and off the field. She was condfident in what she does and was an example of a poised woman. In addition she was great at bringing everyone together. She also mentions that Klingenstein always had a positive attitude since she always had a nice and constant smile. Another great influence on the team was the leadership of the firsties. All of the seniors on the team contributed to leading the team in different ways. 1/C Blandon, was very good at making quick decisions and is one of the most vocal leaders on the team and anchored our defense as our starting goalies while 1/C Rosa was never afraid to stand up for her teammates and truly leads by example by the heart and sole she puts out on the field says 4/C Yohe. Next year will require this years 2/C to step up to the challenge. But 1/C Towey feels confident in the rising firsties. She mentions that Lauren Gillam has risen as a true leader on the team. She struggled with injuries but worked her way back into the starting lineup and has taken many of the underclass under her wing, including leading a bible study amongst the team. Sara Bushong also stepped up big this year and was definitely and impact player. You could count on her when she was called upon. The future of the team looks great comments 1/C Blandon. She sees 3/C Rawlick and Ruttum as the dynamic duo in offense and 4/C Nietsch, Decker, and Hill as the freshman trio. With the future looking good, the team has learned a lot of lessons this year that will help them next year. 4/C Fischer says that one of the things they learned is that the ice bath is not to be used for washing your hair and that everything you need to know in life is in coach's quote book. ⚓

Navy Men's Golf

by Charles Miller

Navy's varsity men's golf is one of the most envied varsity sports at the Naval Academy. Not only do they get to wear nice comfortable unforms and ply their trade in beautiful green fields, but the Navy golf team doesn't have to wear protective pads, helmets, or body armor.

The 2007-2008 season was a successful one, given the multitude of changes that the team had to adapt to and overcome during the academic year. Finding time to practice on the putting greens and the golf course was a challenge, but the team managed to find a way to get it done.

Navy started the season off in September at the Navy Fall Classic tournament at home in Annapolis. Navy placed second and sixth out of 17 teams in two days of competition. Navy then went on to compete at the Sea Trail Invitational in Sunset Beach, North Carolina, where they placed 12th of 19 teams. Navy geared up from a less-than-perfect performance at this tournament and went on to beat Army 6.5-4.5 at home.

Navy spent the winter trying to keep the rust off the swings, and started the spring season in March at the George Washington Invitational in Bethany Beach, Delaware. Navy finished 12th out of 20 teams in the first day of competition, but finished the second day in third place overall.

After a successfull start to the spring season, the team went to Grasonville, Maryland and finished ninth out of 19 teams at the Lacrosse Homes Invitational. The NC State Invitational intercollegiate tournament was a tough one for Navy, but their performance at the Navy Spring Invitational as well as at the Patriot League Championships just a week later proved to be the best of the entire year. Navy finished fourth and first out of 18 teams in two days of competing at the Navy Spring Invitational.

The Patriot League Championships in Bethlehem, Pennsylvania, was a great cap to the year. Navy garnered first and second place in two days of competing against six other teams.

Navy golf had ups and downs like any other team, but finished strong in its biggest competitions- against Army and at the Patriot League Championships. One stroke at a time is all it took for a solid year of Navy golf.

The Naval Academy boxers has a successful year both as a team and as individuals. Going beyond the competion of Brigade boxing, twelve Midshipmen represented the Naval Academy at the Collegiate National Championships in Reno, Nevada.

Before the National Championships, the Naval Academy boxers competed at the Mid-West Regional Championship and had seven individual regional champions and ended as the team champions.

At the Collegiate National Championships, the team fought hard and earned a second place finish overall for the team and boasted three individual national champions: Midshipman 1/C Jeff Laupola, 2/C Antone Aku, and 3/C Michael Steadman. Midshipman 1/C Mikoto Yoshida and 3/C Jeremiah Olver finished as natioanl runner-ups.

Navy Men's Club Lacrosse

Dominating the Field

by Bradley Craig

Navy Men's Club Lacrosse has always had to compete with the varsity team for attention and funding. After being briefly cancelled for a year or two under budget reorganizations, the team came back this year in full force. Many of the team's players had extensive experience on high shcool varsity teams or even in past years on the Navy varsity team.

The 2008 season was a standout one, with the team finishing with a 10-4 record. Navy beat some of their biggest rivals this season, including Johns Hopkins, Duke, and Delaware. Their biggest margins of victory came against University of Baltimore, Johns Hopkins, and Duke University.

Club lacrosse had to compete with both the varsity team and the women's team for field space. Led by team captain MIDN 1/C Graham Van Hook, the team racked up win after win, going 4-2 at home and winning most of their games on the road throughout the springtime season. Navy club lacrosse beat their perennial archnemesis Johns Hopkins at their home field for the season opening game.

Navy Club Lax had a great start to the season with its big wins over Johns Hopkins, Morgan State, and Delaware. All the games that Navy played were against other members of the NCLL, or National Collegiate Lacrosse League. Even at the club level, the standard of play for the game is much higher than many people would expect. The games are incredibly close, often decided in overtime, and the players' abilities are on par with the level found in NCAA Division I or Division II matches. Navy's razor thin margins of victory over Delaware, Washington College, and UMBC show how the games were all fought tooth and nail, right down to the last minute of each period.

The biggest thing that Navy club lacrosse played for over the past two years was the memory of Ben Carr. A member of the class of 2008, his closest friends and classmates were the leaders of the team this year. After the inaugural Ben Carr Memorial Lacrosse game in April 2007, the team demonstrated that the grief caused by the loss of their classmate could be channeled into an expect to win attitude.

Men's club volleyball is one of the least publicized club sports at the Naval ACademy, but they don't play for fame or accolades from the Annapolis Capitol. Most of the players on the team have had experience at the junior or senior high school level of play, but they all compete just to win and to have fun.

The men's team for the 2008 season consisted of 14 players, plus a coach, as well as officer and enlisted representatives. For this past year, the team captain was Midshipman 1/C Peter Santos, hailing from Chula Vista, California. The team had an incredible mix of people, nationalities, and even languages. Some members of the team were from Lithuania and Singapore, while others were from a half-dozen different American states.

The men's team started their season in late September, going head-to-head against archrival Air Force. The team proved up to the task, however, as they won the series 3-2. They then traveled to the Virginia Tech Tournament in October, followed by the Maryland Fall Tournament. Navy performed well at this tournament, beating Villanova, University of Pennsylvania, and the "B" teams from UVA and Delaware. This allowed them to advance to the top team pool play, where they narrowly lost 1-2 to the Maryland and Delaware "A" teams.

Navy's biggest wins of the year were against a #15 ranked Maryland team, whom they beat 2-0 in a 3 game match at the EIVA Divisional Play Tournament in February. Also, Navy won the UNC-Chapel Hill Tournament in March of 2008, which was their first tournament victory of the season. Although Penn State continued to give them the slip, beating Navy in a forced 3-game match, Navy kept it close and clawed for each point and every save.

Navy men's volleyball rarely gets the publicity or regonition they might deserve, after compiling such a strong showing this year, but they play for the love of the game, and the thrill of winning. Fame isn't their bread and butter. ⚓

The Academy's Club Tennis Team competed in 9 dual matches throughout the year, only losing once when the women had to play men. In September, the Team competed in the "Maryland Club Tennis Fall Invitational" placing 5th and 8th out of a competitive 14 teams. The following month, two teams went to compete in the "USTA/VA Fall invitational." Here the team leveled their opponents placing 1st and 5th out of 15 teams. In April, the team took an astonishing 3rd out of 16 at the University of Delaware Tournament. To finish off the season, the women traveled to Cary, North Carolina to compete against 63 other teams for the 2008 USTA National Campus Championship. Here, the women finished 28th in the nation. The women were also presented as runner-up for the Institutional Ace Award, awarded by NIRSA/USTA for the best development of a Tennis program on a campus.

This year, 6 men were added to the team, which allowed them to compete in co-ed USTA/NIRSA Tennis on Campus Program. The men played at many matches and helped train the women at practices. The addition of men to the was the "best way to ensure enough high quality local, regional, and national competition for the women in the program," said Team Captain 1/C Anna Switzer.

The rest of the team's roster included: 1/C Kastner, 2/C Wydra, 2/C Datko, 2/C Montoya, 2/C Sakaio, 3/C Dias, 3/C Guthrie, 4/C Cubilo, 4/C Ruffin.

Navy Women's Softball

by Charles Miller

Navy Womens Softball, like men's baseball, has a tall order to fill, day in and day out, they have to find a way to win. Always playing against teams that have more time to devote themselves to the sport, the Navy ladies have to fight tooth and nail at every game.

The softball season usually begins in October, and runs through the middle of November. In the 2007 season, Navy had to fight West Virginia University, Delaware, and Loyola. Overseen by their Officer representative, LCDR Natasha Smith, the team fared well against all of their opponents. Their enlisted help included QMCS Perry Everix (22nd Company SEL) and OS1 Jason Rebholz. Their midshipman leadership centered around Midshipman 1/C Laura Zimmerman (team captain and club president) and Midshipman 1/C Morgan Otto ( club vice-president). Treasurer Makana Young and Secretary Alex Gioello were also instrumental in running the organization in tiptop condition.

This excellent leadership also seemed to have paid off in the long run over the season. In addition to tournaments and non-league games, this year Navy softball participated in the National Club Softball Association as part of the Mid Atlantic North Conference. Navy finished first in this conference with a win-loss record of 11-1. The team's first place finish earned them a bid to the NCSA World Series.

Team captain and club president Laura Zimmerman commented that "The dedication of the team's players speaks volumes about the spirit of Midshipmen, and this young team is a powerhouse to keep an eye on in the future." With an 11-1 record, a first-place conference ranking, and a trip to the NCSA World Series, the team's clearly can walk the walk and talk the talk.

Navy Women's Rugby is going...

FullSpeedAhead

by Spencer A. Jurkiewicz

Navy Women's Rugby is one of the most popular sports for females at the Naval Academy. With a team roster that boasts over 30 players, nearly every company has at least a few members that play for "NWR", as it is more popularly known. As one of only four varsity sports for female athletes, it naturally garners a good bit of attention from rugby fans as well as women's sports enthusiasts in general.

Led by head coach Sue Parker and assistant coaches Renee Rucinsky, Jessica Hammond, and Lisa Rowe, the women's rugby team could usually be found practicing out on Hospital Point or on Farragut Field (which is where many of their matches were held). The women's rugby team also had one of the most successful seasons of any sport here at the Academy. In the fall season, the "A" Team garnered a 10-1-1 record, while beating Army and Air Force. The "B" Team was equally impressive, going 6-2-2 in the fall season, beating Amy and tying Air Force.

The Spring 2008 season was just as successful, as the team went on to dominate at tournaments and matches all across the country. Women's Rugby won against UMBC in February, and then won the VWIT Tournament in March. They then beat Princeton 115-3 two weeks later, and finished second in the MARFU Finals in Richmond. They also finished second in the Cherry Blossom tournament in Washington, DC. After such a strong season, NWR was in the Sweet Sixteen Championship in New Mexico, where they won handily. Their final game was in the Final Four match in California, which capped off a strong season with a strong finish. BZ to Navy Women's Rugby for hitting them hard! ⚓

Navy Men's Rugby knows How to Hit em' Hard

When they're Down

by Sian Stimpert

Hitting hard and hitting fast, that's what the Men's Navy Rugby team is all about. This season proved to be a great one with some excellent games displaying the "Elegant Violence" which they are so recognized for around the Yard. The Men's Rugby team is moving up the chain as they are now a Club A team. Sooner or later they will gain Varsity status, but for now they all enjoy it the way it is as well as getting a bit dirty!

The season proved to be a wining one. It began early in the cold month of February against Colorado State and Utah. The team won and continued their winning streak with a win against Norfolk Blues Men's Club. Unfortunately, they couldn't pull out a win in the MARFU torunament held in Virginia. Despite thier efforts, they lost to Penn State-the only loss in the season. Some games were cancelled during the seasondue to weather, but the ever popular Army Navy Classic was of course on! The classic has been an annual tradition now for the last 6 years years since it started back in 2002. The boys went all out at the Navy Marine Corps Stadium on April 5th and came out victorious with a 19-7 win!

No doubt about it the team wouldn't have had such success if it wasn't for the coaching skills of Head Coach Mike Flanagan. He had some help from other assistant coaches and the club's O-rep Major Styskal. Club President Midn 1/C Dane Sagerholm and Team Captain Midn 1/C Robert Sise also showed great leadership from the many first class on the team. Everymember of the team stepped up and played well this year. The underclass said goodbye to the firsties who will be venturing out into the fleet, but they will not be forgotten. Next season looks promising as it does every year when tryouts begin. More than 100 men try out every year in hopes to play rugby and become a part of the brtoherhood of Navy Rugby team.

Inagural Military Hockey Tournament Champions 2008: Winningest Class in Navy Hockey History

NewRink NewCoach NewLeague

by Jim Guiberson

This year the Navy hockey enjoyed a season full of firsts. The Mids celebrated the grand opening of their new rink, the McMullen Hockey Arena at the Brigade Sports Complex; welcomed a new Head Coach, former offensive assistant Michael Fox; and entered the toughest league in the American Collegiate Hockey Association (ACHA) Division-1: the Eastern States Collegiate Hockey League (ESCHL). The team competed in an unprecedented 39 games - more contests than any other collegiate team at the Academy - and finished with a 20-18-1 record (that's 20 wins, 28 losses, and 1 overtime loss for you hockey novices). Combined with last year's 20-10-1 record, this marked the first time in history that Navy hockey has garnered back-to-back 20-win campaigns.

The Class of 2008 also became the first class in Navy hockey history to have 4-straight winning seasons. The Firsties accrued more wins - 76 - than any other class. Navy hockey's Class of 2008 finished their stellar careers with a Navy best 76-57-5 record.

Other team highlights include wins over #3-ranked Delaware, #10-ranked West Chester, and drubbings of VMI, the Citadel, and the University of Virginia in the inaugural Military Hockey Tournament. The Mids gave eventual league champion Penn State a scare in the ESCHL semi-finals, falling to the Nittany Lions 3-2 in a tight checking affair in front of a standing room only McMullen Arena crowd. The team was rewarded in the national polls with a final #26-ranking. Talk about a tough schedule: the Mids competed against 8 of the teams ranked in the top-30 of the final ACHA D-1 poll.

Individual accolades were showered on several players. Firstie defenseman Donnie Horner was named to the ACHA D-1 All-Star Team - the second year in a row that a Navy player earned national recognition. "DH" also earned the ESCHL's Sportsmanship Award, was named a second team all-league defenseman, and was honored as the NAAA Male Club Sport Athlete of the Year. Forward Nick Schwob '08 became a member of Navy's elite 100-point club, and was named a second team ESCHL all-star. Joining Horner and Schwob as an ESCHL second team selection was forward Matt Swezey '09, who led the team in scoring with 30 goals and 22 assists.

Continuing a long tradition of strong performance in the classroom, Navy hockey had 8 players named ACHA Academic All-Americans. Firsties Derek Johnson and Adam Shields were joined on the Academic All-American roster by juniors Charlie Daniel, Matt Gross, Jeff Martin, Matt Swezey, Jon Westerman, and Eric Bowen.

Graduating seniors Brian Gleason (Special Ops), Donnie Horner (SWO), Derek Johnson (Navy Pilot), Nick Schwob (Naval Flight Officer), Andrew Stoner (Navy Pilot), and Adam Shields (Navy Pilot) have set the bar very high for future Navy hockey classes. Go Navy Hockey!

Navy Triathlon

by Darryl Abriam

Navy triathlon had a very successful season this year. In the fall, they raced at the Annapolis Triathlon, General Smallwood, the Nation's Triathlon, and Osprey. The first three were Olympic distances: 1500m swim, 40km bike, 10km run and the last was a sprint: 800m swim, 20km bike, 5km run. During the spring, they competed in the Lonestar Quarter Ironman, USAT Collegiate National Championship, St. Anthony's Triathlon, and the Colombia Triathlon. The men's team took 7th of 58 teams, the women's 10th of 48, and the combined team placed 5th of 124. The team consisted of nine 1/C (Sam Albert, Amy Alexander, Erik Bates, John Dubiel, Melisa Hough, Ian Kilpatrick, Jenn Lloyd, Christina Partridge, and Tara Plotino), six 2/C (Kyle Mayo, Derek Oskutis, Spencer Waters, Tony Yeager, Darby Driscoll, and Kyle Hooker), four 3/C (Tyler Sharp, Andrew Kuehl, Kalea Middendorf, and Kathryn Whichard), and three 4/C (Wes Bochner, Jake Johnson, and Kirby Lattwein): all very talented and hardworking individuals and each raced well this year. Midn 1/C Partridge, one of the two team captains said that Midn 1/C Amy Alexander led the girls team, winning top 5 for overall females in every race this year, including Nationals where she raced a 2:13:15 at Nationals this year, and that Derek Oskutis was awarded his Pro card from USA Triathlon in May. He placed in the top 5 over all men in every race they competed in, usually taking top 2. He raced a 1:53:50 in the first race of the season. In addition Midn 2/C Tyler Sharp, not only did he race the races previously listed, but he also took 9th overall at the Great Floridian Ironman Distance Triathlon in October with a time of 10:43:25. The team was also held together by the co-captain` 1/C Ian Kilpatrick and a 2001 graduate Peter Penzell. 4/C Wes Bocher states that their coach guided them all into making their own workout plans and he would coach a weekly swim workout. In addition, he was always there to encourage the team and facilitated the success of the team by making the team run smoothly. In addition to the Bates factor, a big part of the team is the support that the teammates had for each other. The plebes were welcomed into the team early on and this helped them get started on improving themselves sooner. Midn 4/C Jake Johnson did triathlons throughout his time at NAPS and even competed in Collegiate Nationals last year but he made vast improvements this year and will continue to improve and contribute to the team in years to come. Despite having to wear pink cammies, everyone on the team had a great time this year and are looking forward for the next season. ⚓

Navy Club Cycling

by Brooks Rogers

Few teams on the yard can compare to the Naval Academy Club Cycling team. Not only is their sport one of the most demanding endurance sports known to man but the camaraderie shared among these midshipman is second to none.

Often found on a set of rollers or eating pumpernickel bread in the back of the fun bus, Captain Ryan McFeely lead the Club Cycling team to a 2nd place finish in the Atlantic Coast Collegiate Cycling Conference. Ryan's season included 5 victories to give him 3rd place overall in the Men's A category. Erin Moss also made the podium with a 1st place overall finish in the Women's A category as well as Paul Lietzan who finished 3rd overall in the Men's B category.

To achieve these levels of success the cyclists had to spend countless hours on the bike. It was common to see the team pedaling away on trainers in 7th wing but what you may not have seen were the 5 hour plus long rides on the weekends and the high speed race training sessions around Quiet Water's park. This dedication to the sport made Navy Cycling a force to be reckoned with, even for the teams whose rosters included professional cyclists.

As a team Navy racked up 17 first place finishes, 24 second place finishes, and 13 third place finishes over the course of the season. Additionally, Men's A & B and Women's A all won the Team Time Trial at the conference championship.

Other notable team achievements include an impressive set of finishes at Nationals. Women's A won the Team Time Trial and Men's A & B finished 2nd and 3rd respectively. These team efforts along with some impressive individual performances gave Navy Cycling the win over Army and Air Force in the inaugural academy shootout.

The Navy Cycling Club is not just about ripping up the pedals or beating the bushy haired students from the 32 other universities of the conference to the finish line, this group of well groomed speedaholics really knows what it means to be a team. More than just team outings and rides to the airport, this team really became good friends and made countless memories both on and off the bike.

Dedication, adaptation, and endurance are all requirements for all team members. The strengths these cyclist learn on this team are sure to serve them well as Navy and Marine Corps Officers.

TwentySix.Two

by Nick Vandal

The Naval Academy Marathon Club had a great season during the 2007-2008 academic year. In September, the team participated in the first head-to-head long-distance road race against Army and Air Force at the Joint Bases Half-Marathon. Both the Men's and the Women's teams emerged victorious and swept both Service Academy Championship Cups. In the men's individual race, 2/C Seth Deaton ran a 1:17:34 and placed first overall in the race, while 2/C Jason Beaudwin placed third overall, with a time of 1:20:50. In the women's race, Navy swept the top three positions, with 2/C Tara Lenn coming in at 1:28:06, 1/C Lindsey Slyman running a 1:36:22, and 1/C Jenny Smith running a 1:38:04.

In October, the team travelled to Chicago to take part in the marathon there. The team survived sweltering temperatures that reached a high of 88°F two hours after the start of the race. Although the entire Navy team completed the run through "Death Valley", race organizers shut down the race after 3 _ hours due to the excessive heat.

In November, members of the elite ultra-marathon subsection of the Marathon Team competed in the JFK 50 Miler. The race is inspired President John F. Kennedy challenging his military officers to meet the requirements that Teddy Roosevelt had set for his own military officers at the dawn of the 20th Century. That Roosevelt requirement was for all military officers to be able to cover 50 miles on foot in 20 hours to maintain their commissions. The Team successfully defended the Kennedy Cup, which is awarded to the top-finishing military team. The winning USNA team was composed of 2/C Nick Vandal (6:58:05), 2/C Jason Beaudwin (7:09:59), 1/C Matthew Davis (7:36:18), 3/C J.D. O'Connor (7:37:46), and 1/C Guillerino Arguello (7:42:08).

Following winter break, the team travelled to sunny Miami, to compete in the Miami Marathon. The race was a great way to break up the Dark Ages and provided a great opportunity to get a final qualifying race before the Boston Marathon.

In April, the team traveled to Boston, to compete in the 112th running of the Boston Marathon. Boston is the oldest and most prestigious marathon in the world, which requires strict qualifying times in order to gain entrance. The race is the team's national level competition, and the focus of an entire year's worth of training. Out of a field of nearly 22,000 runners, 2/C Jason Beaudwin placed 529 (2:51:44), 3/C Josh Collins placed 692 (2:54:44), and 1/C Jordan Adler placed 701 (2:54:51).

Overall, it was a highly successfully year for the Marathon Team, with numerous Personal Records (PRs) and great team accomplishments.

Taking Some Names

by Sian Stimpert

What better way to channel your anger than through a little fighting?

The Karate Team is all about that and more. Not only is it a great way to stay in shape, it is also a great way to discipline yourself and develop self confidence.

The team trains every afternoon in the sweaty Dojo on the second deck of Lejeune. There they practice the basics: katas (forms) and kumite (sparring/fighting). A typical day of practice for the group includes an intense warm-up and stretching period followed by free-sparring and perfecting technique.

Experience is not required although some of the students already have a solid background in a different martial art whether it be Tae Kwon Do, Tang Soo Do, Kung Fu, Shotokan or Aikido. The students new to martial arts are quickly brought up to speed with the intense training and the help of the upper ranks.

The team's instructor, Coach John Critzos, has achieved his 6th degree Master's black belt in the art under Korean Master Ki Whang Kim. Coach Critzos' heritage adds a Korean mix to the karate-do style.

The team was lead this year by Midn 2/C Stephanie Maa who wears her 3rd degree black belt with pride. She has trained in a Traditional Tae Kwon Do style for nine years.

The team represents the United States Naval Academy well at tournaments such as the Eastern Regionals which is held in April. In Karate Competitions in New York, Pennsylvania, and Maryland the team routinely walks away with several victors in all levels of sparring and form competitions.

Originally sanctioned as a Naval Academy ECA in 1999, Navy Club Soccer continues to bring non-varsity soccer players of superior quality together to represent the Naval Academy in local, regional, and national competitions. Club Soccer players all have a great desire to play the "beautiful game". Each member of the team sacrifices their free time to practice and play games, as the Club Soccer team is not excused from parades, formations, or any other mandatory Brigade events.

Relegated to minimal field space, the team still managed to post a winning record (14-8-2). The Club Soccer team finished the fall season with a trip to the NIRSA National Championships, where they finished as one of the top twenty-five teams in the country. The only thing holding the Club Soccer team back from a picturesque season is that Army could not cobble a team together to face Navy on the field.

After a fantastic fall season, the Club Soccer team prepared to face a less greuling spring schedule. Nine firsties prepared to graduate and four members of the fall squad advanced onto the varsity soccer team: 3/c Taylor Toombs 3/c Tyler Bristol 3/c Kevin Rodrigo 4/c Chris Anderson. Forced to replace thirteen of twenty members, the team focused on drawing out new talent from the Brigade. The spring squad meshed together and prepared to form the back bone of the Fall 2008 team. ⚓

Navy Club Pistol

by Charles Miller

The Naval Academy pistol team is one of the best in the country. After the 2007-2008 season, the men's team was literally the best in the country, and the women's team was the second-best.

The Navy pistol team had a solid 2007-2008 season, one that was capped with a National Championship title. The team was led by Club President Midshipman 1/C Andrew Bock and Club Vice-President Rachel Florea.

Some of Navy's biggest matches of the year came in the winter and spring of 2008. Fresh off of Christmas break, Navy stayed at home to face off against the Ohio State Buckeyes. The team did quite well, with Midshipman 1/C Tucker Stachitas taking first place in the Standard, Free, and Air pistol events.

The difference between the Standard, Free, and Air Pistol courses is significant. Air Pistol is shot at 10 meters with a single-shot air pistol that propels a pellet with compressed air. In the men's event, the shooter has 1hour and 45 minutes to complete 60 record shots. In the women's event, the shooter has 1 hour 15 to complete 40 record shots.

The Men's .22 event, Standard Pistol is shot at 25 meters with a .22 that carries a 5 round magazine. The course of fire is separated into three events: Slow, Timed, and Rapid. 20 record shots are fired in each event, totaling 60 shots. In slow, the shooter has 2 minutes 30 seconds per 5 rounds; timed allows 20 seconds per 5 rounds; and rapid allow 10 seconds per 5 rounds.

The Women's .22 event, Sport pistol is also shot at 25 meters with a .22 that carries a 5 round magazine. The course of fire is separated into two events: Slow and Duel. Each event has 30 record shots, totaling 60 shots. Slow allows 5 minutes per 5 rounds. In duel, with a 5 round magazine, the shooter stands at the ready while the target is to edge. After 7 seconds, the target faces for 3 seconds in which the shooter must get off a shot. After 3 seconds the target returns to edge and the shooter returns to the ready, beginning the process again. This is repeated for all 5 rounds.

Free Pistol is very similar to air. It's shot with a single-shot .22 at 50 meters. The shooter is allotted 2 hours to complete 60 record shots.

Navy Pistol had a stellar 2008 season, and 2009 looks to be equally as good. ⚓

Foiled yet Again

by Marley Cassels

Mids going up to the MacD gym sometimes stop on the stairs and stare at the unfamiliar sport practicing in the MacD basketball courts–fencing. The USNA fencing team practices every day after dinner, the only time that the ECA can fit in.

"We could use club status and a coach," said MIDN 1/C Tom Kilcline, the fencing team captain. "But I'm very proud of the effort everyone puts in." Inexperienced fencers learn from those who fenced before coming to the academy. "People are our team's biggest strength. Since we don't have a coach or easy practice times, the only people who stick with the team are dedicated to making it succeed," said Kilcline.

Despite these hurdles, the fencing team managed to bring home some brass this year, with the men's sabre team taking second at both the South Atlantic Conference Championships and the Baltimore Washington Collegiate Fencing Conference, and the foil team bringing in a third place finish at Baltimore Washington. The team isn't just focused on winning, though.

"My proudest moment was when the women's sabre team took on Army and actually got a lot of points against a very experienced team. Our women's sabre team is the first that I got to see completely develop when I was team captain," said Kilcline.

Some of Navy's more experienced fencers brought home individual honors as well. MIDN 1/C Tom Kilcline took third in sabre at the South Atlantic Conference, MIDN 1/C Chris Waddell took first in sabre at Baltimore Washington, and MIDN 1/C Joel Katz took first in épée at Nationals.

The fencing team continues to grow, fielding two women's teams at Nationals for the first time. Plans for the future include trying to obtain Club status so that the team can have a steady coach and the Naval Academy can host meets. The team concluded the year by winning the first ever "Spirit of Fencing Award" at Club Nationals, given to the team which had overcome hardship to compete.

The team received at Nationals the Spirit of Fencing Award, pictured in the front row. The award was sponsored by the College of William and Mary, who lost their fencing coach early this year in a car accident.

Navy Powerlifting - where men are men, and women are too...

LightWeightBaby

by Eric Smitley

Not many people on the yard know what powerlifting is or that we even have our own gym - so here is a glimpse of what a day in the shoes of a navy meat head is like.

We wake up before the sun rises, run the rocks along farragut and then get back to our rooms, swallow three raw eggs and chug a shake for our first protein fix of the day. But seriously, we don't wake up early at all. In fact, most of us sleep in as late as possible to let our bodies recover from the previous day's lift and we can't stand running because it lowers the amount of weight we can squat. Every week we train with the ultimate goal of qualifying to compete at Nationals.

We have special training techniques that help us accomplish our goals. My personal favorite is using chains on squat. We have four sets of 20 to 30 lb chain links which hang from the ends of the bar and dangle down to the ground. As we squat, the amount of weight on the bar decreases as the chain links gather on the floor. This enables us to push ourselves further by having the maximum amount of weight in the hole - which is the hardest part of a squat when you have heavy weight on the bar, and an increasing amount of weight as we rise out of the hole to the lock out position.

We also have special diets. Most of us take supplements such as whey protein, creatine, and energy drinks to give us an extra boost. We also try to eat big meals at tables. We start off with a plate full of salad, and then a copious serving of whatever king hall serves us, and usually a few items from the protein cart such as hard boiled eggs, cottage cheese, or tuna.

In the end, being a Navy Powerlifter is rewarding. Have more discipline, more drive and more desire to improve. We have respect for our body's limitations and are always striving to break barries and get past plateaus. It is what we do on a day to day basis that forms our habits, and it is our habits that form our lifestyle, and the powerlifting lifestyle will always be a part of every member on the team.

Navy Spirit

by Elena Yoshimura

Navy Cheerleading is a sport unlike what most people think; it incorporates agility, strength, positive body control, spirit, and courage. The cheerleaders are visible in many Navy athletic competitions, spirit events, and Navy support activities. They use their athletic abilities, to contribute to other Navy teams by encouraging fans to support Navy and increase enthusiasm for the game.

The team decided to expand this year, adding an all-girl group to join the sideline "blue team" for the fall. Currently the team consists of both male and female and is made up of two squads, the Varsity level squad is referred to as the Blue team and the JV level squad is referred to as the Gold team. They contribute many hours of practice a week perfecting stunting, pyramids, tumbling, and team conditioning. Their efforts are visible at Navy athletic competitions and performances at various Navy events and their own competitions.

The team performed in Baltimore at the Army Navy Gala where they pieced together a routine of both great difficulty and creativity, clearly out performing Army. They are seen at every home football game and continue their support for Navy throughout the year.

"Bill the Goat is a friend of Navy children fans, an antagonist of the opposing teams fans and mascot (always picking fights) and the mid that Mids are not allowed to be towards the midshipman. He is everything a Midshipman aspires to be because his character is cool and ready to party with out a care for any rule because he is Bill the Goat," says Midn 3/C Daniel P. Hanley. Bill the Goat encourages the Brigade of Midshipmen and Navy fans to actively participate at each game, which sometimes directly affects the performance of the athletes. He encompasses the Navy fighting spirit and the midshipman's enthusiasm for Navy athletics.

The Navy canoneers are also an important part of every game, firing the cannon every time Navy scores.

Lying on the ground taking this photo as rifles flew above my head I found myself in a position where I had great appreciation for the skills of these Midshipmen, if they were to slip up, making even the slightest mistake I would find four, eleven pound, rifles giving me a not so pleasant kiss in the face. Knowing their skills and trusting their abilities I was able to capture a glimpse of the action which the Jolly Rodgers preform day in and day out.

Silent Drill

Soaring to new heights

by: Julia Kaelberer

You see them every afternoon as you pass by on your way to MacDonough Hall for a work out, Lejeune for a swim, or simply on a run around the yard, faithfully practicing outside of seventh wing, they are the Silent Drill team. It is hard to mistake their talent as they preform, the poise, discipline, and precision all come together almost as routine to them as breathing. They call on their skills to shock and awe audiences from all across the country as they define the all too popular phrase "positive control of your rifle".

The "Jolly Rogers" as they are commonly known have received many accolades this past year to include their placement of second place in the Cornell University Invitational Drill Meet, the XLVIII Villanova University Invitational Drill meet and their second place overall in Armed Drill and 3/C Graefen and 3/C Shoenberger's performance at the Cornell University Invitational Drill meet which gave them third place for the two-man trick.

Their tricks include the port spin, back over port spin, turbo, bomb burst, double back over port spin, and many other tricks. These tricks are preformed with a M-14 rifle, weighing eleven pounds. The sixteen person team is under the direction of Midshipman 1/C William Inch is said to be able to take its first year members and teach them to master these moves in the first few weeks of joining the team, even those without prior experience.

These midshipmen are proud to claim the title of "The Commandants Own" and proudly represent that title in everything they do.

United States Naval Academy Colorguard

March On The Colors

by Julia Kaelberer

When you turn on any patriotic movie, speech, or see a patriotic picture the thing that stands out are the colors of the United States of America. This symbol is what we fight to defend. It is a symbol that we proudly display. The United States Naval Academy Color Guard is tasked to not only defend and display these colors proudly they are also tasked with doing so in the most dignified manner.

You can see their dedication as you watch them in parades, ceremonies, or even out in T-Court for each noon meal formation. The wind flows through the fabric, captivating each audience, the precision of the riflemen sting true as you hear the crisp movement of their rifles, and the ever impressive drill movements all come together to make this group of Midshipmen proud to claim the title of the United States Naval Academy Color Guard.

The Brigade Color Guard consists of the select few midshipmen who are entrusted with carrying the Colors of our Nation, Brigade, Corps, and Fleet. The team prides itself as the face of the brigade at many events year-round including brigade and professional sporting events, formations, parades, ceremonies and drill competitions. The Color Guard can be seen at each noon meal formation taking the steps one-by-one outside in T-Court and at each formal parade marching with pride and poise on Worden Field.

The Color Guard attended drill competitions at the 48th Annual Villanova University Invitational Drill Meet, the Tulane NROTC Mardi Gras Drill Meet, and Southern California Invitational Drill Meet, taking home first place at both Tulane and Southern California.

and the Beat goes ON

by Marley Cassels

The Drum and Bugle Corps experienced some changes this year, which meant a flexible fall schedule. "We were expecting to have around 140 people this year but could only have 100. As a result, we had to make significant cuts after an audition process," said Midn 1/C Kyle Corry, D&B Fall Corps Commander.

The down-sized Corps still had opportunities to perform around the Yard and around the country starting during Plebe Summer and continuing through the Academic Year. "During the academic year we play at parades, march overs, football games, and a few other sporting events throughout the year. We also compete in the inter-service academy Drum and Bugle Corps competition each year which we have won for the past three years. In this competition we compete against the Air Force and Coast Guard Academies," said Corry.

The D&B has the opportunity to travel with the football team during the fall semester. "Trips this year include traveling to all away football games which includes our 5th consecutive bowl game. We also traveled to the Pentagon and to the Admirals ' and Generals' Gala in Baltimore before the Army/Navy game," Corry explained.

Despite changes, the oldest drum and bugle corps in the nation continues to perform whenever possible.

march to a different DRUMMER

by Marley Cassels

Pipes and Drums got off to an early start this year. "MIDN 2/C Jamie Brown really set the tone for Pipes and Drums when he went out and played his pipes for the plebes as they finished their first regimental run this summer," said MIDN 1/C Rob Malcolm, Pipes & Drums Commander.

Pipers, drummers, and dancers committed hours weekly to practicing and perfecting songs and dances to perform for the Brigade, parents, and football audiences.

"Our sound quality and repertoire of the Pipes and Drums increased dramatically last year, and we are continuing that growth this year," said Malcolm. The Brigade was exposed to performances every day at formation and at every parade in the fall and spring.

Parades and football games were the major focus for the fall semester, as the Pipes and Drums traveled to Notre Dame to perform at the game that Reversed-the-Curse.

"In the spring, we're playing in New York City's Tartan Day Parade, a celebration of Scottish heritage," said Malcolm. The growth that Pipes and Drums experiences every year holds promise for midshipmen to continue participating in this multicultural tradition.⚓

The 2007 production of the Halloween and All Saint Day Concert marks the 10th annual production of one of the most popular events of the Naval Academy. Selling out the 4,000 available tickets every year, the concert takes place at the beautiful Brigade of Midshipmen chapel and features Master organist Monte Maxwell along with a vast array of midshipmen talent. The Halloween Concert includes music from Phantom of the Opera, Les Miserables, and other well known and loved melodies, including classical pieces such as Toccata and Fugue in D Minor. Blending light, sound, and special effects, the concert is themed to celebrate the triumph of good over evil. This theme of darkness to light is portrayed through music, costumes, acting, and a spectacular lights display which totals to almost a half a million dollars in cost. The incredible music, special effects, and talent never fails to impress.

Having been part of the Halloween Concert team for the past two years, the comraderie, dedication, and time spent rehearsing to create such an incredible show has been well worth the effort. The magic and energy this concert creates within the Chapel draws audience members from all over the country and brings them back for many years to come. There is truly an incredible bank of musical and theatrical talent within the Brigade of Midshipmen that shines during this fantastic event. ⚓

Women's Glee Club

by Christina Partidge

Founded in 1976 when women first attended the Naval Academy, this group of talented young female vocalists has grown in both size and quality over the years. Under the new guidance of accomplished choral director and singer/songwriter Cindy Bauchspies, officer representative Capt. Rebecca Bryan, and co-presidents 1/C Alicia Steger and 1/C Jessica Troska, the women of the Glee Club completely revamped their repertoire this year. They performed in styles that ranged from hymns that filled the chapel's cupola to a favorite by Billy Joel ; from an Ecuadorian arrangement composed for hand-pipes to the classic cantatas of Carmina Burana; and from old Broadway hits to patriotic tunes that brought veterans and civilians alike to tears.

This dedicated group of roughly seventy women gathered twice every week to produce music that was both beautiful and therapeutic. They shared their gift with friends and family all over the Annapolis and Washington D.C. area throughout the year and, in March, traveled to California to perform in a variety of venues including churches, schools, Disneyland, and the San Diego Marine Corps Recruiting Depot.

The WGC hosts two specialty groups: the a cappella quartet "The Sirens" and the six person ensemble "The Stowaways." Both groups regularly found time outside of scheduled rehearsals to practice a collection of their choosing, which they performed at every concert.

Through their shared music and commitment to the closest thing to a sorority that the Naval Academy has to offer, these musicians formed bonds that will outlast even the longest military career. ⚓

The Chapel Choirs of the Brigade of Midshipmen perform weekly in support of Protestant and Catholic Faith

Songs of Faith

by Elena Yoshimura

The Catholic Chapel Choir leads the Brigade of Midshipmen every week during Catholic mass through their musical talent, passion, and faith. This unique group practices once a week among their daily obligations and performs every Sunday for the congregation. With each mass and practice, the group prepares for the highest feast of Easter. Under the instruction of Dr. Aaron Smith, Choir Director, the Catholic Choral Program continues to grow with an additional Chamber Choir. The Chamber Choir consists of a smaller group of Catholic Choir members, who dedicate more time to provide a greater variety of music to enhance the spiritual experience at mass. The Catholic Choir continues to support the Brigade of Midshipmen and the Catholic Community every year.

The Protestant Chapel Choir leads the Brigade of Midshipmen every week during Protestant service through song. This group is the largest mixed choir on the yard. They have weekly practices and perform weekly for the congregation under the direction of Mr. Monte Maxwell. This group of singers strictly join together because they love to praise and worship in song. They volunteer their time for the Brigade and the Navy community every week. The Protestant Chapel Choir continues to strengthen and grow in their spiritual involvement in the Brigade. ⚓

Divine Purpose

by Julia Kaelberer

In a symphony orchestra there are many instruments such as the flute, the violin, the cello, and many others that all come together to form this indescribable moving piece of art. You can each and every part clearer as you close your eyes and attempt to hone in on their individual talents. But have you ever stopped to appreciate how their combined sound is what really moves the audience?

Instead of brass, wind, string and percussion, now imagine the sound of voices which span from the lowest base to the highest soprano. Each has their own individual tone, each has their special mark, and when alone they might sound a bit of, unless it is the melody, but when they are combined something magnificient happens. You begin to feel the power of the music. That same feeling of awe that is achieved by the symphony is felt with the harmony of each range mixing, matching, complementing and contrasting each other.

The United States Naval Academy Gospel Choir under the direction of Ms. Karla Scott might be one of the smaller singing groups on the Yard, but when you hear their voices combine, their magnitude outweighs their multitude. They have perfected the art of singing as one. Although many will tell you they sing just for fun, others have come for the love of music, others for the fellowship and spiritual side, and yet others for the sense of family.

The Gospel Choir is comprised of highly energetic, diverse and compassionate group of talented midshipmen who truly enjoy singing. They are a tight knit groupm much like a family that are there for each other and continually lean on each other for support in all aspects of life. Theier love for the Lord, music and each other has been showcased across the country from Los Angeles to New York City and down to Atlanta and Houston. Each performance is full of a wide variety of songs ranging from deep rooted prasie and worship songs to upbeat songs all of which leave you moved or stomping and clapping well after the performance. They even sing songs in Swahili. Ms. Scott cares deeply about her midshipmen and their growth here. Her energy is a direct parallel of the choir and is a true inspiration to everyone she touches.

Be sure to check out these talented midshipmen at one of their fantastic concerts. They are sure to sing their way into your hearts and leave a smile on your face! ⚓

The Masqueraders celebrate 100 years

A Play With A Purpose

by Kristen Eriksen

Celebrating their 100th year at the Academy, the Masqueraders have been entertaining Midshipmen for ages. Throughout the years this talented group always finds the way to turn classic plays into living dramas, with the ability to capture and awe the audience in one sitting. There was a special purpose this year to hold on to the reputation of stellar productions. With the new command, Masqueraders had to prove that dramas in the military cannot be underestimated or overlooked.

This year the director and cast made it their mission to express the importance of theatre in a military environment. Copresident 1/C Joy Dewey states, "theatre is an integral part of society...lessons can be gleaned from watching and participating in theatre." She was undoubtedly correct because she was able to express to everyone who watched, the impressive talent in this program at USNA and the great leader she has developed into by embracing her roles.

Much of the audience this year consisted of directors, USNA graduates, and even Annapolis add-ins from the days when girls were scarce on the yard. This was the production that gathered all the successes of the years past and showed them that their legends live on. On display was an array of videos pictures and memories of academy productions that occurred in Mahan since 1908 to thank the older thespians for their work.

The group of 2008 is graduating many seniors this year and their participation and great leadership within the cast will be passed on as motivation and dedication for actors stepping into the roles. In the past 4 years, the class of 2008 has shone through. This year we thank 1/C David Smestuen, Joy Dewey, Emily Ansorge, Katie Gideon, Michael Johnson, and Kerrick Akinola, they have been building legacies for the other actors and actresses to fulfil.

The commitment and participation of these young thespians is astounding and loudly commended. Credit is due to each member on stage and off because the cohesion needed to work as unit is a skill. Each person lived through their role and worked with each other, for all these reasons, thanks is owed to Professor Stanlake, CDR Larabee, and Dr. Shaffer for their continuous years of selfless dedication.

Midshipmen Action Group

Hearts for Service

by Kerry Brady

Some Midshipmen volunteer for the matchless feeling of helping others less fortunate, others to do their part for the environment, and others for the close bonds they with children around the community. Whatever their reason, volunteers in the Midshipmen Action Group, also known as MAG, do their part for the community through countless hours of selfless service. MAG gives Midshipmen the chance to show they care by providing numerous opportunities to volunteer throughout the community.

This year-round Brigade Support Activity is Midshipmen run with over 30 projects. Midshipmen enhance the lives of children through several projects including Mids for Kids, Big Brother Big Sister, and Special Olympics. In addition to working with people, MAG provides service to improve the local community through a variety of environmental projects, Habitat for Humanity. Other projects include preparing meals at the Lighthouse Shelter, collecting for Books for the International Goodwill, Midshipmen visits to Bethesda, assistance at Baltimore Shock and Trauma, and sewing blankets for combat wounded through Quilts of Valor.

Whether they cook, build, sew, or shovel, Midshipmen who give up their time for service develop not only into more well-rounded leaders, but also aid in the development of a better community for all. ⚓

"Drive It Like You Stole It"

YP Squadron

by Jeff Kang

No one wants to be in the Servern River. In fact, one's life expectancy is likely to be dramatically reduced if one has come into contact with the waters of the Severn..

On this body of questionable water, the midshipmen of the Yard Patrol Sqaudron ply thier craft. This activity affords pleasure and professional development in one; the latter being infinitely more important.

The United States Naval Academy exists to create the finest naval officers in the country. The Ensigns and Second Lieutenants that graduate in the Spring and head to the Fleet have been developing thier leadership skills for four years. The Yard Patrol Squadron contributes significantly to officer development. It is one of the few ways in which midshipmen can experience Fleet-like situations right on the Cheseapeake during the school year. Midshipmen run the Yard Patrol Squadron under the supervision of a few officers, but the manning of the Yard Patrol Craft is solely the responsability of midshipmen.

During the Academic Year, the Squadron gets underway to spend time away from the Academy on movement orders. These days underway translate into lessons learned and experienced gained in navigation and leadership; however, the Yard Patrol Squadron also knows how to have fun. Port stops have included: Baltimore, New York City, Solomons Island, and other cities along the Eastern Seaboard. The movement orders are fun training events that prepare midshipmen for the duress of command at sea as well as port calls.

Not only does the Squadron drive its craft during the Academic Year, it also is an integral part of the summer training. The Fleet of Yard Patrol Craft (YPs) are commandeered by Professional Development and are used by those members of the Brigade lucky enough to get assigned a YP training block. These month-long trips are loosely based upon the movement orders of the Academic year, although they last significantly longer.

Preparing for the future Marines of the Brigade...

SemperFiSociety

by Regina Feeks

The Semper Fidelis Society seeks to expose midshipmen to Marine Corp traditions and provide opportunities to prepare for TBS such as the numerous field exercises hosted throughout the year.

Each year the Semper Fi Society, in conjunction with the Marines on the Yard, hosts the Marine Corp Birthday Ball to honor the mission and history of the Marine Corps.

The Semper Fi Society provides midshipmen the opportunity to learn about the history and future of the Marines. Midshipmen examined the history of the United States Marine Corp on a trip to the newly built Marine Corp museum in Quantico, Virginia.

Combat speakers expand the views of midshipmen by sharing their personal experiences in commands at home and abroad. The Semper Fi Society strives to prepare midshipman for service selection and develop professional skills relevant to a career as a Marine Corp officer.

Weekly Semper Fit workouts prepare midshipmen for the PFT and established basic Marine Corp Martial Arts techniques.

Semper Fi leadership worked closely with advanced level Arabic students to sponsor the Operation Culture Series, an intense look at the effects of culture on the military operations. The series addressed culture in a wartime environment, taught about culture in the Middle East and provided a chance to learn skills military personnel are using in Iraq to gain the trust of the people.

The culmination of the series was a cultural force exercise or FEX. Students in advanced Arabic classes role-played as Iraqi citizens, while other midshipman used the Arabic phrases and culture learned from the series to complete missions such as clearing buildings and checking vehicles for IEDs. The Semper Fi Society aims to educate and create interest among midshipmen and the Naval Academy community about the Marine Corps.

Every Marine is a rifleman. The Semper Fi Society FEX offeres range time to midshipmen to perfect their shooting technique.

Midshipmen look to senior Marine Officers for good examples of professionalism and attention to detail. Marines have a proud tradition in military discipline.

"The Honor is to Serve"

NESA - National Eagle Scout Association

by Charles Miller

The Naval Academy admits dozens of midshipmen each year who are Eagle Scouts. One of the most prominent organizations on the yard consists solely of midshipmen who achieved the highest rank in the national Boy Scout organization. To achieve the rank of Eagle, a candidate must complete three major tasks. First, the candidate must earn 21 merit badges, and 12 of these are mandatory. He must also complete all the requirements for all the previous ranks, and must have been a Life Scout for 6 months. Finally, and most importantly, the candidate must complete a service project with more than 100 hours of community service involved. Typically, these projects are planned and directed by the candidate Scout, and his fellow Scouts provide the bulk of the manpower for the project. The project itself must be sent through numerous district review boards, where every detail is scrutinized by board members who are usually Eagle Scouts themselves. Once the project is completed, the candidate must then go to a board of review, where he is asked by a panel of Scouting officials various questions, not all of which he knows the answer to beforehand. The percentage of Scouts who earn the rank of Eagle is only 2% of more than 20 million Scouts since 1911. The award is one of the highest that many midshipmen earn before coming to the US Naval Academy.

The NESA group is very active within the Brigade and hosts a variety of jamborees, merit badge days, and hands-on training for regional Boy Scout troops. In the fall semester, the biggest day is the Boy Scout Merit Badge Weekend, held in late October or early November. This involves Scouts in day-long merit badge seminars while simultaneously seeing what life is like as a midshipman. Local Scouts stay at the Naval Station upon arrival Friday night and then take a utility boat ride over to the Academy grounds. From there, midshipmen of the Eagle Scout Association take the groups to designated classrooms for the morning merit badge session. After the morning session, the groups go to King Hall and eat lunch with the midshipmen. The afternoon is reserved for tours of the Academy. Furthermore, there are often static displays for the Boy Scouts to tour and gain knowledge and interest about the Navy and Marine Corps. In past years, there have been SH-60 Seahawks and CH-53 Super Stallions available for tours. First aid, emergency response, and similar training is given to the Scouts before the bonfire on Saturday night. Scouts then depart on that Sunday morning.

While the fall semester merit badge weekend is a large evolution, involving scores of USNA personnel, midshipmen, and Boy Scouts, NESA's biggest event of the year is the Boy Scout Jamboree held on the three-day weekend in January. This event involves Boy Scout troops from all over the mid-Atlantic. While there is time set aside for merit badges and advancement in rank, the Jamboree weekend is also for strengthening the bonds between NESA and regional Boy Scout troops. The Scouts are so numerous that they stay at Camp Letts, where the NESA members commute to, and stay overnight for Saturday and Sunday night. This allows for more time with the Scouts, and significant time is spent backpacking, learning survival skills, and first aid. This event typically involves more than 1000 scouts and over 90 midshipmen.

The numerous changes in policies this year made it extremely difficult for the NESA organization to continue to serve the local area scouting community. They were able to continue to host their largest event (the Jamboree in January) but smaller events had to be cancelled to comply with new restrictions. The NESA members had to improve their ability to adapt and overcome in order to continue being the face of the Navy as well as to continue their fine tradition of service before self to the local Scouting community.

Andrew Bingham

"So hoist our colors, hoist them high, and vow allegiance true, So long as sunset gilds the sky above the ocean blue, unlowered shall those colors be whatever fate they meet, So glorious in victory, triumphant in defeat."

Lauren Bosco

Lauren Elisabeth Bosco...losing at ten... Champaign toasts with Catawba...tea parties...loudest in plebe summer... Golden Girls...bad girlie movies... grocery store trips and picnics...sweet caroline... surviving a month on rice alone...the most motivated plebe masked with four stripes... how many purses do you need?...2 marine corps marathons (one without wisdom teeth)~ RAH... quite the social butterfly... most likely to be awake at 3AM...forcibly removing ill behaving boys from their racks to make them apologize...saddest firstie not to get to flame on plebe summer... those damn mislos...hooyah ops...he's so perfect...football MOs... ice, ice baby... Look out Elle Woods, here comes L Bosco

Taren Burkett

Italia, Philly, and finally the 757, this beautiful world traveler and multi-linguist had the knowledge and experience that carried her far in her USNA career (reading whole encyclopedia volumes as a child probably helped too). A history buff who could often be found curled up in her rack with a book ("I said  you ain't no nerd!"), her physical prowess was not to be underestimated. K.A.R.T. track star, she won so many gold stars for her letter sweater they couldn't all fit. She was Brigade PMO fall semester, and you should have seen those CATV midshipmen run for cover. "Diet Coke and a pizza please" Nah, she'll just have a couple bags of Swedish fish, courtesy of daily midstore runs. "Go eat a sandwich." The "hidden" kitchenette. "I bet his wife beats him!" And if you're ever in a bind at TBS, just remember that he "doesn't wear anything underneath in the field". No matter where the Marine Corps takes you Taren, always know that we will be cousins til the end. Semper fi.

Sarah Catalano

Sarah is known for her quick and witty sense of humor. She knows how to turn a "Debbie Downer's" frown upside-down. From plebe year crew to backpacking in Wyoming to dodge ball champion Sarah really dominated the full athletic spectrum. Not only a physical specimen she has also excelled academically as a Math Club President, Math Honors Major, and Bowman Scholar. Sarah always "takes it to the limit" while "keeping it real", from riding horses in Mexico to taking bicycles from policemen to "pulling a Monday", it's always a surprise. After a life-changing cruise in San Diego, Sarah found her calling at a SWO symposium and soon will be an asset to the Nuclear Surface community.

Seamus Cobb

Dr. Cobb, Seambuck, Seadog, Shame us, Buckie: undoubtedly the manliest man birthed from a home where he could measure the estrogen even before he learned all those sweet chem skills. With enough sisters to provide all of us with our Ring Dance dates, enough organic chem to choke XX, enough road adventures with Tom to last a lifetime, enough burps to power Gerald's railgun, and enough patients to start his own hospital; it was hard to tell why exactly he was screaming and beating his head into the cabinet wearing Tom's bike helmet. But when he wasn't, you could be sure to catch him in his warped position of attention leading 1st Co, or sneaking around with girlfriends and not telling his roommates. To the most devoted Navy Football fan of all time, here's to beating Notre Dame! May you always be the voice of reason and forever maintain your affinity for seahorses. "Hey Seamus, I want to talk to you."

David Duncker

"Four years together by the Bay where Severn joins the tide, then by the Service called away, we've scattered far and wide; but still when two or three shall meet, and old tales be retold, from low to highest in the Fleet will pledge the Blue and Gold."

Nicole Fiedler

From lowly plebe to lifesaver when her roomies chair-flipped or went rack-diving, "full circle" explains the journey this whole-hearted Texan traveled at the good ole USNA. Nicole started as the "99%" plebe (fastest on crutches by far) and evolved over the years to the status of common law wife (you will always have a "MAJOR" piece of my heart). Plebe year was full of calc EI and boulevard of broken dreams (shut up, Fiedler!) and subsequent trips to Asia the following years brought back personal and medical deterrents to the end goal of becoming a happy, motivated Marine. The Lone Star spirit never left her (nor did US Territory "love"), as she even represented as a rodeo queen plebe year, but the deeper, stronger spirit of the Corps would win in the end after countless runs and o-course outings. The joy and pride from being a Marine has only just begun for Nicole...if you listen you can hear her...ooh rah yut yut devil dog Semper Fi!

William Godiksen

Billy / or as the ladies say, William: "The walls of Jericho." With a personality that mimicked your favorite wrestler, you utilized the Academy for all it was worth. Trips to San Diego, Hawaii, and Alaska all on the Navy's dime, well done! From chatting it up with Tom in the P-way during plebe summer to becoming a Trident Scholar, it was a great 3 years. Yes, second-class year didn't count as we didn't see you much. Air Force anyone? Whether it was sipping coronas in the Godiksen hot tub before a skiing weekend or playing football on a Rhode Island beach (or a San Diego beach, or a Florida beach) you sir, were "awesome." Be safe in the skies and design a plane for us. If you ever get lost in the game of life, just cut through the median to find your exit.

Gregory Hafer

Most people who've been through the Academy will say that this place sucks. Well, for Greg it sucked a little more. Academics proved to be quite a challenge for this good ol' Texas cowboy when he first came to Annapolis, and from time to time, it seemed that everything was breaking against his favor. However, Greg's grades bounced back after he made some adjustments to his study habits and took a couple of summer school courses. One area in which Greg was always strong was his physical fitness. If he wasn't in his room you could count on finding him running an outer or training to become a MMA fighter over in MacD. Hence, it's no surprise that Greg selected to join the Green Machine upon graduation. As a matter of fact, he started shaving his head for the past couple years in anticipation for entering the Corp. Well, maybe he did it to mask his receding hairline too. In either case, it turned out to be a good look for him. Semper Fi, Devil Dog.

Charlotte Hill

Charlotteann may have spent more time living in a 15 passenger van with her intercollegiate sailing teammates than she ever did in Bancroft Hall; however, the effort paid off with three-time All American honors. After what could be considered a recreational plebe year Charlotte somehow found the time to excel as an Oceanography major (a healthy love of phytoplankton didn't hurt), and in several striper positions, including company commander and the ever fearless battalion anti-terrorism force protection officer. She was even known to enjoy a dark and stormy or two on the dock at Pusser's, or Boatyard, or in Bermuda, or many another bar in far off places. Whether playing captain of her boat or Captain Morgan, Chazz was always the first one charging off on a new adventure or with a new song to dance to. From San Diego to France to Bermuda to good old Mother B to the daily pack of boats on the Severn, Charlotte was always leading the way with panache and a mischievous grin. Road. Good luck in the Presidential race, Chris, the Pentagon is behind you 99%.

Jonathan Hurst

Jonathan "SWO daddy" Hurst is one of the most pragmatic individuals you will ever meet. He finished plebe year despite losing a roommate to the psych ward at Bethesda Naval Hospital. After cigars and scotch with CDR Newcomb, he overcame the loss of his second roommate and signed his two for seven papers. When he wasn't solving massive computer problems with his Taiwanese sidekick, this Boston native spent his time dreaming of the perfect high school experience as shown in The Hills, Laguna Beach, and High School Musical. In the world of athletics, this former lifeguard spent his time training for Olympic distance triathlons and was frequently seen wearing an Orange Wheaties bike jersey. If Jon pursues his career with half as much effort as he chased after high school girls, we should see great things from him.

Robert Jankowski

Bobby Janks.

A connoisseur of all the fine things in life; cars, women, and spirits... Always around Bobby Janks.

A connoisseur of all the fine things in life; cars, women, and spirits... Always around in a pinch and a great friend. Summer, winter, spring, or fall; no season could dampen his indomitable spirit

If I was humble I would be perfect.

Nathan Jordan

"Now colleges from sea to sea - May sing of colors true, - But who has better right then we - To hoist a symbol hue? - For sailors brave in battle fair - Since fighting days of old, - Have proved a sailor's right to wear - The Navy Blue and Gold."

Keith Lisante

"So hoist our colors, hoist them high, and vow allegiance true, so long as sunset gilds the sky above the ocean blue, unlowered shall those colors be whatever fate they meet, so glorious in victory, triumphant in defeat."

John Patrick Lyles

"Four years together by the Bay where Severn joins the tide, then by the Service called away, we've scattered far and wide; but still when two or three shall meet, and old tales be retold, from low to highest in the Fleet will pledge the Blue and Gold."

Joseph Mabis

"Now colleges from sea to sea - May sing of colors true, - But who has better right then we - To hoist a symbol hue? - For sailors brave in battle fair - Since fighting days of old, - Have proved a sailor's right to wear - The Navy Blue and Gold."

Matthew McCallum

Participated in 2 trips to Nicaragua through Bridges to Community.

Trevor Miller

This proud inventor of Winter Working Casual (Swedish Ski Cap, Rod Laver Adidas and Nantucket Reds, rolling backpack optional) became the gnarliest WoW Orc Master level 136 with Broad Sword, Club, and Power of Invisibility USNA's ever seen. Ready for bed by 9pm or up all night plotting the downfall of the NAF Accounting Division, even his vision of interest on held pay couldn't concur mood swings begun by the NASDAQ 500. Enthusiasm for 3000 mile bike trips or caddying on Martha's Vineyard, eh, it's all the same! If only Drydock served peanut butter, potato rolls, and honey. Love affair born in France leads to breakfast in bed ou'Bancroft, who would've known that Shady TreMills, always in the wrong place at the wrong time with the wrong shirt on would've nabbed Brigade Honor Advisor? Steve Perry says "just slip it in." Always willing to backup an argument with an inspirational bible verse, clearly this intellectual juggernaut is ready for the rigors of Harvard - God speed space Marine!

Thomas Newcomb

Tom: Old Spice or Gillette? Lets play another rousing game of "Where the hell did I put it?" Despite your knack for misplacing things, including your toothbrush, you always came through in the clutch. Whether it was wearing an SDB coat with mess dress, improvising a living arrangement during Protramid, finagling a semester in China, or turning off all your avionics on your first solo cross country, your good looks, witty charm, and supreme dance skills put you ahead of the pack. I've never seen a Marine dance so well in just his jacket and European underwear. How do you feel about the color red? Why are you the lucky one who gets thrown against a wall a kissed by a forceful woman? It's a relief to know your roommates weren't the only ones who had a man-crush on David Cook. You're a marine, a pilot, and the best friend one could ask for. Never forget, learning is overrated.

David John Parker

Dave Parker - unflappably upbeat, no seriously, he never gets upset. Plebe Summer is not supposed to be fun but no one told Dave. His USNA life motto: It's better to feign ignorance than to ask permission. Wine tasting in Bancroft during working hours? Sounds reasonable to me! Second place at the Ulmer Sealing regatta, we were robbed! No box of crackers is safe around Dave -"The next thing I knew they were all gone, I swear!" The service selection roulette wheel landed on Marine air but anything seemed possible over these past four years. Always a staunch supporter of Mojo's policies…except for…well…most of them. He will forever be remembered as the best MOOW - being reasonable is an uncommon trait in main-o. Constantly on the move with the ladies, Dave was never one to be burdened by clutter, especially not sentimental CD's. But still he found room in his life for a broken kite and a few umbrellas.

Good luck Dave. Don't ever let them get you down, not that you'll let them.

Jacob Pitchford

Despite 007 dubbing Jake Pitchford Mostly Harmless, he was without doubt the bravest amongst us. Either ensuring that cute Bride's Maids knew that his friends not only had foreheads and two ears but needed a dance, or willing himself down a black diamond in Tahoe after breaking his wrist on a lowly Vermont green, our son of Mena, Arkansas, bravely strode into every challenge USNA could throw at him. After saying goodbye to his 6th grade birthday cake over the side of a Navy-44, he went to Destin to conquer the high seas with 21 fish to prove it, all while keeping his vow to wear the same pair of underwear until they disintegrated. Indeed, here is to the only solo pilot to anoint jueves as Dia de Juevos, ensure every Wednesday got its due Rumble, and never let a Saturday pass without a snuggle. We love you and wish you the best Jake, and want you to remember, through all the ladies, 64, fishing, flying, and farts the future holds, squawk VFR and always order both.

Brandon Sales

Brandon---known to some as Brandong or Brown Sugar, but known by most simply as Sales throughout Bancroft---came to the Academy as the golden boy of Watsonville, CA. Upon arrival to Annapolis, Sales quickly demonstrated his steadfast adherence to the rules by keeping an orderly room and a very tight rack. At times, however, his interpretation of Academy law proved incorrect, and as a result, he earned the dubious distinction of being one of the first members of the class to enter the conduct system. As he progressed through his four years of officer training, his strict adherence to the rules loosened, but not his "tough-as-nails" attitude. He was never one to back away from a fight, whether it be in the boxing ring for the Brigade Tournament or settling a score with a roommate. Likewise, he proved to be quite the Casanova with many a lady courtesy of the internet. As Sales moves on to the Surface Warfare Community, we wish him fair winds and following seas. HOOYAH SWO!

Kevin Seiff

Running of the Plebes Team Reed – Bingnuts it was a good block. Airsoft wars when the upper class were gone, Wood's monitor was the only real casualty. String cheese beatdowns on Newcomb – you scream like a girl. The mouse kill count reached 8. The Scho jokes never got old and the quote list kept on growing. Tiki Tuesday at McGarvy's turned into Big Beer Night Wednesday. Black & Tan's became the beer of choice. Cabo '06 was nearly a disaster but it was worth watching Wood puke till he wished he was dead and Watt get 3rd degree burns. 2Kook+Skool had a little too much fun spinning the wheel of pain in Pearl. McCallum, shave and get ready for Ladies Night and Salva Vida. The Capstone was an utter failure - the other group can go celebrate with a tub of B&J's. The Marine Corps was an unexpected outcome – get some.

Lindsey Slyman

Life with Lindsey "don't call me Slyman" Slyman was one adventure after another. There was no "social inertia" when she was around, whether on spring breaks in Miami, Hawaii, and on cruise (for free!) or during Steerage smoothie nights over discussions on love triangles and squares. Perhaps taken from one too many viewings of Finding Nemo, "Just keep running" was clearly her motto as she PR'ed in just about every marathon she ran. Marathoning took her from Boston to Alaska (she had to check out the expos!). From hiking to cliff jumping to cave diving, she found excitement everywhere. Dried mangoes, pepper on EVERYTHING, yoga, margaritas!, and Bailey's were on her list of favorite things, but above all she loved bringing people together (knowing just about everyone helped, and good luck trying to keep up with her when she was socializing). To a great roommate and even greater friend, the moral of the story is - the Marine Corps isn't going to know what hit 'em! Love, your girls.

Ira Thompson

"Now colleges from sea to sea - May sing of colors true, - But who has better right then we - To hoist a symbol hue? - For sailors brave in battle fair - Since fighting days of old, - Have proved a sailor's right to wear - The Navy Blue and Gold."

Gerald Vineyard

Gerald 'The Dropkick' Vineyard fell asleep on I-Day and woke up sometime after Commissioning. Yet somehow this Bremerton native managed to a build a railgun, skipper the Dandy, and disrupt a few English classes along the way. We should have known that he would be a standout from his days of sticking his head into the P-Way Plebe Summer, but, 3 highway blowouts, 1 Godiksen bathroom, and 2,687 cups of coffee later his singularity was without doubt. Ger Bear, on your trips unda tha sea, we wish you all the best. If you ever need a sleepover, call us anytime! Can you believe we graduated? Yes!!!

Sean Wade

Some called him Swade, some called him Ron Mexico or Clint Eastwood, and still others called him by names that are inappropriate for print in this prestigious publication. Needless to say, Sean accrued a variety of nicknames over his four years at Annapolis. As a Chemistry major at the Academy, Sean spent many hours slaving away in the laboratory and studying late into the night. In the end, however, all the hard work paid off as he was awarded a Medical Corps billet. There was definitely much more to Sean than his studies. He was well-known for his penchant for workouts and developed a reputation as a practical joker. Let us not forget the infamous Christmas letter to his roommate's mom, his incessant prank phone calls to classmates (one classmate in particular), and his hosting of the unauthorized "Bancroft Hall Beat the Dark Ages Rave Party". We hope he keeps the pranks going while in medical school, and we wish him the best of luck in his medical career.

Andrew Watt

"So hoist our colors, hoist them high, and vow allegiance true, so long as sunset gilds the sky above the ocean blue, unlowered shall those colors be whatever fate they meet, so glorious in victory, triumphant in defeat."

Dawn Weaver

A 5'1" native of Kent Island, "D.W." more than made up for her short stature in just about everything else in life. Whether running cross-country races, solving massive physics problems, crawling into her giant Dodge Ram and blasting her favorite country music, or screaming for hours on end for her beloved Redskins ("it's ok, there's always next year"), Dawn put her heart into everything she did. NOLS transformed her during youngster summer, and now all she talks about is the next mountain she will conquer. KH effect, anyone? Dahlgren Thursdays...wait, we can't, it's 2000. You're having ANOTHER house party?? 9-hour scares ("wanna help me out with this $100 ticket??"). It's 1829...anyone seen Dawn? Don't worry, it's not 1830 yet. "You run a better PFT than the Marines!" Thanks for all your help and encouragement over the years, Dawn. May your adventurous spirit remain as boundless as the ocean upon you will soon sail.

Tim Wilkening

"Now colleges from sea to sea - May sing of colors true, - But who has better right then we - To hoist a symbol hue? - For sailors brave in battle fair - Since fighting days of old, - Have proved a sailor's right to wear - The Navy Blue and Gold."

David Williams

Dave, the whitest black man we know. You were the coolest part of D&B and suffered many jokes because of it. Always suave and unassuming, you managed to skate through the final year at the academy without standing duty more than twice (did you ever have Main Office Watch in your 4 years by the bay?). No lunch break was ever complete without a rousing game of WCW vs. NWO or NFL Blitz. Despite your constant cheating, you actually won a few games fair and square (yeah right). Thankfully, Micah was there to keep you in line. "Honey, is it ok if I go play soccer with the boys?" Dave, hopefully your career and marriage are filled with love, soccer, electric slides, and Nintendo 64. If you need a nap, be sure to call Artigiani.

Matthew Wood

Woodsy, Matty, M dubs, Dr. Death, Gingerbread man, 'Ol Matty One Note, and many more. Water polo with Scho, swimming with Bill, Patriot's, Eastern's, swimming records, fights at Ian's house, John Lyles, Spring Break in Chicago and a little bit 'o St. Patty's Day parade, I LIKE A YOU!!! Senior Chief's reveille, senior year... Wait, you have another girlfriend?!? Turbines, FE exam shenanigans, capstone project, deciding to go Marine Corps, cutting that hair baby, enjoying a nice 0-0-1-3 evening with friends, Spring Break in Cancun, QUE ES LA PROBLEMA!?! Found you in that bathroom that one time. How ejastic is my...college crashing and OBX 2k8, Christmas break in Arizona on training trip (Gingerbread man), voice immodulation syndrome, Bar Golf, Bar ski, Sean Hurley and Keenan, Quantico, see you in P-Cola Bud.

Michael Zecca

Mike Z - the pride of New Jersey. Some people have a natural inclination for self-preservation that keeps them from doing many things. Mike does not seem to have that trait. Climbing to the top of a 300ft radio tower with no harness? Yeah, no problem. Biking across America (yeah the continent) in 19 days? Been there, done that. Somersaulting over fences? No big thing, just don't land on your shoulder. Beneath it all Mike is more philosopher than anything. His mantra: "There's always an excuse not to do something, so don't wait, just do it." Whether Mike is constructing an elaborate mouse trap or designing an impossible crank shaft, nothing ever holds this guy back. And when he puts his mind on something nothing can distract him. Even if that means wearing shooting ear plugs while doing homework in the middle of a Superbowl party. Mike, good luck in spec war but just remember you can always fall back on your v-neck shirt design.

Adam Ballard

Ballard hit the ground running at the Academy. While football occupied his life from the start, he still had a colorful plebe year with a trip to the Indonesian embassy, some visits to the room from "friends," and a fun-filled spring break at the Academy. Then along came Lady B, who provided him with even more Academy fun in the Hall. His Heisman campaign got off to a great start during his junior season but was cut short due to injuries. Once he decided to stop spending spring break at the Academy he was able to enjoy some time in Florida on a memorable final spring break with Roach, Broome, and Frank. His academic marks weren't always so hot, and he was able to pick up some less than glowing remarks from some teachers on MIDS, but he proved to be a great guy despite what his grades and standings might show. He always held his head high and remained loyal to all his friends. I am grateful for our years together and wish him the best for his future.

Rhett Begley

Merh. Wake up. Tunak Tunak couldn't do it; throwing our entire room on you couldn't do it; shaving your leg barely did, & only because you were the only mid who cared about how they looked before morning quarters. I hope the SWO Navy does a better job than we could. Club 1137. C'monnnnnn insert next leave pd. Seriously. Whiskey Treats, Jello, Ensure, and Statics, all at 3am. YP's are no cooler than they were in the 60's - haven't you learned? Maybe when you make O-6 you'll be lucky enough to come back and do a retro tour as the YPRON CO the second time around - I wouldn't put it past you. Ballroom in smoke. A-Dog. Almost all 50's on our Alphas and we never waxed. Protocol Officer? Sailing before finals. Coach and waterskiing. Bartending as a mid. Lugz will never look good on you, but that Craftmaster pin always will. Fair winds and following seas to the most SWOtivated officer the Navy will ever see - couldn't ask for a better roommate these 4 years by the Bay.-J&A

Ronald Belany

If the past is any indication, Ronald's life will be wrought with adventure. Always one to practice the skills he will need in the fleet, Ronald earned his night time amphibious landing qualification on his 19th birthday. Being the escape artist that he is, Ronald seemed to successfully evade all forms of schoolwork for four entire years, making his term at SEAR school almost unnecessary. With the amazing ability to jump 24 feet into a sand box after having just cleared several hurdles and 110 meters in only seconds, Ron was bred for the job of NFO, or was it evading arrest? Either way, nothing could stop him from conquering the Academy; not the broken wrist from his "surfing" accidents, nor the scalp devouring antibodies. Ronald will easily conquer life in much the same way, with the charisma and sly charm that only he can muster. Wherever he finds himself years from now, I know that Ron will make a great officer, and has made an even better friend.

Javier Bosch

Don Javi, Second Company's favorite Belizean when not helping a shipmate, was always ready to borrow lost items for his uniform. One of Javier's greatest challenges was learning the English language. This proved daunting for a young 20 year old who spoke nothing but Spanish, 'cause we all know that Belizeans speak Spanish. Plebe summer highlights: Puking and ...; "Sir I don't think I'll shave today". Where could this "dirty" little Belizean constantly be found? Well some theories suggest that he had actually become a member of the 17th Company. If you ever need a well paying job just give Don Javi a call and he'll hook you up in the lucrative drug trade of Belize. He was the first midshipman to service select drug dealer. To our favorite yet "dirty" Belizean, we wish you fair winds and following seas. "Phiiiilll! take off da lite...PLEEAASE"

Casey Botts

Casey "Dubya" Botts is a man like none other. From the time he came to the Academy, he had one goal in mind, and that goal has pushed him in all that he does. That goal is to become an astronaut like his father who graduated from the naval academy years before. But Casey would do it better. He would become the first man to travel to the sun AND back. The greatest memory he will take away from this place was when he tried out for the womens lacrosse team, but was cut to the mens club team. He enjoys songs by bands which no one has heard of but will hate them once played by the Electric Brigade. Casey once started a one man band making up his own songs in his head so that he could be the only one to know the lyrics. That's heart. Now as Casey prepares to leave this place behind and do the many great things he is capable of, I know that we will all be able to count on him to be there when we need him - as long as you throw something to get his attention and take his headphones off.

Jordan Broome

Jordan, known in his earlier years as "Swiffer" and later as "Beans," was a standout midshipman from the start. He was always willing to lead the way for his friends. He led the way in Ocean City when the police got involved. He showed us how to successfully blow into a breathalyzer so as to get an accurate and correct reading. And last but not least he set the example as he showed us how to remain calm in a heated situation like the one he found himself in while at Towson; a simple "that's not my name" seemed to work when a girl continuously badgered him with the wrong pronunciation of his name. He was dedicated to his work as a power-lifter and always managed to stay in top shape. When it came to sleeping, he always lived by the motto "the Mo the better." While he never managed to get out for a Habitat session, he was our unanimous vote for Mid of the Month. There is no doubt in my mind that Jordan was and is a loyal friend, and for that we are thankful.

william Brown

He's proud to be an Okie from Muskogee...Will Brown is a man of truly honest character and a fiercely loyal friend. There was nothing quite like the roar of his Dodge Diesel coming through the Yard, or drowning out the employee's voice at the drive thru...from the race at Richmond to the Thermo and Engineering, Brown was always there to help others before worrying about himself. A man of few words in most situations, but a man who always made his words count. Semper Fi.

Phillip Crawford

Phillip Crawford From Plebe to Senior Year: Everyone could see Phil a mile away-blond, bald hair anyone? Glee Club, choir and the quartet made Phillip into a man. From weekend trips to Hood college and Spring Break trips around the world, let's say a little inebriation wasn't far away. Alcohol offenses-testing the man every chance he got. Late night debates about politics, philosphy and girl problems, and the Academy we all love so much. Phil was sure to give everyone a lesson in texas history, most notable..."Did you know texas reserves the right to secede from the Union..."oh really phil?". Two in the mornin' we were all sure to hear a little cello rockin' the Halls. "Dude I gotta practice for a performance". Fretting about being a pilot, lending his roomate a pair of pants, late night tutoring and video games all night were some of Phil's late nite troubles. Put a foreigner and a texan in a room for four years-what do you get? -That's right, the finest officer in the Navy.

Christopher Curd

Webster's Dictionary defines Curd as "the thick casein-rich part of coagulated milk." It is clear if you know Chris that no more needs to be said to sum him up, but let us continue anyways. Christopher Hernandez Curd spent his early years reading Ships and Aircraft and preparing the sea cadets for battle in Sunnyvale, California. When Chris isn't on weekend trips to Delaware (DE?) and other exotic locations, he can usually be found playing Microsoft Flight Simulator (on autopilot) while looking up and memorizing airline schedules. Chris's favorite pastime is eating Swedish chocolate while touring French cathedrals. Some call him "The Oracle" due to his ability to answer any question with complete confidence regardless of whether or not he has any knowledge of the subject. Aaaaaggggghhhhhhhhhhhhhhh. bawk

Nicholas Dadds

"Four years together by the Bay where Severn joins the tide, then by the Service called away, we've scattered far and wide: but still when two or three shall meet, and old tales be retold, from low to highest in the Fleet will pledge the Blue and Gold."

James Deupree

Jamie quit reading this and hurry up, you're late to formation. We've only got 45 minutes until we need to be out there - we're heading out now. Don't forget to Bravo the room before you leave. You'd better be glad we never waxed - almost all 50's and how much time saved??? You owe us a non alcoholic beverage. How many countries have you visited. Nodding off at your desk. Perpetually 10 second naps in your rack. Wardrobe from the 70's. Watermelon calves. Proper spelling. Febreeze. More febreeze. And lots of sweat. You were in an art club? Coordinating company get togethers with Bre. Telling us every detail of your weekly plans before leaving the room. Clothes bursting out of your closet - and everywhere else for that matter. Oldies never get old.... they already were. We're sick of Beach Boys and the Beatles, if you have kids we feel bad for them. A Giant Thank You, Best Wishes, and God Bless You to the enforcer of our three man posse.R&A

Michael Eady

Kyle Fancher

In the time of chimpanzees I was a monkey, or wait, maybe a rubber chicken. I was a moist one at that, a little confused, and wondering if I should cross the road or not. The scars from my bad gizzard are still there, they remind me of that town called Alice. Wax bombs still haunt me and my pumpkins are still rotten. I roamed the streets of Naptown stopping at the regulars and ending at Castlebay usually with the big chicken and the other two kings. However, I still persist that those aren't my camels! Although, we did run into a wild turkey in Dead Wood along with some other unexpected guests. Towards the end of my journey we stopped at McDoo.. I mean McDonalds for some chicken tenders and a little comfort from the south. I ended with one hen in the hen house and many other cocky friends. What a ride... GAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAHHHHHHHHH (high pitch)

John Fedorko

"Now colleges from sea to sea - May sing of colors true, - But who has better right then we - To hoist a symbol hue? - For sailors brave in battle fair - Since fighting days of old, - Have proved a sailor's right to wear - The Navy Blue and Gold."

Sasha Frankhouse

Sasha, Frankie, or even Frank the Tank could often be seen on weekends in a reg updo and polo driving her F-150 to WaWas to buy strawberry milk. No matter what the circumstances, her enthusiastic "its gonna be great!" attitude always seems to lighten any mood. To describe her in 5 words: Redskins, country music, Virginia Beach. Don't get in her bubble or you'll hear the infamous "I got one of these and I got one of these...!" We go like dis? The sexiest thing in the world is a John Deere... and her calves. She may be small but she'll take anyone out on a rugby field...at the expense of causing extreme bodily harm to herself. She wears the appearance of a scrooge but really she's just a teddy bear who LOVES hugs. Super serious, NEVER sarcastic, Sasha is a model midshipman. Love the Legacy '08. L1

William Hardin

Raised in Tennessee, Gatlin quickly gained the respect of his classmates. His roommate, the legendary Adam Ballard himself, nicknamed him "Dizzle" after their epic outing to DC and the Indonesian Embassy. Dizzle quickly became the voice of reason for many of our antics. He was busy trying to keep us, especially Adam, out of trouble and managed to do so for himself with the exception of Facebook, which got the best of ol' Dizzle. When he wasn't engineering some oceans, he was busy trying to ensure that friends like Ballard, Broome, Mike, and me stayed away from trouble. While not always successful, there certainly proved to be some memorable times starting all the way back with outings to the Power Plant in Baltimore and Jen's party with a little Malibu. Then there were the football road trips starting with Duke and culminating with the great RV adventure to Notre Dame for the big win. As Gatlin leaves the Academy to get hitched and fly, we wish him the best.

David Hayashida

$H-Money$ hails from the beautiful state of Hawaii and is of Japanese and Hawaiian ancestry. "H" can often be found tearing it up on slack key guitar/ukulele and getting huge in the gym huuuuut. Dave has the most ballin' stuff ever, period. When he isn't passed out in his amazing chair into the wee hours of the morning, he's tearing it up on his awesome Xbox 360 with his personal home theatre or grilling Foreman style and making fruit smoothies. Try and borrow something from him, however, and you'll encounter more resistance than an assault on Tarawa. H-Money is the foundation of the fieldball defense by afternoon and an angel in the choir by Sunday morning. Dave is a champ at fending off creepy dudes in the club but can't get in w/ Air Force Ones. Lordhavemercy, aww sk sk, necklace, booty, rock it everywhere.

Adam Hesch

"Thank You" to all of my family and friends and your support for me during these 4 years at USNA -- My Mother and Father for helping me learn the value of perseverance through hardship; Tom and Jan for teaching me hospitality, love, and the importance of family; other Uncle Tom for instilling in me my sense of Patriotism and Pride in my country; Rhett and Jamie for the countless jokes, shenanigans, and all the tomfoolery that can't be expressed here, and all of 2nd Company and everyone at USNA who helped me become who I am now.

In High School an old, crusty, bitter West Point grad asked me once what service is ultimately all about, and then remarked, "It's all about love." I shall have honored him and all the citizens of the United States who make our time possible if I live up to that mantra in my own service; it is my goal.

Thomas Kilcline

"Four years together by the Bay where Severn joins the tide, then by the Service called away, we've scattered far and wide: but still when two or three shall meet, and old tales be retold, from low to highest in the Fleet will pledge the Blue and Gold."

Raymond Lafleur

This motivator was born in the Philippines and is most recently from Hawaii. Much of his motivation comes from his father who is a Sergeant Major in the Marine Corps or perhaps the massive amounts of caffeine consumed on a daily basis. Oorah, Rockstars and Coffee! Although, he drinks caffeine religiously, you can often find him in his rack making use of the caffeine rush. Rack not available? The floor or a bush in DC will do. You may also spot him tearing up the dance floor at local club or Club Jesters (Woo!). He also enjoys Sticky Fingers and girls with great personalities. He loves to clean (it's in his blood). His roommates know that when alpha comes around, Ray will do it. As an avid member of the Filipino-American Club, he loves to go on MO's and have a "great time." Yut, yut, devil dog, oorah?

William Maugeri

"Now colleges from sea to sea - May sing of colors true, - But who has better right then we - To hoist a symbol hue? - For sailors brave in battle fair - Since fighting days of old, - Have proved a sailor's right to wear - The Navy Blue and Gold."

Maxwell Mayer

From the desolate isolated town of Canistota, South Dakota, "Rudy" has proven his mettle since first arriving in Annapolis. A star on the 9 man football team, "Rudy" was a rushing legend in is 600 person town, in addition to leading the basketball and track teams. Unaware of the trials and challenges of the real world, "Rudy" came to the Naval Academy unaware of how to use an ATM or a cell phone, which his roommates discovered during Plebe Summer (his Dad is a banker). Returning with his roommates to his hometown in the summer of 2006 proved that electricity and automobiles did indeed exist in the isolated state. Long debaucherous nights continued into the academic year, with few surprises. Well liked by most in his company, he describes himself as charming, funny, and gregarious. From batwings to gargoyles to brains and everything in between, "Rudy" demonstrated his creativity in all arenas of Academy life.

Joseph

Milo

Who will ever be able to forget Joseph Patrick Reagan Milo and his...unique personality? No one, that's who. Products of his imagination seeped into the lives and haunted the dreams of those around him, from naked candy cane man to SURPISE discrepancies in the closet. Enthused about everything with horsepower, his love for American muscle is up there with love for his own mother. From the time he arrived at the Academy, he had his nose buried in the books; these books also doubled as the steering wheel to his imaginary car. When he wasn't showing Fid who the boss was or eating Special K on his 600 calorie/day diet, he was writing excessively long emails to his "cousin." One of the most reliable and caring people you might ever have the pleasure to meet, my roommate ,and more importantly, my friend, Joe Milo.

Sara

Mingo

ROOMMIE!! Miracle Mingo hails from the great state of Minnesota. This future yut-yut aviator enjoys Grey's Anatomy and the sound of crashing waves on the beach. This stellar midshipman always looks forward to steerage date Thursdays and muffin day Fridays with her favorite girls. When she isn't on a motivating boots 'n utes run around the Yard or honing her O-course skills, she can be found studying, sleeping, throwing 3am dance parties during finals week, or ensuring that version number 531 of the 1st Battalion wedge schedule is up to par. One of the best things about her is that she isn't an all work and no play kind of lady. She knows how to party and let loose with the best of them. Smell something stinky? It wasn't Sara that farted, that's for sure! RAH!

Kevin

Peartree

Kevin? Kevin....who? Ooohhhhh, Kevin...yea I remember Kevin? He uttered his first audible words after 20 years of existence during his youngster year at the Academy; soft spoken is an understatement. When he did talk, however, 20% of the time you could guarantee it was some sort of profound observation or worthwhile tidbit. If you think awkward silence is only a thing that happens when someone cusses at church or farts in bed, you're wrong. According to Kevin, it's actually a way of life. Awkward silence Yea, you got used to that if you hung around long enough. Kevin spent more time in my room than his own (partly because of his smelly roommates). The conversational skills of a mute with the heart of a giant, if you needed a helping hand, he would always be there for you. Reliable, trustworthy, and easily amused, he made a great addition to the posse. Thanks for all the memories Kev.

Adam

Sezate

Is it tea, coffee, cigars, pipes, rugby, boxing or the YP Squadron? Adam is trendy and can't always stick to one fad. This salsa is really great! How is Anita? Maybe you could go on a quick little trip to India to learn more about your future in-laws? The sleepy turtle, such a great place. And then there was the trip to Mexico... glad everything turned out OK. Academics were never too hard for Adam, he even got his minor. Three years as roomies, what happened youngster year? He needed to have fun. Hey man, I had a really big lunch. All I need is some tortillas with cheese. "Only losers play WoW." What level are you now? Now it's off to Tomahawk School. Konnichiwa!

Zerbin

Singleton

"So hoist our colors, hoist them high, and vow allegiance true, so long as sunset gilds the sky above the ocean blue, unlowered shall those colors be whatever fate they meet, so glorious in victory, triumphant in defeat."

Frank

Sisto

Franklin T. Baggins, as we all know him, hails from the state affectionately known as "Dirty Jersey." After doing his time as a dirty prior he showed up to the Academy as one of our valued color-blind classmates. In much the same way as he couldn't decipher colors, he had trouble picking out the potential situation brewing with trouble. There was Ocean City with Jordan, weeknight outings in the crew boats to see our beloved Johnies, and the infamous Towson trip. That won't be forgotten. Besides finding trouble T. Baggins found some time to help the less fortunate as he took charge of the Habitat for Humanity project. And outside of his studious efforts in EE he worked hard to set records for time spent watching TV and spent many an hour catching up on sleep while Ballard and Broome would eat his leftovers, which by the way there were always leftovers when it came to Franklin's small appetite. As Frank goes off into the unknown top secret world of cryptology we all wish him well.

Peter

Slye

"Now colleges from sea to sea - May sing of colors true, - But who has better right then we - To hoist a symbol hue? - For sailors brave in battle fair - Since fighting days of old, - Have proved a sailor's right to wear - The Navy Blue and Gold."

Jenny

Smith

Although she will never admit it, Jenny is truly an amazingly smart and kind person. She is always willing to lend a hand to her shipmates academically and physically. She loves working out and eating healthy but she'll never turn down a delicious cup of frozen yogurt from Steerage. She is also extremely indecisive. Air Force? Med School? Marine Ground? This CRAZY DUCK, managed to earn 100 demerits her second semester firstie year (which made her mother proud), ran in a 50 mile race (keeping a speedy pace), and still had enough energy to keep her roomies entertained. She is a practical leader who is going to make a great doctor....ROOMIE! We go like dis? You should be sleeping...smart people sleep. Wanna cross the gap tonight? Horace the man whore? Girls Rule, Boys Drool...only sometimes.

Struzinski

Struzy! The awesome beer-loving pterodactyl that could conquer lands (and people) at will. Oh ya,,do you remember the Brad Paisley concert? Good times. Definitely the opposite of Jon when it comes to clothes. Where Jon wears his bright colorful clothes, Tyler opts for something a little more practical, such as a cowboy hat, huge belt buckle, wife beater, torn jeans and the same shirt every weekend. Saving money is boring. Crew was found to be a bit hard so sailing was much better and easier. I shouldn't have jumped from the boat.

Jeguang

Sung

"So hoist our colors, hoist them high, and vow allegiance true, so long as sunset gilds the sky above the ocean blue, unlowered shall those colors be whatever fate they meet, so glorious in victory, triumphant in defeat."

Daniel Tantillo

Dirty Dan journeyed to the mainland from Puerto Rico for his four years by the Severn. Always the knowledgeable one when it came to technology, he was the go-to guy for all tech questions and always proved to be helpful to his fellow classmates. His knowledge probably took him too far as he loved to take advantage of the rest of us by messing with our computers on a regular basis. He was able to find plenty of time outside his studies to pursue another midshipman fondly known as the Dragon. Once he "reeled" her in and went over to the Dark Side, she took over the "grip" of the relationship and never seemed to want to let go. From Youngster year on out she held a firm grip on Daniel, as she loved to sweetly call him. We have some good memories together including a few from Coach's house. Remember that stellar purchase you made in the Mercedes? Oh and how about those Russians? Have they called lately? Well here's to hoping you have a good career as an NFO and a great life outside the Navy.

Amanda Towey

Tow-Tow, Taz, Laxy, NWL's little red-headed Irish girl, was a servant to her teammates; dances like a white girl-Cascada; SD summer '05, "We're in the money;" ND road trip, welp c ya! Prowest sketch - Togatramid '06, "options", pool side tours; lost forever at Preakness; Air Force '06 followed by restriction 60, 2 hour long sprints in her honor, 6k vs. 1k-5k Turkey bowl; BTC '07 – every night's $1 beer night in Nica; Irish love – "just leave it, right you are, I know" – Killarney, car bombers, legendary, Sneem tour, take-away chicken burgers, ketchup packets; midnight treks to McDonald's, lost shoes, and My Boys hangovers; Ireland songs and chats down Stribling "the word on Strib"; The Surf City 6, Team Twin; Inaugural season, first ever lax team captain, quarterback of the team; Tow will be remembered as creative, giving, athletic and the life of the party.

Robert Tumminello

If I were to summarize Robert Bethpage Tumminello in one word, it would be phenomenal, courageous, audacious, bodacious, everlasting, neverending, neverlasting, aspiring, nefarious, cultured, determined, even keeled, compassionate, sharp. I remember the day I first met Rob, the innocent little cub he was. He says to me he says, "Casey," and I says back to him I says, "Yes Rob?" "Casey, I ain't afraid. All my life, I've set sail to conquer conquests, to hurdle hurdles, and, my friend, this is just another thorn in the bush." As he violently wagged his finger across the plane of my face, I knew that he meant business. And that was it. Rob has tamed this wild boar of an Academy. From high A's to low D's on his PRT. From frequent showering, to not so frequent showering. From 4.0's to… 4.0's. Once a midshipboy, now a midshipman, Rob has been an incredible friend and roommate. And I know that no matter what, he will accomplish anything he sets his mind to in life.

Christopher Waddell

"Four years together by the Bay where Severn joins the tide, then by the Service called away, we've scattered far and wide; but still when two or three shall meet, and old tales be retold, from low to highest in the Fleet will pledge the Blue and Gold."

Jonathan Ward

Hailing from Seal Beach CA, this Buddha Belly always wanted it starboard rigged. A Wise Man at heart, he never lost his wing man status, even when he slummed. This fleshy kid was always having fun, in whatever he did, because California knows how to party. JWs could be serious too, because you either need to lose this weight or drop your erg score. A member of Hubbard's best, he would never think of becoming…one of those dirty warriors. No, it was only Hollywood tan beds for Ensign JW to get ready to strut his stuff at the gay bars in China. He almost made it to the end…the 2% club was in full view until the bombs dropped and Jon was a full member of the varsity once again -- for two weeks. Now it's on to Charleston for this member of the Sub-Marine corps. If he wasn't rolling to THE BEST MO EVER it was DAS BOOT, crimson tide, and other submarine recruiting bus trips. Shut up, you're going subs and you're going to like it. Hunt deep!

Wallace Witt

This curious little creature likes thumbing through books while sniffing the pages, listening to hardcore rap music while bobbing his head up and down and shining his shoes at the same time, smacking his lips and going to Ashley's on the weekend. Our fearless leader was never at a loss for polo shirts. I mean he has like 50 of the same shirt except different colors! "I used to go to a real college man, it was so much better…you don't know what it was like!" You got jumped and taped to the chair. I'm sorry Angie got upset that day. You are not black by the way. I hope by the time you read this that you realize that. Engineers suck too. Dude… how about that spring break eh? Good one? Yaaa, I know it was. You do to. I hope by now you are flying what you wanted and didn't fail out of flight school. Take it easy on Kevin's face next time.

John Berjuega

From the great country of the Philipines comes a man, a myth, a legend. John Berjuega counted to infinity, twice. His terrible bargaining and negotiating skills were heard about around the world. He was, as many would say, a "freakin nasty" He quickly became famous among the herd through his wild hair-do's, high and tight to very long hair. He was a fashion icon when it came to hair & also, a very handy and knowledgeable barber. His discoveries and accomplishments in the field of Information Technology were endless. He truly was a gentleman and a scholar. Hey John you've got any Ramen soups? Of course you do! Formation time! Where is John? Oh, he's either asleep or in Baltimore. You are a man that doesn't believe in formations. But today we salute you John Berjuega, because you did show up to your last and most meaningfull formation, Graduation day! even if you were a bit late... Pinoy Ako!

Warren Bong

Herro! Hailing from Southern California (everything north of it is Canada), WhaBong enjoys In-N-Out Burger and long walks on the seawall, as well as Crabs, Beans and KyDog. He can often be seen sailing into the sunset on a YP, or being the ever reliable running buddy (he has really nice legs!). He infamously led the YP Squadron on expedition to Alaska to fish for king crab, resulting in the end of the 2007 King Hall Famine. Although he is often seen with three HOT blondes, his preference still lies in the East, and they only appear to be sleeping. He is loved dearly by his A Team. . . Rah. We will never forget the good times and the bad, including when you almost burnt the house down. We all have a shipmate named Bong! SIR???

Timothy Bonham

All those who meet T-Bone, beware. Due to his uncanny ability to make up anything, including writing a 10 page research paper in 3 hours with about 30 minutes of research, he tends to rattle off random and dubiously accurate answers to any and all questions. Other than this amazing skill which few can master, he is probably the shortest pilot to ever graduate, and we wish him luck sneaking a pillow into his aircraft so he can see over the instruments. Perhaps it is his small stature that made him such a master at flying under the radar, accruing zero demerits, though he deserved hundreds more. From Hong Kong to New Orleans, Montreal to South Bend, the memories may be blurry, but they'll last forever.

Alessandro Bove

Four years went by, Alessandro Michel Bove IV, the Honduran sensation from teguci-what? ...wait, where are you from? acting up in gilmore's class..."si si verdad si?" Your adventures in MoCo and your trip to court youngster year...you turned 21 over the summer and you haven't looked back since, and never will...the trip to your brother's shoebox while wearing sport coats then the resulting mayhem ...Florida and the hot tub... Panama City and being hungover twice a day, for seven straight days. You showed europe what a suave Italian Honduran can do....2/C class year hit and it was hunting season...First to the Cheap Reserve for pitchers then to Pussers for the classy drinks, then to the Fedahoe or O'B's for the, well you know...Hail The White Russian Mafia! Bowl game 2007 and the flasks...So here's to you Ale because after 3 iPhones, and countless White Russians you're finally a Naval Academy alumni... stay thirsty my friend.

Kraegen Bramer

Kraegen "Hammer-Duke-Doodle-Poof" Bramer is a California (Auburn) kid who flirts solely with perfection. Whether it be in the classroom choking down aeronautical engineering, or gritting out the varsity track practices which brought him numerous and nagging injuries, he represented not only excellence but the pinnacle of performance. Way to go ... you didn't even get to sit by us at graduation. Truthfully, he is best known for his fierce faith, compassionate brotherly love, and his solid determination. And abs. Hmm ... Interesting ... Representing the best in all of us, binding us together, and shaming us with our shirts off, his humility is glaringly obvious. Keep the faith, yut it up, fly high, and your brothers will remember you from the halls of Bancroft to the shores of Costa Rica.

William Burke

Will hailed from all over the world and coasted through plebe year…good thing 2.0 is a go. Tijuana? He gained fame for the reform bash he threw youngster year and for attending the 7 am practice the next morning. Youngster year involved many trips to CP, several road trips… NYC (Brass Monkey incident?), summer concerts…I found a reason to drive, protramid 06…what happened? Charleston… what was her name again? Galley introduced…the thing is they're all refreshing. Continuing on to 2/C year, another kick off the year blowout…barely making march-on, Soggy…deep sleeper, Riordan's Tuesday nights, fall birthday marathon, Kildee… cops at the shed, let's take shots. The Galley and the Shed became trademarks of debauchery and brotherhood. Firstie year- YP's, the dream squad 4-1,legendary tailgaters (slush fund), co-creator of bar golf, spring shenanigans…class optional, rally in the Galley (I'm all caught up man). Fair Winds and Following Seas… more good times ahead!

Amanda Burney

Amanda Burney (aka Amanda Panda or the little one), the waterskiing queen from Indiana, was always willing to lend a helping hand. She was always there to hear our girlfriend problems, making three a.m. runs to BMU to save lives, always checking on Grahambo, helping everyone with thermo, always taking Dobie's door when no one else would, and who could forget the yearly birthday cake she always shared? Notre Dame – staying at the Burney's – breaking the streak, the BSU ski trips, spring break to Puerto Rico, and cleaning up the room full of leaves. Amanda could always be seen with John - who made her the Color Girl who didn't give kisses - and now they're getting hitched! Firstie year – whitewater rafting, meeting Brad Paisley, early morning airport runs + donuts, crazy PRT, "I want to break free," working for Grip. Even though stripes called Amanda away from the Herd (Brigade OPS!), we've always known she was, and is, destined for the High Command!

Alexandra Cole

Alexandra Cole has had a long road from Texas to NMMI to USNA. Although Alexandra is small in stature, she has the biggest heart. She is someone you can count on to get the job done. Plebe year she ran the JFK 50 mile marathon, Youngster year she led her NASS squad to success, 2nd class year Alex earned the utmost respect from her plebes when she was Training Sergeant and Firstie year she practically led her company from the front as the Company Executive Officer. These are only a few examples of her dedication to her people. From NYC, SoCal, Atlantic City, Jersey, Nanos, Adam's Morgan, Rock and Metal, Nights in DC, The "Yes" Crew at Six Flags, Morongo, Alex still knows how to have fun! Worker by day and artist by night there is a certain twinkle in her eye that makes her a wonderful woman that will be a fine Marine.

Joseph Contento

Mack smooth-talking, 'free and easy', southern pride North Carolina native was a true 'Parrot Head' during his four years by the bay. Forever conscious even when not conscious of his legacy, Mack left his mark on his company-mates, the calendar and desk, and embraced numerous salty-midreg traditions around the yard such as high pool ceilings, red bricks, and goats in December. He sailed, LAXed, and inspired others the day he got his pilot's license. A true fan of Memorial Day through Labor Day, this summer loving gentleman quenched his thirst for adventure no matter the day or season. He made the dark ages a little brighter with sweet tea and road trips on the weekends. But above all the fun, stories, and memories, Mack was a friend one could count on, a brother a sister could lean on, and a son parents could be proud of. Fair winds and following seas!

Achala Edirisinghe

L always has a little annunciation problem w/ birds; clean your showers; henna in Venice rocks your socks; QAF at 3am is a great study tool; Samurai Champloo was how it started, Corpse Bride was how it got rolling; Chevy's cures all aches; being this klutzy takes mad skill; DC is not jacket optional in Feb; Little Red Riding Hood never looked so good, neither did Team Tecumseh; good luck in the mall doesn't mean good luck with the bus; SU when L's sleeping, and watch out for Godzilla; summers on Sunset were a lifesaver; Kitanocho, Kobe JP best city in the world; burrito runs in red cat ears and malibou ear muffs; plt sgt love!!!!

Always adventure, never explore.

Michael Enloe

An Indiana native, Mike Enloe arrived in Annapolis having lived across the United States, bringing with him the attributes of a true gentleman, determined warrior, and devoted patriot characteristic of great Americans throughout the nation. Mike spent his four years as a vital member of the Drum and Bugle Corps bringing invaluable support to countless contests in which the Brigade engaged. He simultaneously showed immense aptitude and passion for Systems Engineering and the martial arts, sharpening his mind and enhancing his martial capabilities through the study of Bujinkan in preparation of the defense of the United States Constitution. Throughout this process, Mike showed no hesitation to assist his group three roommate in his own engineering endeavors while mastering the use of ancient weapons against his unarmed compatriots. Selected to serve as a Naval Aviator, Mike finished his time at the Academy scraping with the anticipation of flying high while rendering aid to his fellow service members on the ground. A man with great love for God and country, Mike has proven himself a true friend and dependable brother in arms. God bless and God speed my brother and friend.

William Favia

"Now colleges from sea to sea - May sing of colors true, - But who has better right then we - To hoist a symbol hue? - For sailors brave in battle fair - Since fighting days of old, - Have proved a sailor's right to wear - The Navy Blue and Gold."

Jason Feipel

"Feip" hails from the great state of Iowa where he played football, baseball, and track. In his spare time he shucked corn and fed homeless people. At the Academy he excelled in just about everything. On the surface he was a standout athlete and a great student, but he had many more accomplishments that were not noticed. For four years, he kept one of his roommates alive after carrying him down to medical five times, two of which resulted in hospitalizations. Despite the hefty time requirements of Poli Sci, Feip unofficially majored in history, helping two of his roommates with almost everything academic for four years. While he hates to dance, don't make fun of him because it will leave a scar, or at least a black eye, and you better leave him alone when he's on the phone with Sarah. After the Ring Dance second class year he also managed to keep everybody safe from everything using Marine Corps fire tactics in Baltimore harbor. From life saving to anti-terrorism, Feip is a guy you can always count on.

Kevin Flippin

The Flipper hails from the state of North Carolina, right on the beach, or a hayfield, given how alike those two are. A master of all things physics and nothing common sense, he dominated the academic side of life on the Yard. Never one to party excessively, he did have at least one confirmed drink during his time by the Bay. The Corps has their work cut out for them, turning this mild mannered computer whiz into the flying fighting machine we know he really is. Best of luck Kevin, Semper Fi.

Eric Gardiner

Dude, a man with a gravelly voice and considerable ears, a force in the water but horribly uncoordinated on land. "Eric, wasn't your shirt on just a minute ago?" Newport Beach and the OC, stairway to heaven, & a not-so-big party after UB40. Carrying on the legacy of the Staubach Room: maintaining the Heasley log, polishing the eagle, pro bookshelf, naked study hour, and keeping the swamp fox at bay. "Mr. Gardiner, explain to me how it is possible that you are a member of the water polo team and still do well at the academy." A flailing nerd in the pool, 2 NCAA's, 8 brothers, HI training trips. 10 visits a day from Ricciardi. Cult meetings. OBX stark beach runs. However, this "Prince of Federal House" did have his vices—a catacombs rendezvous, a mustache ride, a couple fields, & 2 gold medals in the x-games. "I just can't help myself." Heineken and steak, car bombs, pitchers at fleet, painkillers on the deck. Bro, I'm lucky to know you. Let's face it—Eric loved it here.

James Goodson

Hey guys these are my kids... don't you like them, aren't they awesome? James Ryan Goodson, aka, "Goody", is and has always been a charismatic basket case. Never without some gourmet king hall cake, Goody seriously knows how to entertain squirrels from all walks of life. It must be the experience of being one of those priors. But let's be serious Goody is one of those 25-year-olds who is too cool for a driver's license. E.A.D! Thank God he's going SWO. ROOMMATES ASSEMBLE! To all those haters that said he would never make it through the Naval Academy, PARADE REST!

Nathan Hayba

Looked pretty gaunt at PPW, but he gained some weight, especially in the rear. Trips to the stadium for the lacrosse game in blue over khaki: "Hey, nice ass". Interesting trips to Philly for the Army-Navy games…theme song "Come on Eileen." Root beer fridge on the window ledge, grilling dogs on the George Foreman, beach parties during the Dark Ages, Preakness, Gish's Galley. The only guy to ever "Nate Hayba" an apartment. Vacation to West Point. The darkest of the dark side. Keeping Soggy in line no matter what the cost. Building fences with the brother. Naval Academy Return Anxiety Syndrome. Shooting seagulls with a shotgun on the Severn while squatting illegally at maritime museums on St. Michaels using a chart stolen from the Seanav chart room. Finding sweet places on Google Earth to drive to. Elegant Violence rugby brothers. Don't forget the Skoal Brotherhood. To sum up the Academy experience: "This is just great."

Kevin Heasley

Soggy, Wendy's manager, nope USNA, Yo, soggs, are you gonna take home the extras from the frosty machine. Philly, "I brought Navy Boys, do you care if I made out with your friend?" Show-n-Tell? Preakness, super…I've been carrying this all day man. Wake Forest? Random outbursts, Easy Midshipman, Easy, I need this. "Thank you Mr. Heasley for your monthly $2500 deposit." Get him a bra. Dark Ages, knock the bottom out of what? 1438 Penthouse. "If soggy liked you 5% of the time, he loved you like family."

NAVY

Graham Hollander

Grahambo hails from the inner city streets of Washington, D.C., and amazingly survived his journey to graduation. He almost died on several occasions, and probably has the worst luck of anyone. Thanks to his never say die attitude, he defied all the odds and pulled through to the end. "I know where we're going, just a few more blocks," cracking a knuckle at an Ac Board, getting carried through the streets of Georgetown, appendicitis, going into shock and getting loaded in a laundry cart, the black eye from hell, Val, cleaning up bright green puke at 3 a.m., the 30 minute journey to brigade medical, "no, I won't take a number," the really bad penguin joke, a million cans of Red Bull and Diet Pepsi Max, staying up all night in Senior's office, driving Collin Mochrie and Brad Sherwood to the airport and stopping at Dunkin Donuts both times, endless summers of summer school, and some really great friends along the way.

Darryl Hunter

"So hoist our colors, hoist them high, and vow allegiance true, so long as sunset gilds the sky above the ocean blue, unlowered shall those colors be whatever fate they meet, so glorious in victory, triumphant in defeat."

James Landreth

The paragon of southern gentility, this son of Alabama was midshipman by day and White Russian Mafioso by night. Pour a drink out in respect for the three German traveling DJs. The world awaits their return. Remember conquistadores, "In a desert, even dirty water looks good." For future generations: Beware of the quarter million dollar doorstops, They have feelings too.

Jeffrey Laupola

This sophisticated bad boy laid claim to an undefeated boxing record while living the dream on the banks of the Severn. Due to a few strong right hooks to the pineapple, Jeff couldn't find his own things and decided that "Hawaii Time" was too fast paced. This big man prided himself on his agility and enjoyed a game of pickup basketball or "kick tag" when something needed to be settled. Due to his size and light skin tone after the Dark Ages, Jeff became known as "Pola" Bear. This name held true when marching through blizzards in New York and changing tires on the side of the highway en route to Boston. The most inopportune weekend proved to be the best time for a trip to NickMo's to spend a night out on the town with The Folk or eating Chipotle… again! Other travels taught Jeff how to stay warm on a park bench, embrace his Irish heritage and learn that Chinese tea costs way too much! Chuck Norris couldn't stop this charismatic and capable Hawaiian from doing big things.

Caroline
Lynch

Outfitted with an M&M sized bun, Kai Lynch started a fateful course leading through the perils of mononucleosis (syllables = times she had it) and (gasp) engineering courses! This novel lover braved blows to encounter her final enemy: the sea. "I shall overcome!," said she, and armed with Ginger Snaps, she did, becoming Master and Commander of a lone YP in its desperate quest to maintain course and speed despite calls- "Charlie Tree Oscar...PVMTF: Where are you?" If only Ginger Snaps worked with a certain Green Machine or Metro times, could further crisis be adverted! But, when there are none to be had, Miss Lynch will comfort you with herbal tea, questionable Korean food ("I swear, it's really tasty"), and a serenade. When the occasion called for it (as it often did), a tea party complete with Gus Gus the mouse was in order. But what we will remember the most of our loyal friend is evening question: "Does anyone want noodles?"

Andrew
Martin

From that first day over Plebe Summer, Andrew Martin was a special person. Special, in the Plebe Summer kind of way, of course. That first summer spent ripping racks, shining shoes, killing bears, watching war cry contests, and singing Navy fight songs in three part harmony is a long trail of memories. We spent the next two years apart. Then came 2/C year, and the "Joe-bie" room. The SEAL screener had him looking more pathetic than ever. Then he abandoned our glorious banks of the Severn for a 6 month parole in the far more relaxed People's Republic of China. He came back looking like a terrorist in all his glory. Having transferred from SEALs to SWOs, he took more engineering classes second semester than his ESE roommate did. And of course, the Room From Hell. I'm sure the smell of stripper and wax will forever haunt his dreams. As a roommate, friend, fellow warrior, and brother, there has never been a truer man. God Bless, Fair Winds, and Following Seas, my friend.

Carlos
Molina

Charles, you hailed from the beautiful Lawn Gisland where apparently everyone drinks "cawfee"... As 4 years flew by and you went from weighing like 90 to still weighing 90, and broke about 10 cellphones (you need insurance for life) ... your improv songs about whatever was on your mind will forever be remembered... "If found, please return to USNA"... You know how to appreciate a fine beer, even if it is a pitcher of miller lite... Firstie year came and you developed a form of pyromania... You, sir, are a gentleman and a scholar. Not everyone has the ability to turn in a final exam full of drawings, and still pass...NAPS detail and the Canadian... When are you gonna turn in that 3 week overdue Spanish essay? You got so pitted…so pitted... You cared the most when it counted, though, so today we salute you, Carlos Molina. And we toast to the next step, life has just started and we've got plenty of good times ahead.

Garrett
Moore

Garrett Moore, from five states north in cradle of American Independence - Mass. The original man of the mountain; give him a board and let him fly. A genuine "Made in the USA" All American. Bill the Goat can't buck him. He comes out of the roof and into the well - the 10 meter is for chumps. You'll find him in the ring for Friday Night fights - bloody knuckles and all. Always playing those love games with me. A founding member of La Hermandad. Here's to getting honor and getting to stay. Everyone loves taking trips: PR, "Open your eyes..." Breaking in for Crossfit - bigger faster stronger 24/7. LOST- both the best and the worst; I just want it to end. Staking our claim on 1436… among other places. Ladies and gentlemen, remember the name because you'll hear it again. Clear skies to you. Feed the Eagle.

Bradley Osmun

Brad Osmun. Hailing from the great state of Colorado, but a well travelled man at a young age thanks to the Colonel. Air Force at heart gone Navy by fate. He is the man on a pair of skis. A great Christian and a better friend. Freshman year shenanigans. The good life on 3-2. Road trip in Scottie's beamer and many more to follow at PSU. Spaghetti flies after a century. Vacations spent in powder. Brewed in the Rockies, just like you. Don't pull my hair out, I'm balding already! Facebook master. Sailing every summer. Poop flew in your face? Got 'im! Owning the pools from great heights. A broken shoulder can't keep you down. Don't slam the door when I'm sleeping! Sports are your second love. It has been an awesome four years, great memories have been etched with promises of more to follow. Good luck in P-Cola, fly high and safe, and stay away from E-6's.

Joshua Priebe

Josh Priebe, the friendly Bear from the North Countries, calls St. Claire, Michigan home. His massive frame made an impression on USNA from the first booming shout of "Sir, yes sir" which almost shattered eardrums, to his final days of shouting while getting his nightly dose of Bill O'Reilly. Josh was one you could always count on – for his outstanding collection of movies, especially '80's horror movies, to his detailed knowledge of anything involving the civil war. He enjoyed such things as napping, wrestling, dancing at every possible opportunity, and of course fine cuisine. One thing he didn't enjoy, however, was school. Josh's day could be measured by his roommates by the ferocity with which Josh either slammed (bad day) or gently dropped (good day) his book bag against his desk. Josh was the perfect road trip partner, roommate, and friend and his intense enthusiasm for the Naval Academy will be hard to replace for years to come.

Michael Ricciardi

"Now colleges from sea to sea - May sing of colors true, - But who has better right then we - To hoist a symbol hue? - For sailors brave in battle fair - Since fighting days of old, - Have proved a sailor's right to wear - The Navy Blue and Gold."

Jefferson Sarchione

"So hoist our colors, hoist them high, and vow allegiance true, so long as sunset gilds the sky above the ocean blue, unlowered shall those colors be whatever fate they meet, so glorious in victory, triumphant in defeat."

Christina Schade

"Slim" Schade, is "apparently a very memorable person!" From her daily morning doughnuts to an addiction to cold 2% milk (the only fitting drink for a proud member of the 2% Club), her Super Secret Ninja Skills (as proper for a member of the Rifle Team), and sneakers that talk, Christy came to the Academy with a haircut that at first "made her look like a boy...and then a mushroom" and leaves here with the proud motto, "I'm Here To Fly Planes", the acronym (IHTFP) which was boldly emblazoned by those already graduated on her desk in Karpo's Aero classroom. She brightened the long days for all her roommates, decorating the room for every major holiday months in advance ("I'd have done it sooner, but the Academy wouldn't let me!"). She has been one of the best roommates anyone could ask for, even prepared to deal gracefully with roommates running out of the room as she was mid-sentence in one of her stories. Adios nuestra amiga, y ojalamos que tendrias un buen vida con la armada.

Jared Shullick

JROTC General Shullick came to THE Academy because he was THE man. Jared's intellect and determination served him well as an Ocean Easy major. He also exhibited extraordinary marksmanship as he won a Silver medal in Olympic competition, I think. There were few challenges that deterred this hard charger. For example, he boxed the National Heavy Weight Champ, swam with sharks, played "collegiate football", drank oysters, ate 3 lbs. of rice and beans, was a wingman extraordinaire and faced hives of killer bees in the name of hair care. The kryptonite of this self proclaimed superman was red food dye which often reappeared in a vocal and violent volcanic eruption. Jared was always up for traveling. He ate "meat"balls in China, danced a jig on St. Patty's day in Dublin, ran through a Puerto Rican rain forest and didn't back down from a haphazard Spring Break road trip that ended up on a private island in the Bahamas. Here's to many laughs shared, lessons learned and loves pursued...Cheers!

Judson

Thomas

Judson J.C. Thomas. Do the middle initials stand for, you know? Nope, it's Judson Joseph-Calhoun Thomas, despite his Brad Pitt-esque good looks and notable perfection, he is not the second coming. Proud to be a Nevada man, Fallon to be exact. A love chitter from 19, the 3rd Herd welcomed him with open arms. Friendships were cast in stone and the good times rolled. You have to strip and wax your floor again by yourself? High flying from LeJune...finally. Camping moon falls, cliff jumps, do you seriously have another track meet this weekend? Grey's is a good show! Entourage fan 'til the end, he'd give Vince a run for his money with the ladies. Always a ready laugh and a charming smile. The best of friends and a big part of the greatest memories. Good luck in the submarine community brother, keep in touch, make the money, and may the good times roll for years to come.

Nicholas

Valladarez

Hailing from Dallas, Texas, never lets us forget it. First day dubbed "V" 'cause that last name was too crazy for zero hour of plebe summer. It stuck. Half-hairiest man alive. Wanted to fly and got to dive, but makin the money and smoking Cubans all the way to the bank. Now for the memories, mostly in chronological order: Vallavfnpb what? OK, V. A whole pizza by yourself? Wrestling, turning grey, drug trafficking?, you're not going to intramurals again? long naps (you can sleep through anything), late night jogs, la trucka, no me touches, goat ride, B'more club, oh man Goody threw up on the floor, spring break in Puerto Rico, dude I gotta move out, girls...that's enough about that, sports fields, lets just move his stuff out and put my stuff in, LOST, crossfit, good times, great laughs, awesome memories.

Vivek Ahuja

The angry south asian from ATL arrived from G Tech to be cast vicariously as both victim and villain by the vicissitudes of Fate (as his aptitude rankings and comments display)… but you may call him V. The Dow fell on June 30, 2004 as the economy headed toward a bear market. Nonetheless, pursuing your wall street dreams American Psycho style, you tortured your roommates with INXS and Huey Lewis and the News on a nightly basis. Always bitter, never anything less than cynical, you were always better than everyone else- just ask, and you'll tell us. However, you were always surrounded by friends who would do anything for you (birthday in South America) and definitely one for the ladies (Mills' basement). But your four years wouldn't be complete without a hearty expletive every morning from your roommate (until abandoned in exchange for a "wholesome" roomie). So V, here's one last "bleep"to get you going after a long, lonely night on the sub as you're bro-ing it up under the sea.

James Amberg

Hey, F.U. Burg-lar- y (noun): the act of completely making up irrelevant and erroneous information when discussing relatively important topics, often used to feign real intelligence or expertise about a subject. Synonyms: see phrase "oh yeah!". From the fiery hell of upstate New York, you came riding to Annapolis upon a fiery Harley-Davidson, cigarette in one hand and authentic Amberg wine in the other. YES, you are a joe. We know that every time you supposedly asked for "an uptown fade", you really asked for a high-and-tight. And we know that you really begged and pleaded for that striper job, even if it meant sticking your roomies with J.C. superstar. You live, bleed, and will die the Corps. Just embrace it (you already managed to get a concussion doing pull-ups). But seriously, downloading the Gunther, Rihanna, and Jason Mraz songs is not fooling anyone. You did well, despite managing to sleep through nearly every study hour in four years…Hey, F.U.

Krysta Anthony

Krysta Noel Anthony was born in Seoul, Korea but grew up in Tullahoma, Tennessee which resulted in the first Asian with a southern accent that her classmates ever met. Her athletic prowess immediately earned her respect from all, but presented her with unlimited choices when she had to decide which sport to pick. Her decision to join intercollegiate sailing introduced her to some of her closest friends and an enduring case of hypothermia. She could usually be found at her desk programming for her "robots class" while watching Gilmore girls, on a yut run, or socializing on the streets of downtown Annapolis. Although allergic to a drop of alcohol, Krysta still managed to speak fluent Spanish- much to the dismay of her non-Spanish speaking roomie. This Battalion CDR with a dagger instead of a sword was one of the smallest in stature, but her ambitions for success were gigantic. Shipmate, all your Navy twins and friends will miss you in the fleet, but know you belong in the Corps. Rah.

Bruce

Derrick Bruce, aka: Bruce Bruce, Tom Brady, Mr. Peer Pressure, or Dr Bruce, Hails from the great state of Texas. Bruce was the professional Commander of 4th company during the week, but on the weekends when not commanding Joes, Bruce Bruce came out in full effect. Many memories from: Getting swoll in Rickets, Thanksgiving day practice, Coach Jones, 300 yard shuttles, summer camp wawa trips, running till someone quits, ND victory, Wreck by Nissan Pavilion, Ocean City, Atlantic City Black Jack, Every bodily fluid possible released in the Tahoe, Brawl at Uni Maryland, Army-Navy Blackouts, Random Drunk Girl at Flugtag, Billy Bobs, Police harassment on New Years, Getting into it with Redskin Fans, Brothers Condo, Vip in D.C., Front Page, Camellot, Spring Break, Smoking Heaters, Two for Tuesday, Getting Owned on Boat day, Beach Day, Taking the Larsen's Boat, Fox Fields, Tyson Stahl's, Passing out in the infield, Pouring Rain running from tent to tent, SmackME, Beer spraying contest. "You guys need to get all of this out of your system" Bruce's classic response "What, being awesome?". Taking easily ten years off our lives, priceless.

Carl Roy

Catalan

Carl Roy Lazarte Catalan, the pride of the Philippines, has been the most enigmatic figure at the Naval Academy over the past four years. Unlike most of his shipmates, "Cat" had the unique ability to hide behind his language barrier when he saw fit. Fortunately for all of those around him, Carl did not do this too much, and his carefully chosen words were often filled with humor, inspiration, and at times, both. A gifted guitarist, masseuse, athlete, and Command and Conquer general, he was truly a renaissance man. Carl Roy also held several records at the Academy, including: most sponsor families, quickest recovery time from major surgery, and the fastest time to earn a driver's license. Though he is returning to his beloved "land of gentle people," the legacy Carl left at the Academy, and the impact he made on his friends and shipmates, will not soon fade. We will miss you dawg. Suwertehin ka sana! Mabuhay!

Taylor

Dodd

From the sunny sands of the OC (via Princeton), you arrived at USNA totally unaware that you would lose the weight of a small child within about eight weeks. There's no way Naptown was ready for the "so aggressive", oorah-motivated (yeah, right), SoCal warrior. The Scatman showed that with enough dogged determination, handsome butt chins, and Smirnoff Ice, anyone can enjoy fancy threes (SD) and fancy fours (Matty J). Years of sprint football helped develop a strong repertoire of "locker-room" antics which are necessary to deal with two extremely type-A roommates (who are definitely NOT locker room types). Despite the good times (South Padre, Ring Dance, Towson, CP) and the bad ("hold up, aren't you CDO today?...WHERE are you?"...Jose at 6am in SPI?), T-Nut has endured four years by the bay and arrived at the ultimate goal. Hopefully the Corps will let you keep up your tennis game, because in the next ten years maybe one of your roommates will play with you.

Benjamin Gabbard

Big Ben Gabbard. Proud member of the Sweet 16. True testament to the magic of Hydroxycut. Passed the PRT at 275. The hometown hero from right up the street. 4 out of 5 random people in DTA knew who he was. Old fashioned southern gentleman with Samoan size. Always down for a game of hallway lacrosse, "someone get a baseball glove!" Fiercely loyal with an explosive temper that would make Niumat proud. High five, great success! SHIPEE. Knew every line from every movie ever made. Guido is the man. Poopz . Was always on facebook way way way too much. During plebe summer he always waited to puke during pep until he was right at the end in front of all the important people...thanks to everyone that helped me get through these past four years. I love all of you guys, I'll never forget all the times we shared, good and bad. Remember me. God Bless.

Elizabeth Grider

Elizabeth "Dirty G" Grider hailed from the Hoosier state...she was best known for her completely unpredictable behavior, to include her frequent "good games" in volleyball, her late night cruisin' up T-court, and jumping off of bridges in Texas... she can be described as fearless, or just plain crazy...Biz had a knack for going too fast, not only in her driving but on the court-Coach:"Liz, STAY OUT OF THE NET!"...she was known to make a grown man cry, with one of her famous massages! Lizzy loved to get down with her homies, but don't ask her to remember one particular night in B'more with the famous "Jesus carry."...honorary member of 15th Co and permanent resident of the condo... don't ask her to get a paper done on time "Yeah, you mean the one due last month?", but when you needed advice, she was always there...her infectious laugh and personal nature made her easy to be around and her heart was always in the right place, even if her mind wasn't! A loyal and loving friend... someone we will never forget...

Joseph Gursky

"So hoist our colors, hoist them high, and vow allegiance true, so long as sunset gilds the sky above the ocean blue, unlowered shall those colors be whatever fate they meet, so glorious in victory, triumphant in defeat."

Stephanie
Hamilton

Stephanie is as tall as someone might expect, being from the great big town of Canton, Ohio. You know, that town with the Football Hall of Fame. Steph's march through the four years on the Severn hasn't been easy. Her time has been marked by trial and tribulation, and a fair share of jubilation. An English Major at heart pushing through the Mech E curriculum (everybody knows that nobody in the Mech E department actually enjoyed reading Jane Austen's books, twice). Guided by a sincere dedication to her friends and family, Steph has been more than a friend to everyone who would call her friend. She celebrates life through her relationships and is very generous. She is charismatic, a little stubborn, and sometimes confidently argumentative. Steph has fostered great friends from Wyoming, over to Jerusalem, and the Caribbean in her treks through wilderness and beyond. She is remembered as a great friend who had a lot of fun.

Tristen
Hannah

From the land of the giant redwoods came the best coxswain the Navy Lightweight Crew team has ever known. Leading his boat to multiple championships, his short stature conceals a commanding voice and precise steering abilities. Through extensive training in combat simulators (Halo 3), Mr. Hannah has perfected his skills in squad tactics, and learned that if he is losing, it is not due to a lack of his superiority as a leader, but the fault of the gaming system. Being the lone Republican from Portland, Oregon, Mr. Hannah has perfected his political argument, which generally culminates in something similar to "you are wrong, I am right. Deal with it;" though the only audience privy to his debating prowess is generally the television screen. As a dedicated systems engineer, Mr. Hannah has designed, built, and operated an autonomous underwater vehicle. Getting back to relevant information, Mr. Hannah is sure to make a great submariner, as long as his Napoleon complex doesn't weigh him down.

Geraldine
Manalo

Hailing from the small islands of the Philippines... wait, Manassas, Virginia? From "healthy" McDonalds to uniform items, her family was always there for her at a moment's notice. Determined yet practical, G knew when enough was enough☒ She was never afraid to stand up for what she believed in-especially if hair was too long, superiors were misinformed, her roommate was in the shower, she liked a boy, or if Midregs were not being followed. Geraldine will always be remembered for her interesting sense of humor, antagonism, and her ability to challenge and enforce the rules at the same time. Geraldine is a great person and friend and is always ready to share a laugh. I love you G.

Dante Marshall

"Now colleges from sea to sea - May sing of colors true, - But who has better right then we - To hoist a symbol hue? - For sailors brave in battle fair - Since fighting days of old, - Have proved a sailor's right to wear - The Navy Blue and Gold."

Ryan Patrick Mills

On June 30th, 2004, USNA was not ready for Ryan, ultimate Bro and son of Kent. And then on I-Day…MEAT happened. Whether it was hosting legendary brodeos and watching horror movies in your basement to standing restriction on a ship in California to enlisting in the Air Force in Costa Rica, you always stood by your four core principles: Champagne. Glamour. Sex. Respect. You of all people understand that with the good (3's in Cali, Sedona, SPI, Costa Rica, countless nights in Towson and College Park) there also comes the bad (Canadians in CR, warm Grey Goose, nights that turned into Three Days Grace songs). And let's not forget about the weird (Mr. Roboto, Salad Fingers, Willy Wonka?). So today we salute you, [M-unit, Nitro, Meatwagon, Midnight Meat Train, Remi, Rynoceros]. You truly know that you can judge someone else's worth with only two questions: 1) What's your Fran time? and 2)How much money do you make?

Eric Page

Mr. Page arrived at the Academy as God's gift to the Marine Corps. A fearless leader and Company Commander, Eric was the epitome of selflessness, a team player and above all a great friend. Eric could usually be found in the chemistry lab, debating with his liberal friends, or ensuring the plebes were living up to his high physical standards. Naturally imbued with the temperament, patience, and hair of a Marine, Eric spent three years preparing himself to join the few and the proud. Unfortunately, somewhere between his high and tight and the cammie face-paint hidden in his closet, Eric had suppressed a long-lived desire to join the even fewer, but not quite as proud, Navy Pilot community. Yut rah Eric Page, and if you can overcome this state of obvious confusion, your future holds no bounds.

Evan Parnell

Hailing from the "dirrdy" south, this 6 foot 5 mountain of a man epitomizes all things against submarines and totally SWO. From his 101 reasons he enjoys "Turkey", to his engraving in his class ring (Navigare necesse est, vivere non est necesse) he has endured countless hours of laboratories, trips to the smoke pit, and the occasional "stop to the pub." His trials over his tenure were only surpassed by his unrelenting resolve to succeed and graduate, while even enduring the occasional badgering from a friend while "encouraging" in passing the PRT. All of his experiences have made others laugh, as well as, at times, made everyone shake their heads. It's not hard to spot Evan, especially when he was the guide at parades…man those chicken legs can fly. Evan is dedicated to his career and will do all he can to help those sailors that will soon be under his charge. One day we'll all meet again, and at the very least when we are old and grey, Evan will be easy to pick out in a crowd.

Christopher Romnek

Christopher Romnek. Hailing from the great state of Wisconsin (second only to the greater cheese producing state of California) he enlisted in the Navy when many of his company mates were still in middle school. The half-decade age difference, rapidly receding hairline, and carpet of chest hair that never failed to protrude from under his shirt set him apart from his classmates early on. As a chit surfing plebe (arthritis in his hips, ankles, knees, etc) he instantly earned the respect of his peers when a cadre greeted him "good morning chief." Affectionately known as Grand Old Man of the Navy, T-Rex, Archibald Romnek, Grandpa, Foomer Bag, and even Daddy by his roommates. Drunken close encounter with "dirty G", cougars, eternal submarine patrols, making fun of the quarter ginger, camping. A solid athlete despite his age, an excellent teacher despite his impatience, a good student despite his memory loss; Chris will always be remembered as a good leader and as a good friend.

Jeffrey Ryan

Midshipman Ryan, hailing from the great state of Southern California, arrived on I-Day with great aspirations. Jeff excelled at the Academy, despite often forgetting he was in the military. Although once being confused for an avid beer pong player, in reality, Jeff preferred to spend his weekends flying, enjoying unique festivals, or relaxing in the Bahamas. One of the few midshipmen who didn't take attitude from anyone, including the Alumni Association, Jeff pursued tireless crusades in efforts to better the Academy for future generations. Using his quick wit, and knack for photoshop, he frequently reminded us not to allow the (wo)man to get us down. Either as President of the United States, famous writer, host of a political satire show, or stay at home Dad, we all know your future will be bright.

Michael Sanders

"So hoist our colors, hoist them high, and vow allegiance true, so long as sunset gilds the sky above the ocean blue, unlowered shall those colors be whatever fate they meet, so glorious in victory, triumphant in defeat."

Marc Schron

"Super Schron" was born on deck 6-1 in Summer 2004, and then never really left Plebe Summer. Hints of Hedani's "doggone" and "good to go" were often heard as his SWOtivation infected all those around him. The five-year program was good to him (who doesn't love Newport?). Marc camouflaged himself in Lucky Bag blue-over-khaki the first two years. His name may have been on 3314, but the catacomb photo lab was his home. Youngster summer was his own ship, USS MY TUITION, and much enjoyment on the high Chesapeake seas. Shedding the photographer life, he gradually became socialized throughout PROTRAMID and Sailing Cadre (duty section 3 all the way). 2/C year was training and 3315 mayhem, leading nicely into Plebe Summer Cadre 2007. Face of the Navy & 2011 Training were the fall semester. He leaves a SAFETY-conscious Brigade, except for those crazy staff kids. 4th Company 4 Horsemen: enough said. In the end, it was worth it. Today I Gave Everything. Anything I Saved, Is Gone Forever.

Daniel Schuler

Dannyboy13 hails from the empty desert of cali from a rockstar mom. He waited 4 years to be balls bestest friend. Goin to town wearing the green, padded helmet while Chris takes a stroll down the fiery red carpet; Strapping it on with Skippy on your 21st. He did no work, but would mysteriously return after a 5 hour "workout" all sweaty and inexplicably sore with his guy buddies. He claims to kill rattlesnakes but can hold down his Copenhagen. Here's to you, yut-yut Dan.... Now take your pants off.

James Shannon

JP Shannon is considered by all dependable. His quick mind, practical experience, and self-disciplined nature make him of great worth as a colleague. Fortunately, many also find him a great friend. James is constantly willing to give advice or help when asked, and it is difficult not to look up to this Midshipman with his big smiles, tough work ethic, good friendships, and love of physical training. An engineer at heart, cool ideas from himself or those nearby often become finished products with ease and speed. Excited by adventures, James is easy to convince of the great merit of random, possibly difficult treks. Of all his positive qualities, James will be remembered as a good friend whose counsel and help are unmatched by others.

Cullen Shaughnessy

"Now colleges from sea to sea - May sing of colors true, - But who has better right then we - To hoist a symbol hue? - For sailors brave in battle fair - Since fighting days of old, - Have proved a sailor's right to wear - The Navy Blue and Gold."

Ryan Sload

"So hoist our colors, hoist them high, and vow allegiance true, so long as sunset gilds the sky above the ocean blue, unlowered shall those colors be whatever fate they meet, so glorious in victory, triumphant in defeat."

Anna Switzer

A woman of many talents, Anna came to the Academy with big shoes to fill. After a brief experiment as an aero major, Switz found that her true academic calling was in the realm of poli sci and language. She excelled in International Relations, Russian, and "fair and balanced" (gang-up) arguments against politically opposed classmates (Eric). Also a talented athlete, Anna made her mark as captain of the Women's tennis team. An avid lover of music, Anna charmed audiences across the nation with her lovely voice while on tour with the Stowaways. Her steadfast devotion to professional development and unwavering concern for her peers and subordinates earned her the honor of Squad Leader of the Semester. Shipmate, although the Broadway careers are on hold, I guess the Navy isn't such a bad second choice. If you ever need directions to Red Beach, Kristen can take you there. Steerage is the best place to study for exams, but only with Hersheys Kisses in the coffee. Peace, love, and FLY NAVY!

Brandon Taylor

"Four years together by the Bay where Severn joins the tide, then by the Service called away, we've scattered far and wide; but still when two or three shall meet, and old tales be retold, from low to highest in the Fleet will pledge the Blue and Gold."

Brice Turner

"Now colleges from sea to sea - May sing of colors true, - But who has better right then we - To hoist a symbol hue? - For sailors brave in battle fair - Since fighting days of old, - Have proved a sailor's right to wear - The Navy Blue and Gold."

Brett Woodard

Hailing from the great potato producing state of Idaho, Brett is quirky, funny, smart, and candid. An intensely dense man whose appearance strikes you as something powerful, but no one knows exactly why. Constantly proving his mettle through helping others and never giving in, and maintaining strong personal convictions despite peer pressure and adversity, he provides an example to the rest of brigade. His faith and friends have helped to lead him through the Academy and to orient him towards life long goals and agendas. Brett is likely the most convicted midshipman, convicted not to trouble but to doing everything the right way and not taking advantage of anyone. He would rather go out of his way to help someone to their feet than finish the race first. Wood, er...Woodard, er...Michael, er...BMW, er...Brett is, generally speaking, a pretty down to earth guy who enjoys having good clean fun with friends and family.

ExTRemE–"many people are defined by words; very few people have the power to change definitions."–spo FINALLY, something besides a world-class potato is produced by Idaho. Beginning on I-Day, AMY was an ExTRemEly motivated plebe…so motivated, it took her until graduation to get her voice back. As a Youngster, she was an ExTRemE student… setting the pace for her great academic achievement and future medical career. During her Second Class year, AMY became an ExTRemE athlete, earning All-American status in Triathlon. After the Navy deployed her largest distraction to Africa, AMY used Firstie year to become an ExTRemEly loyal friend. AMY sets the new standard for ExTRemE, sometimes to the point of comic relief, but always to everyone's admiration. AMY's memories: NEW YORK TRIPS,"SKI" TEAM,CYCLING NATS, TRI NATS,EJECTING LIVE ROUNDS DURING A PARADE(sorry), NNMC,RING DANCES,NIMITZ MUFFINS,MAHAN MUFFINS,12/20/05,01/16/06,RITAS,SHAUN'S KAYAK PADDLE,SICILY,MEXICO,AND BEATING ROSSI IN A CARBOMB!

Scott Bishop

Hailing from the no-where-state of Kansas, Scott Alan Bishop tried to spice things up by telling everyone he knew that it was the "air capitol of the world." Scott quickly made a name for himself with an "uh, yea" down in Brigade medical. For every PRT Scott managed to summon his Kenyan heritage to run fast, without any training. Unlike the rest of his classmates, Scott only spent 2 years at the Naval Academy; the other two were spent in his rack. He did manage to wake up long enough to assume his position as Company Commander, where he started, on occasion granting himself sleep-ins. Leading the company onto the parade field many of his classmates were left wondering how he managed to put on his p-rade jacket because of his highly ticklish neck. After graduation Scott will be a Surface Warrior and hoping to pursue the EDO path. "SWO doesn't suck…you suck."

Katy Bock

"So hoist our colors, hoist them high, and vow allegiance true, so long as sunset gilds the sky above the ocean blue, unlowered shall those colors be whatever fate they meet, so glorious in victory, triumphant in defeat."

Tristan

Brandengurg

Coming from big city life of Brush, Colorado, Tristan Brandenburg had trouble adapting to small town life in Annapolis. After successfully navigating plebe year, Tristan became the bane of all plebes' existance. Fortunately for them, he took a semester long vacation at the USAFA, where he took it upon himself to rid Colorado Springs of any and all ice cream. He fit right back in at the Naval Academy upon return, except for his pants. The next year of his life was consumed by training of the 4/C. His exploitation of traffic devices as training tools earned him the nickname of "Loose Cannon" during that summer. His exceding intellect would have earned him a 4.0 except for a minor engagement, which left him unsat. Despite these issues, Tristan Brandenburg was a loving roommate and an exceptional, contributing member of 5th Company.

Kanok

Bunnag

If only he knew how to jump, the whole thing could have been avoided. Complaining more about the weather outside than some of the bad hands he was dealt. The city boy who spent four days roaming the Tennessee wilderness. The navigator who gets you lost. Keeping things real with a whiskey and coke on those rare but enjoyable occasions. Upon seeing snow plebe year for the first time, he swears he's had enough, only to spend spring break three years later learning how to ski in Colorado. Virgin Music Festival, so worth it. Knowing time with a friend most anywhere is time well spent. More dedicated than the average bear, ready to take the Thai Navy by storm for the next 40 years.

Jon-Michael

Chombeau

Jon-Michael Chombeau: brother, son, gamer, gymnast, and loving boyfriend. Upon arrival at the Naval Academy, Jimbo immediately traded his surfboard for a chit. With a balanced diet and at least 12 hours of sleep a night, he became the hulk of man he is today. His immense size and last name often led him to be confused with a certain Sea World whale. This physical speciman had a mysterious affect on local females and mice; feeding the former with tender, loving care, and the latter with scraps under his desk. As captain of the gymnastics team, he led both by example, and with the shorts of shame. As a result of his hard work and excellent leadership, the team toppled Army in a crushing defeat in the N* match. Jimbo also managed to crush the Aeronautical Engineering program, 15 credits at a time. Will he ever be able to stop a bus? This is yet to be seen.

Richard

Engel

"The Raptor" as his friends call him, is a very unique/charismatic person who is obsessed with REESE'S! He started his adventures at NAPS by: being the star of bacholerette parties/URI sorority houses & getting 4 surgeries at once. When he wasn't breaking records/winning championships in Sprint Football, he was considered a "US Ambassador" dating Britain, Germany, Egypt & Russia. His adventures continued on youtube with his "sideways bellyroll" winning him an all expenses paid trip to Panama City,FL meeting celebs/maxin out their bar tabs! He also became friends with a millionaire yacht owner who flew him down first class to westpalm to help charter his yacht up the intercoastal. As far as good old DTA:"crazy things happen at o'briens", alias is "Shots Magee", stay away from Clay Street! Chic-fil-a rocks! Pink Elephants in P-hilly & laughing fits!! Had the best roommate ever! Will miss his little angel & LLPA! Can't believe he graduated, since he missed 150 days of class(seriously).

Robert

Epstein

Robert Jason Epstein aka Rob, Bob, the Bobert, has truly made the Naval Academy Bobby's World. From the heartland of American politics, the great state of Virginia, Bobert found his emotions surgically removed three days before I-Day. Since the pleber days of "Epstein Tickle" he has managed to never say anything politically correct. Bobert's size has always been a strong advantage, as evidenced by being locked in both his closet and in a laundry bag by his roommates on multiple occasions. Always training for everything, Rob would even train for the Milk Mile Challenge, which he ran on occasion during youngster year. Rising through the ranks from Training Sgt to Plebe Summer Reg Ops to Company Commander - he ended his career on a particularly high note as the Company Wardroom Officer. After all this Robierto will report to TBS where he will join the Marines, and fulfill his dream of being a Marine Financial Officer.

Gregory Ewing

Whether on the field as a courageous intramural warrior or in the classroom as a dedicated daydreamer, Greg's charisma and surgically defiant bone structure made him a force to be reckoned with. As a frequenter to local colleges and DTA bars, he spent countless hours solving both world hunger and how to beat the breathalyzer, neither of which really panned out for him. While quite outspoken in many regards, compassion and genuine care were never out of reach. To his family and friends, he gives his most sincere thanks.

Matthew Guido

Enjoyed late-night conversations about missing sideburns. Matt was considered by many to be a Counterstrike master. "Hey Chief, how about you pop me one." "Uhh, Go Navy, Siiir..." - plebe summer with Hage and Iceman as cadre.

We always knew that he would be 'that guy' wherever we would go. He enjoyed being unconscious (whether from kyle miller in rm 1405 or a tough little lady at Preakness in '06). Girlfriend's roommate. "This car sucks." Screen name PMO.

Matthew Japzon

Matthew Charles Japzon reported to the Naval Academy weighing in at a strapping 135 pounds, all pure steel and sex appeal. Hailing from Pensacola, and the product of two salty Chiefs, Matt initially found himself drawn to Naval Aviation. Since I-Day however, Matt has been drawn to the Corps...the Submarine Corps...as a result of hanging out with too many Math Majors. Matt was an excellent shipmate, always willing to lend a helping hand, especially when it came to being a teammate in Halo or Call of Duty 4. After being Plebe Summer Company Commander Matt found a taste for stripes and also found himself as the Brigade Assistant Operations Officer aka "Parking Czar." Not letting the stripes get to his head, he still maintained his goofy nature and pulled pranks such as receiving the Brigade report at noon meal formation with a banana instead of a sword. Despite all this Matt was a stellar midshipman and great friend and will no doubt make an excellent officer in the Corps...Submarine Corps...Hoorah.

Tappy Tappy? Or Nappy Nappy? Nintendo Gamer extraordinaire and anime guru. Spring Break '08 were good times - Haha! Corona anyone? King of Chill and notorious Halo "Kill Joy", No one can serve it up better. Can't forget the good times, shenanigans stretching from out-with-the-guys in Baltimore to Mexico. "¿Why do Girls have so many shoes in their closet?" (You know). Hey I'll miss livin' with you and don't worry the Game is still On after we graduate!

Mark Philip Lovett

(2004) Kiski Prep, met Adam, Ryan, and Cracker and got ready for the long ride. (2005) Plebe year was filled with Ives' ridiculous stories, football games, overnights (no one was counting), new friends and a trip to San Diego. (2006) Plebe Summer roommates reunite in 1412, trouble ensues for the next 3 years. Happy hour with free wings and 2.00 lagers. (2007) A Trip to O'Brians results in drunkenness, excellent singing, two moms, and a leopard and a ballerina. A 3.0 is achieved for the first time and a realization that maybe studying does work. Ring dance with the girlfriend, and a trip to Hawaii. (2008) No Liberty. We beat Notre Dame! SWO becomes my destiny. Cruise ships and coconut drinks for Greg, Mark, and the girls. Dell finds that he likes Crown Royal; Mark finds he is no match for a drunk Dell, and room 3401 somehow manages to graduate. And what a feeling it is!

Tom Petty – Wildflowers / You belong among the wildflowers - You belong in a boat out at sea - Sail away, kill off the hours - You belong somewhere you feel free -- Run away, find you a lover - Go away somewhere bright and new - I have seen no other - Who compares with you -- You belong among the wildflowers - You belong in a boat out at sea - You belong with your love on your arm - You belong somewhere you feel free -- Run away, go find a lover - Run away, let your heart be your guide - You deserve the deepest of cover - You belong in that home by and by -- You belong among the wildflowers - You belong somewhere close to me - Far away from your trouble and worry - You belong somewhere you feel free

Robert Mayer

Always volunteered to stand watch (from the prone position in his rack) during formations and parades. By second class year, he cut out the middleman and just had all his mail and calls forwarded to the library. Always eager to get "discounts" at 7-11 or the local baseball card shop. Why did you bring 10 shirts? We are only staying the night. How I met your Mazda.

Thanks for help in boats and thermo, but not really. Etnies. Why sleep when there is still golf to play with Tiger Woods? Spaghetttt!!! "Don't tell cargo shorts I smoke."

Clayton Niekras

Niek spent much of the first half of his USNA experience with a ball and chain and after that, went right back on restriction. Damn those drinking standards. 0-0-...-Point 197!?! 'Sir, Is your sister hot, Sir?' Savannah. 'I thought Mr. Parsons' name was Hans'. Ocean City. Awkward moments. DTA wife incidents. All nighters. Speedos. Gaining massive amounts of street cred. 'Neat Bombs'... and best of all – the friends he made along the way.

Mark Richard

On I-Day, the only thing bigger than Mark's desire to succeed were his luscious eyelashes. The aforementioned eyelashes, combined with his lethargic movements and his inability to stand up straight, gave the impression that Mark was the pinnacle of sloth. Determined to flee from this reputation, Mark soon became Brigade cross-country champion. Upon find sleep was not even on the table of priorities, Mark decided it was unnecessary. For the following four years, Mark fought off sleep with an arsenal of caffeine and willpower. His accomplishments reflect his use of all 24 hours of the day. He succeeded in becoming a Bowman scholar with a 3.59 QPR and a 99% or above on all PRT's. Mark Richard took on the mission like a starving, three-legged bear. The only thing standing between this koala and complete dominance were several nodes and one CFD program. Even these could not survive his constant onslaught.

Evan Seyfried

Great roommate for four long and arduous years, usually going to bed when the sun was just coming up, not worrying though, cause we would just sleep through formation. Evan's primary source of income was pounding the ivory keys at the Annapolis mall for awed spectators. Brought the U.K. to the Naval Academy one indie band at a time and helped the Ruskies stay afloat economically one CD at a time. Looks like good weather for airstrikes. Gonna miss the late night study sessions, indie music exchanges, 9:30 club concerts, and the extensive physics help (J appreciated all the help!) Many a thanks from all those that Evan helped to pass classes here at USNA, always a gentleman and a scholar.

"Dude! It is snowing outside. I'm going to take a walk." From one of the coldest states in the U.S., Minnesota, Jon flipped a coin and decided he was destined to be at the U.S. Naval Academy. He was one of the most dedicated and versatile people in 5th Company. He quoted movies every time he had opportunities to (at least 100 times a day). More food, Jon? Don't let him get drunk and walk over a hill (enough said). During 1/c year, Jon, once again, flipped a coin, deciding to join the naval aviator community. "Jon! Whereever you go, don't forget your coin!!!"

Always in Texas or flying, or so he says... The dubious honor of doing research with Prof Frigo proved to be a burden of endless MATLAB coding, though the stories of all Frigo's patents made it all worth it... You did what with my sister? I never dreamed that an awesome roommate would be one that threw shower shoes and roast beef at you...

Joseph Butcher

Although developmentally he followed the lines of Junior High, it's too bad that he couldn't have spent the last four years there cause Butch would've been the hook-up king. Oddly enough, one of the best midshipmen ever despite having to start applications to Rutgers twice. Some thought he went to CUA, Jonny K's was his spot. We were young when we first rode the White Horse through the Hamptons, and we probably had the best plebe year possible. Member of the MO team with classic trips to NYC and Duke/UNC., you mess with the bull you get the horns. You were always under appreciated whether as a mid, a wrestler, or just a nice guy trying to fix a broken stove. PCB, Padre 2X, PCB. Can't forget C-Ray w/ the boots. Mom, surprise I made it home for our birthday and Christmas, oh wait never mind, I'll spend it at Dunkin' Donuts instead. You are one of the best men to know and you're like a brother, who knows, with your approach you might even be a brother-in-law one day.

Crazy Roman…an abundant amount of energy…running everywhere…always smiling (even when angry)…and always telling stories with her little hands. Hannah you are awesome! I have the utmost confidence that you will be an inspiring leader (you've inspired me). You will blow their socks off. LET'S STICK THIS PIG!!!

Four years together by the Bay where Severn joins the tide, then by the Service called away, we've scattered far and wide; but still when two or three shall meet, and old tales be retold, from low to highest in the Fleet will pledge the Blue and Gold.

Joel Cincotta

Joel Cincotta is best remembered as the greatest ultimate frisbee player ever to grace the halls of Mother B. His enthusiasm for frisbee on and off the field may have seemed obsessive at times but his two brigade championships quickly silenced the critics. In addition to his athletic prowess, his computer skills made him the go-to guy for any and all computer related issues, especially those issues that can only be described as "shady." Being the anti-joe, our MidRegs binder served more as a checklist rather than rules to adhere to. Most importantly, Joel was a people person. Whether he was standing restriction, marching tours, or sleeping through class, he always made time for a little connolly partying, downtown debauchery or lobster slaying. -Arlen Connolly

Arlen Connolly

Arlen Connolly, 6th Company's very own Chirish son. Skipping classes? …no sweat. Partying hard every weekend and some weekdays? …done. Cellos and racquet sports? …yeah he's got that too. Arlen is always willing to trade beauty for questionable moral standards, as long as he can go straight to his signature move, the true CC. Running from cops in Montreal; stalking Jersey girls; birdman in the Caribbean…turn 2; paintball scars; surviving on Chinese food and DP; rack shack; burgers in the wardroom at 0400. We made it!

Christopher

Corbeille

Alabama Man! Successfully spent more time in other rooms than your own... well, one other room. Old Man Corbeille was always good for going out on the town as long as he could get to bed by 8 PM. Always up for ordering Chinese food and watching South Park for hours. Abandoned us in our time of need to go be an Asian civilian. Will probably sleep in a blanket fort with ear plugs until the day he dies. "Man, you have got a huge melon"- MM. Rah.

James Foss

Jim Foss, genius extraordinaire: Through the cargo net and in to our hearts; from the muddy bathrooms of some house in Baltimore, to the edge of a Santee Basin pier. Don't let his demeanor fool you; this man can drop you to the ground in a gangly fight. From Bermuda to the Bahamas to wait where is Jim? Oh, he randomly decided to fly home. Never, never forget your transit from Key West to Ft. Lauderdale can we say dehydration? Bright eyed, Jim will always be eternalized as the perfect wingman. Moe's anyone?

Andrew Gilchrist

The man with the coolest and most random nickname ever, hunting and fishin', and please pass the wieners. The Colonel called, again. She wants to know where in the shrine to put the new scented candles and life-size oil portrait. Oh, and did you get a stipend from Zachary's? Because those were some nice pics. Hope you don't get lonely when we can't stop by every couple of minutes. You should make the meanest, saltiest sub-hunting lawyer the world has ever seen. And don't worry about going grey, at least you still have your flowing locks, unlike some. We can't believe that you survived rooming with Dizzle, you are one of the few who could have pulled that off. Have a good time "tuning up the band."

Ross Grunenwald

Brazilian beach wax, sooner rather than later. I'm sure it will keep you warm at Quantico, but it's been a while since the Frozen Chosin, so lose the fur coat. The fact that you came back after three plebe years, two undergraduate educations, eight tours of the world, and numerous broken everythings means a lot to us, that you are either crazier or more dedicated than anyone we've ever heard of. Sit on your rubber doughnut and mind your vacuum seal. Actually... we don't care.

William Harris

Will stop complaining, you actually graduated! Foghorn leghorn, why see here, we always knew you would make it even though sometimes you didn't. What else would you expect from a man who supposedly played 6 different sports like tight end, center fielder, defensive tackle, midfielder, goalie, women's 400 meter medley, competitive ice dancing. It all paid off on that fieldball championship though, and it brought honor back after being the company fatty. So many women, so little time, huh. I don't know how you did it. Congrats buddy. NFO baby enough said.

Bradley Hoffman

Bradley Hoffman is an icon of 6th Company, known widely because of his 20 mass emails a day and his witty humor. Many people refer to him as B-rad, but he is recognized by most due to the many memorable moments he has provided: plebe summer wounds, night out in Vegas, tact in front of the cadre, sampling the birthday beer, cadences and hospital trips in a neck brace after dodge ball. Brad is a faithful and loyal friend who will be a great asset to the submarine community.

James Jones

Natural born leader. Versatile, Most Versatile. 6th Co's Casanova. Inventor of SCUPA. Plebe Year- Amanda, rides from mall to hall from random girls, friday night dance offs, the devastation of A/N week. snoring like none other. 2 dudes stuck in a trunk w/ 1 cell. 10 bucks-plate of fat. feasting on flap sticks. Loyal Friend.

Jeffrey
Kee

El Jefe, proud of his Irish heritage yet reluctant to acknowledge his Southern heritage, brought many good times to Annapolis by way of Macon and the Rookery. Jeff was blessed by 2 amazing motorcycle-riding doctor sponsors and was always quick to share this blessing with his renowned themed parties at their house, though he never quite mastered filling their hot tub to the correct level. His big chin never seemed to keep the ladies away; on the contrary, it only added to his magical draw. Yep, Jeff attracted quite the lot of ladies in his 4 years–there was Reese Witherspoon with a faulty heart valve in Puerto Vallarta and who could forget Jersey in the lifeguard tower (aka the Miami Beatdown). But Jeff survived this lineup of females, not to mention a mistaken service selection board. This Marine-turned-SWO's ability to thrive in any environment and reach out to those around him will make him a fine officer…and maybe he'll be able to bring a theme party or two to Mayport. Swah!

"Fifi" traded Park Avenue for 5-0; an ivy path for service on the Severn. Though she struggled tremendously at first, she quickly found her way after convincing a certain Jackalope to fall in love with her and move to a far west land. Only one semester took her away from her beloved roommate, and that was to serve on Fowler's first Brigade Staff. "McFeefer" enjoys New Year's Eve in Time's Square, listening to nosuchfeat songs written for her by the class president, battling with professors to give her the grades she thinks she needs, making GoSlow go fast, going to her own debutante balls, appearing in commercials as the Vietnamese wife of a long-shot Senate candidate, watching friends climb on fire trucks at Bounce, not being particularly cold while watching sunsets on the bow of speed boats, and occasionally rowing boats herself as the four-year stroke of a great Navy crew. She goes on to "serve with an N" like her grandfather, is lovely, intelligent and an asset to our Navy.

Daniel
Nin

Danny, are you excitable? Are you Mexican? Of course you are. Egan traumatized you from day one. You and BH are meant to be together whether you like it or not, maybe you can double date in Charleston. Youngster year the roommate situation eased, but that would soon fade away. You were always there for me, whether a pep talk right before intramurals or right before going in to see the 'dant. You are gonna make an excellent high school football coach one day. We shared a lot hopes and dreams, most pertaining to Mexican cleaning ladies. You'd do anything to help a friend; and to ensure your enemy's names were in the week's head gouge. Your decision to be a Chem major made sure your contact with the plebe girls looked oh so innocent. Subs chose you, but I'm sure we can snag at least one intramural championship down there, just look left and you'll see your competition. Maybe we can hang out sometime, you know, like friends do. El nino, Inspirational, Motivational, Dedicated.

Catherine Ortman

Hailing from the cornfields of the Midwest, having absolutely no experience with the great bodies of water on our country's coasts, Cate arrived not only ready to take on the Navy, but also the mysterious world of Ocean Engineering. She spent her four years here being very involved. You'd find her busy at her many endeavors, whether it was destroying opponents in crew races, dropping "penetrometers" in the seafloor for her Trident project, or providing her infinite wisdom to the third graders in her Catholic religious education class. Other memorable experiences include: United Kingdom Scholars, Catholic choir trips to New York and Charleston, Ring Dance (but not really), PROTRAMID weekends, and most of all her undercover lover. Be at ease, America! You'll be pleased to know she will be NUKEing for the glory of the Navy. If nukes have competitions on who can be the smartest, sorry ladies and gents, there's a new cat in town.

Shane Serafin

A proud member of the Men's Glee Club - the "best decision I ever made." Loves being on the water in the Navy 44s, and once on land. Scotch and Poetry and crimson silk robes. Scotch and cigars. Should be the editor of the Economist, not a systems major, due to his incredible knowledge of random facts from countless hours of surfing the Internet. Most likely to show up on an episode of "Antiques Road Show" as one of the items, and not one of the guests. Sort of a living Admiral Lord Nelson statue. Known for discretion and hyperbole, if not his tact. He's so angry that he could sleep, often and for no good reason. Have fun upholding the room standards in the Fleet.

Vinum, Femina, Cantus.

Justin Taylor

JT Money aka John from Maryland. Med corps and a 6 minute mile were never in your future, aim low though and you'll be sure to snag the UGA or DFG. Never be a lawyer either, NASCAR is so tough just like wrestling practice. You were easy to find, either in your rack, checking out the round and brown on your side of the room, or at opening day. Someday you'll meet a lady with the perfect ASSets, but for now, nice girls from Towson will have to do. We all know that one day you most likely will end up an Army wife. Whether it was a poor argument or simply coming over to our side right before your shower to make us feel better about our own bodies, you could always make us laugh by lowering your self. It's hard to believe you'll be the first one to step out and do anything. Be Safe, especially from that frozen banana that is gonna get you one of these days.

Steven Terjesen

On July 21, 1986 Terj was born to William and Mary Ellen Terjesen, thereby sealing the fate of every Meathole this side of the Mississippi. When he wasn't hunting grizzly bears, he spent most of his days and nights sleeping comfortably inside suitcases. Despite being a proud member of the Team of False Hope and a star of Mexican beach films, his permanent scowl and $600 a night bar tabs remind everyone that he cannot stop feeling sorry for himself. Navy Rugby (EAFD), Padre, Ireland, Montreal, the Cruise, OC, heart punches, the Hamptons, and the other 2 billion that we're missing out on. UnBelizeable!

Jerry Tuck

Where to begin? Known for his polished social graces, this sin fueled, sunlight hating, zombie of a man was probably one of the most eccentric members of sixth company. With him it truly was love/hate, at the same time. We can all remember the recording sessions and your total dominance of all things WOW. Oh, and did you ever do any homework? No, seriously, did you? All we saw was you asleep during the day, and the laser light show of a clock at night. And why set an alarm clock if you don't ever plan on waking? It's really just annoying; least you could do was have it play a different song. If we weren't so intimidated by the Radio Shack you called a desk, we would have turned it off ourselves. Please wash your socks and try to shower regularly. And if you ever need some attention, just give us a call (we'll pretend to listen some more).

Michael Ursetti

Simple minded Jerseyite-perhaps best known within company for his dog-ribs, infant rear end, light hearted characteristics, absent minded phrases, and bringing the gift of flame to his friends. When not helping out a friend Mike T could be found in his natural state of sleeping in complete darkness, eating cereal, or dancing around the room to classic rock or gangster rap: F's or 5's; 55% of 40; MCBO/Morgantown; Helga and the dock-lost at Radio Shack; random trips to CP; black socks; powning people on Halo; crunchy/chewy- ying/yang of the universe; 2 towns from everywhere - a geographical conundrum; 3/c pre-formation Dance parties; held it down with pvraz-SB08; Avenged Sevenfold and MIA; loving every second of the 4 years by the bay. Always great for a laugh whether it be on purpose, but usually on accident. Although you've downplayed your successes with the utmost effort, we all know the true Mike Ursetti is the epitome of a leader and a devoted friend.

Patrick Vrazel

Pvraz, aka Facebook Champ and Master Snuggler. Sig Pi Survivor. Pader 2Xer. Is Vraz still in the shower? The jelqmaster must be at it again. Member of the original Hamptons crew-a true Cape Crusader. Maybe you and Brady Quinn can settle down together someday... well him or Mary Mourning. A cowboy from Texas that lost his ranch while in Naptown. "Are you really just sitting here for hours watching videos from home of deer walking around?" The recruited varsity athlete that didn't make it past I-day. Quan Econ was a huge success... at least you'll be a millionaire one day. You were always there for us and will be remembered as a great friend, mid, and person to go to when you needed an opinion on the girls down at the Fed House.

Jonathan Wallace

Do you remember the Gish's Galley...I have evidence that proves you didn't. O my how time flies by. From a Nuke to a Marine, how the heck did that happen? Sweat lodge and gung fu you always had a warrior spirit, even when its 50 miles and it gets the best of you. You were always there, and one of the greatest friends anyone could ever ask for. Semper Fi, because the evidence I have could take away a star.

Scott Wallace

Smart and futuristic: Scott's possibilities are endless; flight to Mars, exploration of space, and medical revolutions e.g. increasing human life expectancy limitlessly. Crazy like no one, 3 am wake ups for Crew and coming back frozen in the morning, nice homemade breakfasts and dinners plebe year, somehow ⊠ go figure. Catholic Choir, Notre Dame MO, Knowing the rules better than others to stay out of trouble. Driving seventeen hours straight and being everywhere. Hoover dam, Baranger Crater, Los Vegas, Yosemite, Sequoias, San Diego, nowhere, and everywhere else. It only got better senior year when there were eight hours to get back to Las Vegas from San Diego after the Bowl Game; 4 hours driving (don't really remember how fast ⊠), three partying in Vegas, and one getting to the airport. Sailing: I wish to have no connection with any ship that does not sail fast, for I intend to go into harm's way. Spring Break in Florida; heard the stories, wish I was there ... Fid's class ha ha ha

Luke Wolf

Old man Luke, always in love and always keeping his roots as the 300 lb. fatty from Mentor, OH. Last final tomorrow? Lets go out and grab just a few beers. well no Christmas Leave this year. Christmas Caroling on Captain's Row and lost and found gifts wrapped in newspaper. Where's Luke... not at Air Force. Who on earth would have placed that poop filled red cup in our room? Do you think it was the plebes? No. Then it must have been Wolf. When life gives you a problem, go to Luke, he'll have the perfect 80's movie quote for you. Luke did you run into LT on the golf course cause I didn't see you in class today. Red stain on the whites with the slight stutter and stumble, it must be time to discuss intramural strategy. 2X Brigade Champ. The smartest dude you'll ever meet at the bar. And if you see a man stumbling around downtown with a uniform that says Wolf, check his smell, its the only way to be sure its not Lombardi. The best friend you could ever ask for. Cleveland Rocks

Lauren Wolfe

Lauren/Miss Wolfie, the California girl who is really British? A broken arm doesn't equal a broken spirit. I'm an Aero no, English major. Music is our life. Journey and Def Leopard, "you two look like me in high school." Just the two of us now make it three. "There are two Sarah's!" It's called a break up cause it's broken so stop backsliding. I just want to dance and I don't even like Jelly. "Why doesn't she ever have homework?" I used your shampoo, I used your straighter. You don't have to ask to borrow that. Firsties at last but you're still not 21. ⊠ "This is my roommate La'Sarah". Best SAVI in the brigade. "Um Hi my name is Sasha Frankhouser I'm with the Navy Women's Rugby team." Liar! Read a book! "I have 10 more pages due in two hours," "I got an A!" GPQ beer. "That bird almost took my corndog." We're going to Pensacola! We're staying in Annapolis! You've been a fantastic friend and roommate. You make everyone's day brighter and our lives happier. "I Love You"!

Matthew

Agnew

"Matthew J." immediately built a reputation as 7th Company's very own "Gunny." He lived up to it and attended Air Assault School during 2/C summer. Password please...Matthew J. Agnew. Always generous, Matt provided extended community service in New Orleans. Matthew J. had a very productive exchange semester at West Point, with his most valuable accomplishment being BABE. Late night runs in Ewa Beach with the circle of trust. "Could you put this cream on my back?" The OE department doesn't accept ARMY probs and stats. Matthew J. was chosen as company commander in the fall of 1/C year. He was notable for being tough on…well everything but made precious contributions to 7th company - and the transition was complete from civilian seven to the family. Matty leads by example "Matt were you sick?...No? Next time flush the toilet." We salute you Matthew J. Agnew!

Breach

"So hoist our colors, hoist them high, and vow allegiance true, so long as sunset gilds the sky above the ocean blue, unlowered shall those colors be whatever fate they meet, so glorious in victory, triumphant in defeat."

Gerald

Brooks

Lil Gurld. Brooksie. From the "Loo" St. Louis. Plebe summer song leader and the "pimp tent." It's not like I'm in a rush or anything! Up till 3am doing homework (facebook). EE, shouldn't have listened to Peck. Biometrics. "Jerry, your friends are weird" Port-to-Fort winning the huge plant. Motivated socks. Volleyball hustler making money. Pussers Jamaica SB. Class VP. Dolphin club pres. How many other midshipmen have command coins. Best buds with Adm. Rickover's wife and Dryden. Road trip with the Back Puncher. Red bull/vodka with a splash of cranberry. I bet I can lose 5 pounds before you. Converted to Judaism. Alpha prep with techno. At the deli with Beth and Ted. Tigah. 80's party as Michael Jackson. One of the funniest things I've ever seen, especially when he hit the floor hard during his dance moves. Great roommate, even better friend. PJ party. Batt Cdr gonna change this place-nevermind, it's hopeless. 5129,5238,5130. Best brother in the world.

Chiraz

Chakroun

"Four years together by the Bay where Severn joins the tide, then by the Service called away, we've scattered far and wide: but still when two or three shall meet, and old tales be retold, from low to highest in the Fleet will pledge the Blue and Gold."

Andrew

Chess

"Now colleges from sea to sea - May sing of colors true, - But who has better right then we - To hoist a symbol hue? - For sailors brave in battle fair - Since fighting days of old, - Have proved a sailor's right to wear - The Navy Blue and Gold."

Kimberly

Cook

"So hoist our colors, hoist them high, and vow allegiance true, so long as sunset gilds the sky above the ocean blue, unlowered shall those colors be whatever fate they meet, so glorious in victory, triumphant in defeat."

Brent Emery

Brent "BEMERY" Emery. Journeyed from the great town of Westbrook, ME, Red Sox Nation. Patriots dynasty. It's not like I am in a rush or anything. 5 different roommates in 3 years. Society of esteemed Gentlemen Co-Chairman Castle Bay regular. I will have a Guinness please. Shwood, Sigrid's, Jeff pong. I owe you infinity dollars, Indian casinos with Chris and Corey, Brent and Will 1 everyone else 0, the Dude abides, Dirty Pearl, Road trip home over winter break wrecks BMW. Spring break to Costa Rica. Water skiing at the lake. Can't march, I have Combat Arms Team (CAT) practice for our annual competition. Sorry can't march in the parade, I have Rockwall watch. MOH. NOLS in Alaska. CSNTS almost died. YP's to Portland. Can't right now. The Office is about to come on. Finally single, nope back in a relationship, single again, ok I am going to try this relationship thing one more time. 5129 5238 5130 Battalion PMO.

Robert Gensheimer

Classmates recall the end of Jim's plebe summer was full of pain and joy due to a single Boston Red Sox hat, an experience which would allow Jim to "empathize" with future subordinates. Jim's Second Class summer was a traumatic experience due to his earlier bout with Pneumonia. His leadership positions began with Batt. Sgt. Maj. during the Spring of Second Class Year. Jim's First Class summer was spent on arduous sea duty, consisting of leisurely sails up to Newport, and multiple tours at home. A byproduct of the summer, Jim's customized hardhat could not protect him from eventual nose surgery, to the delight of Maine nurses. Jim was noted for his "fantastic and selfless" leadership during his reign as Battalion Commander in Fall of Firstie year; he was able to Separate priorities. With his return to Company area, 5223 bore more resemblance to a health spa than USS Bancroft. "Good ses." Jim's primary concern during his final semester was his Tropicana, Sunday brunches anyone?

Ryan Gibbons

"Paddy Doyle" or "Polar Bear." Classmates found Ryan "deceptively fast" and noted that Plebe summer was quite an experience due to his boot blouses and record time as assistant squad leader. Memories of his New Orleans trip following Plebe Year were fond but limited. Ryan went to War Youngster Year; it still rages. Second class year found Ryan as the editor of his roommate's billet and training for marathons, much to the chagrin of the Co. YP CDR. Despite several bouts of "the Plague," the Polar Bear maintained his "model" sleeping position. As the PMO, Paddy's "deceptive quickness" was rediscovered at 0530 e-a-c-h morning to the "delight" of many Youngsters. Nights in DTA often ended with the Polar Bear foraging for food. "No one gets hurt skiing." His roommates would also note his unofficial status on the USNA Debate team, specifically his "resiliency" on proving his point, again and again. The only question that remains unanswered: "Where have you been, Ryan?"

Robert Goodwin

The sweet angelic voice of Robert Clark Goodwin was bred in Lufkin, TX, East TX, 2 hours North of Houston. His arrival marked the beginning of a grand adventure. Whoa, "Correction Please Ma'am and That's a stop!" Where's my beercard, Number 1,000,310?! Maybe it's in the bathtub? Or maybe he left it in SPI, Texas with those lonely socks and ballcaps. Or perhaps the waitress in NYC dropped it in the mayonnaise cup. Or maybe he lost it while we were Boot Scoot'n Boogie'n our way down to 158's Cul-de-Sac in the freezing cold. Oh wait, I remember now, we found it one night at McGarvey's while eating nachos with his closet thespian. It was a great four years, 46 ounces, and one heck of an awesome presidency. Teddy G has truly left a mark on those around him and will always be remembered for his unwavering loyalty to friends and a firm devotion to those things in life that are most important. And so, Sandy Pants Bobert...Aroogah, Aroogah, Dive, Dive, Dive!

Daniel Green

"Four years together by the Bay where Severn joins the tide, then by the Service called away, we've scattered far and wide; but still when two or three shall meet, and old tales be retold, from low to highest in the Fleet will pledge the Blue and Gold."

Kyle Haubold

Four years with Kyle has taught me a lot. Actually, only one thing. Don't mess with Texas! A completely awesome dude, great memories. Tight-sleeved purple arms, Donkey and Shrek, Robertson's Hams jerky, TEXAS!, Call of Duty weekend, Molly, Annabelle, Mrs. Musser, flick!, Gibbons arguments, freaking out and almost punching me after I jumped out of the closet at you, everything's bigger in Texas, Laguna Beach with Mac'n'Cheese, ruined ring dance sheets (Donkey), A&A cheater, Boberry, the Copy List, Mexican party at the sponsor's, Globo, Rumplemintz, kidney punch (Donkey), reindeer issue: "I don't think I got that issued to me!", helicopter, 5139, trading Monty for Gibbons, whistle song, New Soul dance, Battlefield, Fogo, Ape-Gibbons hall brawl, MoH every day for 2 years, Calloway shoe-throwing session, watching Chris get battered by Reeder, parade pants, Microsoft Paint pictures, 4 years with the same roommate, I couldn't have asked for anyone better (and BIGGER) than you!

Melisa Hough

"Now colleges from sea to sea - May sing of colors true, - But who has better right then we - To hoist a symbol hue? - For sailors brave in battle fair - Since fighting days of old, - Have proved a sailor's right to wear - The Navy Blue and Gold."

Keith Howard

"So hoist our colors, hoist them high, and vow allegiance true, so long as sunset gilds the sky above the ocean blue, unlowered shall those colors be whatever fate they meet, so glorious in victory, triumphant in defeat."

Jamie Howe

"Four years together by the Bay where Severn joins the tide, then by the Service called away, we've scattered far and wide; but still when two or three shall meet, and old tales be retold, from low to highest in the Fleet will pledge the Blue and Gold."

Travis King

Laid back from Cincinnati, probably listening to Dead or Dylan. Concentrated greatly on his Econ and Spanish. Had a passion for soccer. (Explosive, great header, finishing) Soccer team at Pussers. Loved dominating with Brett and Smokey. Youngster year at the Roadhouse. Sit down talks with V. Spring Breaks in the Rockies. Crazy Weekend of Bocche Ball at Will's. Steak n Shake! Great Army Navy Weekends. Walk around Baltimore with Dave. Built house in Nicaragua, became deathly ill. "Hey Evan, you are such..." followed immediately by fisty-cups on the floor of 5111. 2 leather belts and an Alpha. Obie, where's my shoe polish?, "Obie, look it's science." "Hey guys I just fell thru the ice....Shhh, don't tell anyone." The SN Bomb, Who Dey?, The Sierras, DC Shenanigans, '09 throwdowns, mop dancing, "Travis, get out of Evan's bed," car keys and beer pong, Lucky Bar - Courtney v Travis, Brett and Travis Gymnastics class domination.

Jennifer Langhenry

Mating calls, 1 person in the water - 2 people laughing - good times, Recreational Caffeination! Yutt for me, 12 pack of Mountain Dew + late night with nothing better to do = Jen with a cardboard box on her head looking like a stupid dinosaur, astrophysics big-bang pizza parties, chamomile, always ready with a nerdy or dirty comment, 'your face is 1 over zero', large pizza challenge, ...the only person I know who was eighth on a list of ring dance dates and still said yes... Everybody was Kung-fu Fighting while the Macy's floats were flying; The Rugby team was surely British and from Flipped- Lips was mostly Gibberish; Sleeping never was important, so long as there was Diet Dew, And Honestly I'd have gone (in) sane, without a Friend like You!

Bret Leach

"Now colleges from sea to sea - May sing of colors true, - But who has better right then we - To hoist a symbol hue? - For sailors brave in battle fair - Since fighting days of old, - Have proved a sailor's right to wear - The Navy Blue and Gold."

Brent Logan

"So hoist our colors, hoist them high, and vow allegiance true, so long as sunset gilds the sky above the ocean blue, unlowered shall those colors be whatever fate they meet, so glorious in victory, triumphant in defeat."

Valerie McDermott

Valerie: The "confidence girl" during plebe summer. We have all heard of blue and gold, right? But I'll bet you have not heard that blue and gold are the names of this motivated, soon-to-be air force girl's dogs! (Looks like man's best friend is rooting for the Navy!) Mirapoint email, the plan of the day, and the 1mc are not needed if this girl is your roommate; Val is a human schedule on "repeat" always reciting the day's events. It's a good thing that happy hour in DTA does not start at 0900...because she would definitely be the first one there! Pretzels and mayonnaise, peanut m&m's, and an extra large bag of chips are what's on the menu in Val's kitchen. She is very helpful and conscientious and constantly has others on her mind. One of the hardest workers that we all know, her determination and perseverance are what have led her to great things in life and are what will keep her achieving goals to no end. It's been a great 4 years Val!

Brigid McPeak

While educating her classmates on the many wonders of South Jersey, Brigid discovered a little about the town of Annapolis as well. Four years and so many memories: Phone in TAPS as a Plebe but you couldn't cut the limes. Trouble in paradise: snap dance, I'll spit in your face, and delta H. Plebe year was brutal: Terry Tate and the snowstorm takedown, frozen treks to the trailers and snowballs to the ear. CSNTS took you through the eye of the storm, but anything was better than PROTRAMID. Service Dress Blue and Golds and late night runs to the stadium. Spaz was always waiting, whether she would start was another story. RVing to Ring Dance and Serenity Acres, parts one and two. We escaped to the backcountry, but not from the bears. Firstie year was all about the phonetics, sierra mike echo and foxtrot bravo. The long haul to South Bend and breaking the curse. Nothing could keep the good times from rolling, even your emergency brake. Always remember, we built this city on rock and roll.

Kyleigh Millhouse

Kyleigh "Ky-train" Millhouse's motto can be summed up as, "If it's not fun, why do it?" Hoorah, Kyleigh with her tie-dye cast from the o-course and the A-team who made it all better! When she isn't jumping over water on the track, Ky-train can be found in the wave pool with her fellow OEs, at 80s throwback parties, snuggle fests, St. T, pajama parties or just keeping it real. You guys earned it! Known to some as the hottest girl on the yard, all XC courses should be like her. A bubbler at heart, her homestyle PA attitude keeps her supporting the Pennsylvania working man. Late night/early afternoon calls to Auntie Cindy for Blair's chips/marriage proposals. It's always 5 o'clock in Kyleigh's world! It happens, just let it. And so we're running just as fast as we can, holding onto one another's hands...

Christopher
Montgomery

Monty would always be there for you anytime, anywhere…Globo,fountain swimming, mmmGaelle!, Stanford game broken wrist, 5139 trash pile, hitting on Hillary in CA …"Don't worry T-Ham, they don't test for this" "Might as well, no reason not to"," Proof that Margaritaville is anywhere you want it to be. "I'm pulling bills off of stacks", Lights out, 2 beer cans open. "I found the reason (Hoobastank)"…"Army Navy, An irish bar, 4 pilots, and a paper towel dispenser with lip","The Podium, Bar Mats, Floor Mats, Glasses, Menus, Buckets",Santeria in the ready room, "Looks like Montgomery partied for the squadron last night",Bar Golf + 43 = More Good Times, The Tony King Colorado Bar Crawl,The Intrepid, long may she run…Road trips to Charleston…"Log book entry-0215 Monty takes shot for Hobbes"…The 5 Signs "Let's get the cabbage on the table" "No one drinks alone"…3 bottles of Pimms and Ginger in one night… "Monty's footsteps are all over The Galley"…

John Thomas
Morgan

Hailing from the mighty metropolis of Roxboro, NC, JT passed his time at the Naval Academy accumulating a lifetime supply of frequent flyer miles while traveling to such exotic locations as Canada, Boston, San Francisco, Smethport and Malta, not to mention an exciting expedition to the frozen cul-de-sac and the many wonders of the awesome Club Mustang. Aside from his travels, many hours were spent perilously balancing in equilibrium while contemplating the epitome of sporting events, Ping Pong. Friends will remember JT for his charismatic, faithful, and caring nature and most of all for the motivation that we can all almost be as good as JT, who "is better than you, just ask him." rah.

Michael
Mullee

From the shores of Huntington Beach, CA to the shores of the Severn, Mike spent most of plebe summer searching for his laundry bags in Gibbons' closet. A founding member of the 5136 Rockstars, the era of SEG. GWU parties, sleeping in Reagan National, sailing with NADS all over the Ivy League, Lindy's Red Lion and Cougars. Crewed the Transpac Race to Hawaii as "Summer Training" to meet Debby and Ranotta. Sailed against Europe in France, for good ol America, capturing the French Admiral's personal flag as ransom. Crossed into the blue for a semester at Colorado Springs where he learned the benefits of having a bar named "Haps" on campus. Returned to Annapolis, clinching the coveted Brigade Character Advisor position with 5 stripes, gaining the skills needed to survive Big Beer Night at McGarvey's, Abby at Dock Street, Painkillers at Pussers; the Fleet, RIP Schmitty @ Riordans. Spring Break to Key West, anyone? Go Gators! _____, Please! A son, brother, friend, patriot and a gentleman.

Matthew
Oberlander

Don't mess with the LongSnapper!!! 8-0 and 46-44.

John David Olsen

Cross Country and track star with a zest for life. A Social Sammy and a Happy Harry. Always scheming an extra dollar or an extra hour of liberty. If there was a way he would find it. Shenanigans in DC, jumbo slice. Squinty-eyed beer-lover, learned his lesson at McGarveys with those three wise men. Dominated the room on several occasions. Mexicans, broken toes and futbol. Dave...what are u doing? Main street pottery, Lez Zep-Cheaters, Deninos, retro ski clothes, DC photo craziness, "look at that stunad", Fed House back door, Six Flags, panda, love that máte: take another hit?, Easter weekend debacle, guitar duo, The Bunny, peace & love, hippie at heart, movies at the sponsors, "Throw him in the pool! Uh, we're not doing anything!", Bass Lake Swimming, The "Costa Rican" pickpocket, high mileage in Colorado, higher mileage in Costa Rica, 24:01, Italian hikes, "Best years of your life," Al Cantello, The Med and the twins, Neslo and Kozlowski, Dean Martin, Rat Pack for Life.

Courtnie Paschall

Cheers! To all of us who leave with personalities intact–Keep Stickin' It In. To waddling and the only no-pants chit during plebe summer! To the Adolf-chin, kung fu, hand puppet, and other movies; to Lithuanian balsamic, & Absyn-windex; to late night physics adventures, & judging from the vernacular: definitely a British rugby team–Long Beach. To Christmas cards, laughing until we cry, and the best roommate, friend, and confidant–Tequila & Diet Dew! To inflatable beds, cartoon pictures of teachers, and dancing for no reason; to deep conversations, dirty conversations, and a big poofy wedding dress–Champagne & Raspberry Vodka. To sitting on a computer verses using a chair; to smuggling dinner guests, dyeing fountains and other playful mischief–Chugging a Diet Coke and Eating a Banana. To Roomies, mentors, and friends and to where we'll be in 5 years. Remember: "I saw what you did yesterday, but I can't say it, because I'm Jesus."

Marcus Robinson

A local boy that never liked the local area, Marcus Robinson was rather well-known for his fire and brimstone approach to many situations. Often referred to jokingly as a tall, angry black man, Marcus was always one of the more personable individuals if you managed to catch him one on one. Marcus was by no means a perfect midshipman, but who is? His quick wit, intelligence, and dedication towards to sustained professionally will certainly serve him well in any future endeavors. Marcus' one response to every moment of struggle at the Academy was, "They ain't gonna get me!" Marcus certainly never let them do it.

Brooks Rogers

Brooks, Brooksie, Mr. Rogers, our beloved Hooorseface. Regardless of by what name you call him however, you are sure to know this charismatic, easy-going man as friend. Beginning with 'youngster movie night,' Brooks was the glue that held 22nd company together, planning and coordinating one crazy adventure after another. From camping under a railroad, to B-Ball Thursdays, to spring break in Cancun, to Annual Birthday Weekend in Atlantic City, to Christmas in Vegas, Brooks was behind nearly every great road trip, weekend, or weekday distraction we enjoyed at USNA. And a staple of these adventures was the infamous party van, in various states of functionality. Who needs breaks, power steering, or serpentine belts when you're Brooks Rogers? Kidding aside, we are fortunate that Brooks was among the few survivors of the great 22nd company purging, and are better for having known him. I'd wish him luck in his future endeavors, but Brooks doesn't need luck, he creates it.

Robert Rupp

"Four years together by the Bay where Severn joins the tide, then by the Service called away, we've scattered far and wide; but still when two or three shall meet, and old tales be retold, from low to highest in the Fleet will pledge the Blue and Gold."

Oscar Sanchez

Oscar will always be remembered for his subconscious love of spooning. Or what about the D&G knockoffs and baby blue Express t-shirt that a certain someone from Tallahassee has? Champagne at St. John's, cougars at O'Brien's, and "assisted by 2/C Sanchez." All the stories that will be told over a nice cold one down the road at reunions and parties form the foundation of the life long bonds that Oscar has formed with his closest friends. Whether teaching someone 6 weeks of material the night before a test or cutting some rug on a dance floor, Oscar is as loyal and true as they come. HOORAH, Marine!

David

Smestuen

The following describes Dave: vampire feet.. midnight youngster tea parties..last samurai service selection board..Plebe year nighttime jukebox...weekend races to JMU...O.C. penthouse beach party...cuban-texan joint citizenship... Belinda... "non-smoking" rooms...Galway Bay forever... All of these places, events, and improper nouns describe times with Dave; but none of them can paint the true picture of his character- he believes in treating people as he would like to be treated, and he believes in service, for those reasons, not to mention his excellent taste in wine, he is one of my best friends, and I was a better midshipman, person, and future officer for knowing him.

Blair

Suzuki

Proudly hails from the mighty island of Oahu. AKA "Brair," and not of the motorcycle family. AIM conversations across the room, officially shorter in Plebe Summer Squad, semester in Japan, the Americanization of Kitaro Kitahara, Mike's true roommate. Discovering Hippie Steve while wandering, not welcome @ Thurston anymore, wild cab rides and drivers (DC and Savannah), nights at Reagan Nat'l less luxurious than Waterfront Marriott. Always a bowl of rice steaming. _____, PLEASE. RV Green team-through Fayetteville, Charleston, Savannah, West Palm Beach, Key West. GO GO GAJET!!! Raz and Sprite or Crown and Coke? Post Christmas with pets from the sand. "This is my last pack" Fo-Hawks are in. Always working hard yet ready to play. Backbone of the company, Ocean Engineer, and Nuke SWO; lets go to Japan on our next tour???

Gregory

Thrasher

Hailing from the great city and state of Dallas, TX in the suburbs, Thrash started his road to success after Newman Smith High School beginning with NAPS. 2 Year Letterman for Varsity Football. Plebe Year - lazy bum...Ocean City - ahh the memories. Youngster Year - missed that "tackle" vs. Maryland, nobody will ever let him live it down. 2/C Year - achieved a 3.08 fall semester...finally became SAT in academics after 5 semesters at USNA. Firstie Year - BEAT NOTRE DAME! Had a great senior game vs. Northern Illinois. English major. Always had a knack for being made fun of by the ballers, all in good fun. Whenever something was messed up, it became known as "some Thrash type stuff." Some more quoteables: "THRASHERRRRRRR!" "STRAWBERRY DAQUIRI!"

James

Werner

Evan Werner, Rigid rower turned aspiring striper. Elliot, Leopold, Louie, Lauretta, Mr., Mrs., oh the Werner family. Obnoxious Pittsburgh fan. Always had fresh hair product applied. Night Rides on a Moped. 2144 F Street. Protramid West Sketch. When Evan 'Best Dressed' Werner isn't busy cheering for losing teams and updating his facebook profile he enjoys hiding beers and wearing plaid Bermuda shorts. Petco Park parking lot, "I am Batman." Mojave Desert and a Truck Stop. Countless Ski Trips. Your humor and great friendship will be missed.

William

Whitney

William Daniel Whitney IV, Los Altos Hills (don't forget Hills). My loyal roommate for four years has provided memories for life: struggling with an over-arched back; BF2; MOH; losing in pocket tanks; re-living glory days of water polo; making sure everyone knows he's from California; Moondoggie, ordering grapenuts online; blue monster; taking my jerky; Shrek, Donkey, Puss'n'Boots; Bill, April, mostly Hillary; Henry and Jax; playing Bob Dylan (harmonica head-gear); countless nicknames; guitar, dashiki, incense with Dave; DC pics; pandas; Berkeley train, beach life plans; quarter and beer bottles; half-naked Cupid, Pocahontas, Pooh and Tigger costumes; intentionally sagging articles of clothing; body fat scale; the goat, wristwatch, and sail (port tack); nnnCLARK; bigger and better in TEXAS. William, you're going to make a great Marine (should've gone SWO), even though you don't like bugs or blood. Your friendship, sense of humor, and charm will be greatly missed. Best of luck to you.

Jessica Anderson

Jessica, Jess, Itty Bitty. Yes it's true, you have to sit on a pillow to drive, so tell me, how will you see out of the bridge? Perhaps we will get you a step stool. Plebe year, you were the only girl who could choose which of four parts she wanted to sing (or just sing them all!), and we were all curious, maybe the secret's in the hair. Youngster year was a blast, except they kicked you out of 5th wing. Then there were six. The GREAT SCHISM! "Oh, did you want Jess in this picture?" "Jess can I have a sip of that Amaretto Sour?" Second class year was so exciting we even did happy dances for you. Free to express ourselves in DTA (or not), and steal away for Starbucks disguised as townies. Firsties, struggling through it to the end. "Jess, what would you do if I hit that pedestrian?" "I will never blink!" We almost burned the place down (which one, you ask), but your level head saw us through. Thanks for bringing your smile, humor, voice, and most importantly, hair to every situation.

Erik Bates

Your violent sleeping habits and 30 mile runs for fun...Drives to Florida and rides with Bubba...No facebook, no AIM, how are people supposed to find you? Practicing for tri's and trips to races...How many drinks did you have on your 21st? I lost count. I'm not sure how many people hated their four years here the way you did, but you left your mark.

Patrick

Cerone

A stone's throw away from the gates of Annapolis, is the origin of PC, the great sea captain. After steering his way through assault charges at NAPS, his great career took off to the shores of the Severn. Walk on LAX stud journeyed through every level. Spontaneous workout regimens, sprinkled with extreme sport fads in foreign lands. With more patch hair than head hair, he still swooned the ladies. Weekly shavings of The Patch. Homeless men in CP, 4th of July in SD, Cool Runnings, golf outings, fishing, Halloween brawls, Salisbury tussle, Preakness, perfect push-up, chipped tooth. Italian cuisines prepared by his loving family sparked the chef in him. Nothing could satisfy his hunger for the Baltimore Orioles. The wise owl of the Snake Ranch. His experiences will help him become a great asset to the Sub Force. Love Ya big guy.

Choi

Dan may be best remembered for holding the dubious distinction of having had two run-ins with the same conduct offense...backward. But, having learned his lesson again both before and after learning it the first time, he was off to bigger and better things. As the President of the KAMA, his charming lithp and distinct contra-hetero sense of style won him hearts and minds where before there had been only livers. As a semi-active member of the men's glee club, Danny's karaoke rendition of "Mack the Knife" created new "friends" while alienating old. His closest friends, however, will always cherish the memory of impersonating booze bums in the subways of Rome, Italy. Orange juice counts, Sam. But Danny always handled adversity with grace, whether it was running the 10x29 (thanks Rob!) or battling his urges for a certain type of bean curd. To his detractors, he would say simply, "thathafrath."

Michael Glavan

The favorite words of Mr.G: Don't worry about it. Mike will be known as being shady. Going to his sponsors at the most random times to go in the hot tub. IFS...the excuse for everthing. Hi, this is main office, we have your pants. Meeting for practice and having an excuse for everything. But he endured 4 years on the crew team, and wanted to leave everyday of the last one. California sunshine.

William Golden

Naked Bill. Groovy Bill, Sublime, over and over. Screaming "Pete" and "Transit of Mercury!" at Pete. Villa-no-fun, Alkaline Trio Icebreaker with Tim. Vodka martini, hold the vermouth. Yelling Jimmy legs and getting away with it, despite the search. 2 A.M. Chemistry Labs. Air Force vacation, thanks to LT Foss. Kissing friendly girl in a car at Rutgers, and getting cheered on by the other guys in the car. Striking out in softball. GQ. Drinking on top of hotel in San Diego with Tim and Mike, on Sunny's tab. Star Wars characters for Halloween, and buying the soundtrack to go with it. Convincing Jordan to buy a wet suit. Punk prep punk prep. NYC Hypnotic Gatorade, and visiting the Peninsula Hotel. Senior Chief throwing couch down the hallway. I fell in the mud. Screaming at the other team in softball.

Margaret Gould

Maggie "I'm not proud of myself any more" Gould's favorite words over Plebe summer my have been "PORT BATALLION". She made four years here amazing for all those she came in contact with many great times and adventures... "it's always an adventure" you might say. Chinese food Sundays Plebe year; YOU BETTER BELIEZE IT! What a fiasco, but a blast, especially the night before we left! King bed in 'rado youngster year. Is this the way to Amarillo? Second Class year we discovered the Chart House and BIG LOVE. Oh, silly Margine. Hours of Friends during finals. Spring Break 2007 ...finding the ultimate dream in Duke Kahanamoku and dancing on the beach. Don Ho....Who? Firstie year, amazing. Smoothie dates with the girls and of course gymnastics class. Maggie's love for the outdoors, her friends, and a good time can make any friend fall in love ... you are ALWAYS smiling, ready to laugh, and well, Finding Nemo really does bring people together, as can a good hike, or a drum-role on a the battlefield. Four is more than two! Love, Your Loves

Mark Guadagnini

Yes he is tall; he was the longest snake in the Snake Ranch. He came to us from the tidewater of the commonwealth. Guad started off his Academy life strong, by showing his ability to be "stern" with his classmates. He kept the pace all four years, declaring himself a "natural athlete" while dedicating himself to the baseball team, and his abs. He did the best he could for playing time, slapping clay to his skinny frame and keeping that chest of his squeaky clean. No man could match his level of dedication. He pissed excellence. This creamy Italian was also a playboy. Whether it was a far off college or DTA his elevated eyes were always looking for prey across the o'briens dance floor. He loved his boys, from jockstraps at blue and gold to "the savages" to a midget in Vegas pouring him alcohol. Above it all was his family and their legacy. It was his turn to walk through the gauntlet of the Academy, and he did it with bravado.

Justin Jacobs

Out from the sticks and onto the D-1 wrestling mats, this Michigan powerhouse has brought a lot more than sweat and folk style skill to the banks of the Severn . Pl. Sum, where baby face met the razor and all met his laugh amidst stress. Endless energy. Drodman, Bronzeman, and Poorfarm14 come of age but not alone. JJ, man of endless jingles. Work hard, play hard. You can sleep when you're dead! Towson , tigers and turtles. Well, hello Red...Avid fan of NASCAR, golf courses, and the old red Dodge as a remedy for future USMC jets. CSNTS, Mr. Hurricane but a fine coxswain. Nights at the Grill and days remembering his roots with bow, pole, and club in hand. M and K beaches, swamped kayaks, volleyballs, archaeologists, and Euchre. Ed Jr. and friend for life...with a soft heart and stiff yet suave hair, fun times and late talks are bound to ensue. If only the Oceanography profs valued J's endless movie quotes over the years, the A's would come just as fast as the smiles and friends.

Matthew Johnson

Goofy. Bearshare. Naval Academy student, weekend Georgetown resident. Banana suit shenanigans and making a fool of himself. Plebe whoops busting through a wood door to "get the squid." Fear and loathing on exchange at West Point. Getting hours within the first week at the point. Playing guitar and singing songs no one in Bancroft ever wanted to hear. Who needs King Hall when Steerage is so easily accessible?! The Seinfeld "roommate switch." Safety and those stupid HFC. Cool arm scars and the vicious shark attack in Hawaii. Avoiding the PRT and swimming like the plague. Never enduring the 40-year and thanking God for life. Wasting Ring Dance on the wrong girl. Making fun of cancer...who does that?! Nuke SWO and getting paid more since we have to serve. Sophomore year living as the minority in fear of Haitian retaliation. Tavaris ruining a Friday night filled with illegal music and no homework. NAPS girl and testing the boundaries of fraternization.

Caleb Khan

"So hoist our colors, hoist them high, and vow allegiance true, so long as sunset gilds the sky above the ocean blue, unlowered shall those colors be whatever fate they meet, so glorious in victory, triumphant in defeat.""

Samuel Lehner

Straight off the farm and Kansas prairie, still sprouting from the manure and eager to change the world. Driven, focused, dedicated, and sincere, the list continues. Found late nights at the library. Used the local Starbucks and Barnes and Noble as a liberty hangout. Taco Bell bean burritos anyone? NO cheese of course. Silos, saplings, or a "gift" from above, nothing can mistake sibling love. Straight shooter. Personality most would kill to possess. Smile that lit up a room. Long winded, to say the least! Don't start on the French, politics or religion. Meet the family and you'll know where he gets it. Darts or beer pong, "what are we playing again?" Wyoming...well I am from Kansas! Bash Brothers unite and look out San Diego traffic. The "cockwagon" equals preferred mode of travel. Befriended by many, brother for life, I truly believe "The Dynasty" will prevail. Ricky Martin on the dance floor, number one in our hearts. Would be notoriously voted the first "General" the Navy has EVER seen!

Christopher Lloyd

Worm, Worm-o, country boy, ugly, back woods... Chris? "We're a bunch of wild and crazy guys!" Worm, hold the door. Worm, what are you doing back there in your cave?? In 50 years, the DGA won't know what to say about you worm-o, except that you probably hold the midshipman record for largest collection of "DVD's". English IS a second language. Worm, you amaze me... you hold entire conversations with no one and they make complete sense to everyone in the no one world. There's only been one fat one. Got any sausages? I think I saw some balloons, candy, and a litter of newborn puppies in the back of your Santa Fe...what are they for? Either way, just grunt again, throw in another lipper and please the crowd with one of your 17 turkey calls or your 3-2 famous "oy oy oy" call. Despite it all, we love you anyway and we're gonna miss the worm, just not the smell!!!

Jennifer Lloyd

Where do we start? Work outs to Ritas, sex in the city marathons, tea dates, getting lost to "don't the moonlight." Yes, Jenn is certainly one of a kind. "Oh my gosh her parents sent her a dead pet cricket in a plastic sandwich bag during plebe summer, do I really have to room with this girl?" Plebe summer orioles game, dippin' dots, A philly baseball game on a school night and almost running out of gas. Never forget the time we laughed so hard we cried and our stomachs ached. "I see it in the eyes." The room was always pretty n' pink because of Jenn with a half eaten apple or a chunk of parmesan cheese. If she remembers one thing through these four years rooming together, I hope it's "the way to Amarillo." Jenn we love you!

Golf in Dubai. I touch myself, Sir. Lengthy story telling. McGyver, in everything. My firstie birthday. A good friend is a good contraceptive. Red Gatorade at the train station. Wardroom mastermind. A wise guru, always knowing all ways. Snowboard jumps. Dropping laundry from the fifth floor. Sleeping on the couches at Duke. Wandering the beaches of Lejeune. Pound it. Hot girl video time. Spontaneous trips to NH. Flicking girls' noses. Went through the wall... twice. If you sleep for 12 hours a day, you only spend 2 years at the academy. Shauna has a hot tub, I want that.

Starting out by keeping to himself, Nick surprised many. Few knew that he played many sports before the academy until his flying neck tackle during some company football. He was always willing to take other's duty, for the low cost of a Friday night pizza. An intense gamer and avid reader, Nick made his way through the academy willing to help out his company mates and share his experience in the world (of warcraft).

Gordan Van Hook

It's taken an act of God, but he made it. An Artist and a barbarian. A man's man but still a lover. The epitome of unique and the epicenter of a goodtime. Riordan's plebe year, college roadtrips as a youngster, tailgates as a 2/c and UNC as a firstie--yet above all, always for his boys, and always at the library. Having always been the life of the party G.G will have to resort to crashing random house parties in Norfolk. Gentlemen keep your closets locked and your daughters away, and please, no jungle juice. He will proudly rock his SWOner all the way to admiral. Far greater than 'common'–GG will one day be memorialized with a bust in the middle of T-court and his name remembered forever.

"Your roommate is Andy West right? Wasn't he one of the Ireland guys, so what really happened there?" You were famous on the yard, at the Pentagon, and in multiple foreign embassies around the world and only a few people even knew what really happened, everyone else just assumed it! Of, course there are quite a few times when you never really knew what happened either...Those were some smart cows! Even though you're an old guy with joints like my grandpa, and everyone knew it, we always managed to have fun. From the water balloons raids to the late night excursions (God love the Fleet) you were always full of fun ideas. You were there in a pinch and always knew when I felt down. So, sit back, do the snappy thing and watch some more Jeopardy, or Seinfeld, or whatever. I never did understand how you managed to watch so much TV and still do so well...

Patrick Acox

It is clear that Paddy will go far. This young man of healthy Australian stock was invited back for a fifth year on the Bay (to think that some of us manage to get out of here with only four). With that fifth year he made things seem like a breeze with a rigorous schedule of Film and Lit and the American History of Film, it was undeniable that his academic skills were put to the test. How he managed to close down some favorite watering holes with his friends night after night and still maintain such academic prowess is a question that will be asked by many future Midshipmen. The next cycle is on you Paddy A, Semper Fi.

Matthew Beck

Matt Beck brought nothing but style and energy to the Naval Academy. Matt is an avid rock climber and although he has never camped a day in his life, he has proven to the world what it means to be the most "extreme" dude alive. Over the summers when everyone was training Matt was always enduring a hard life on the beaches of Nantucket. He has greatly exemplified his generosity with his amazing food at tailgaters that everyone will always remember forever…except him. The Long Islands / Jetpack, Nasty 9 member, brick x1, long islands in dta, tailgating for no reason, Pasta al Dente, Lori's basement, the cycle, struggles. "Just one more." If you ever run into Matt and ask him how he's doing, he will undoubtedly reply with, "I'm just livin' the dream." The man.

Eric Bokhoven

Things never really went as I planned or hoped, but looking back I wouldn't have wanted things to turn out any other way than the way they did.

Jared Carlson

Emerging from the frozen tundra of North Dakota no one was quite sure how this homeschooled prodigy would fare. D&B was a worrisome start to his academy career but he soon devoted his time to more constructive pursuits. An explorer of the Ho Chi Min, he probably broke into every building on the yard. As a pioneer of ice wings Jared spent more time in the Severn than any man on earth. As physics major he spent much time in the Pi room, though he intentionally never yielded to the entire circumference of a traffic circle. Always up for an adventure Jared found himself everywhere from Parisian riots and Alaskan glaciers to building Rome and sleeping on pool tables. Always the Boy Scout, he was prepared to survive anywhere from the wintery Appalachian trail to mountains in Peru with absolutely no survival gear. San Diego never treated him well. Civilized peoples beware because this Viking of the far north is going to dramatically alter your world.

James Cremean

"So hoist our colors, hoist them high, and vow allegiance true, so long as sunset gilds the sky above the ocean blue, unlowered shall those colors be whatever fate they meet, so glorious in victory, triumphant in defeat."

Ryan DiBello

Hailing from the PNW, Ryan is a back country skier with a knack for all outdoor activities. Gnar! Ryan came to the Naval Academy believing that knowledge could be gained by osmosis through telephone poles and deck posts. He was sorely mistaken, as LT OOW will agree. Ryan would have easily made the Olympics if all his swan dives were as perfect as the one off the Pusser's Landing Dock. And we cannot forget his memorable "Tour de Annapolis" on a bike. Thad'a'boy Ryan Armstrong. Nasty Nine member, brick x 1, Labor Day dock, and Nashville nights. D for Da man.

Dianna Dietrich

Dianna by birth, Diddy by nature, Double D by luck, and Dee to those who have seen it all. Here's to Plebe Year! Late night 'study sessions' on AIM, CHEMISTRY (and I'm not talking about SC111), laughing, crying, laughing some more. Youngster year, rock the vote! Why are 2/C guys so hot? A Preakness Party and a long ride back in Rambo. Second Class already? What is that beating through the wall? Therapy shopping. An 18 hr. lay over in da 'burgh and the full whammy, did we just get that? The Real World: Annapolis. Cambridge will never be the same. And we'll always miss him. Firsties! Back seat ... of an F/A-18. Start it off right, Labor Day, enough said. Last day as a student athlete. Boots with the fur. S.D.=restriction. Hey, do you know this song? No ID needed at the Fleet. See ya at graduation, suckas! You've been a great friend, roommate, teammate, and sister. Nobody could have made us happier. Take the 'Big Navy' by storm. Love ya Dee, 4 for 4!

Lauren Eanes

Brian Fields

After a rowdy year at Hawaii Pacific University, Brian decided to settle down at the Naval Academy. Whether is was painting Tecumseh or a brief stint as Bill the Goat, Brian reeked of school spirit...but not enough to keep him around on the weekends. Four years by the Bay were full of good friends and great memories: The flying squirrel...that's one way to spend your birthday. Go hug a tree. Taking a Calc final in reefer and gloves. Nearly lost at sea... well, it was only the Bay. The North East became our playground. Ring Dance weekend and the Labor Day blowout...Serenity Acres will never be serene again. We'll just consider that deposit a donation. Old Rag, PATC, and the Shenandoah cabin. Long weekends were never long enough. Flying to South Bend to end the curse. Weekend road trips to Boston and Vermont. There was always time to make the first lift...if you drove through the night. Christmas in Breckenridge and sleeping in an old barn at Jay. Conditions were epic. Riordans, you will be missed.

Bo James Fisher

A stone cold killer. In only one semester with the six man room, Bo caused the Navy more money in room damages than half the cost of the Island Hopping campaign in World War II. It was all good practice for when he'll be kicking down terrorists' doors. Left his "mark" on 9th company on the wardroom sofa. He has a great heart and is a great friend.

James Greene

"Now colleges from sea to sea - May sing of colors true, - But who has better right then we - To hoist a symbol hue? - For sailors brave in battle fair - Since fighting days of old, - Have proved a sailor's right to wear - The Navy Blue and Gold."

David Hanson

Nasty nine, closet partier, frat boys, Rodney Dangerfield, sharing christa, "E", intramural softball, UPenn Amy/Navy Nights, Bri's place, card games, and wandering around Philly, Indian experience, don't drink the jungle juice at Johns Hopkins, I'm not coming upstairs (sponsors) or I'm not coming in there (Rutgers) or I want to come in (Labor Day Bathroom), turn off your alarm clock Eric, Marty McFly and Back to Beat Army, where are cuddy's shoes? Wait, where's dave?, cowpond, granny skiing at whiteface, liquor pong winner (b/c winners don't end up in the infirmary), martin K, Ron, thirty-somethings, Kentucky, North Carolina - It's Iowa!, the second home - the duke house, Eastern Shore - Ring Dance & Labor day, it's my room too! (PS thanks for the hamburger), sub-boat owners, $80 cab ride, Salvatore, social 301, bro-cruise, TOP GUN, how did you get that dark?, Born a decade too late, Youngster July 4th, 311- stop drinking - you're missing the concert, best-fly over state friend

Hunter Hollrah

Hailing from the great state of Texas, Midn Hollrah is the only midshipman that rates cowboy boots with khaki uniform. Also Midn Hollrah is the first naval aviator to validate flight school. He accomplished this feat by logging hundreds of hours on Microsoft Flight Simulator and by buying a plane. Who needs to consult Wikipedia when you have Midn Hollrah's opinion? I'm right, Texas, I WANNA GO HOME, Texas, Shiner Bock, Truck truck, Texas...Texas. Dibello-"wanna go to haps?" Hunter- "nah, I'm working.....screw it lets go to haps."

Bradley Jones

The old man of Ninth Company hailing from Salem Oregon. Yes, Brad was 26 and still living in a dorm with people young enough to be his kids. He enjoyed his nice loft bunk bed though. Dirty prior. KP's favorite child. Company Commander. Blonde hair, blue eyes only gets you so far!! Your heart broke when '07 graduated. Advice was his specialty (whether it was welcomed or not). Drunken Brad fireman carrying Dianna down the hallway (or anyone in his way). Gunny's little pet over our plebe summer. Not doing so hot in drill with 2011 (it's ok, it was their fault)...An O-6 said you need to give me a massage. Your love for one special family...Restriction for smoking cigars...You have a good conduct medal? Raspberry Smirnoff Ice... themed parties... Duck or Bever fan? All-nighters with Hunter writing the same papers. Wait, Brad did homework? That look you get in your eyes just before you start to wrestle someone...watch out! Good Luck in the Corps, you YUT!

Eric Julius

Juuuuuuuuice. "Well, I am colorblind." You could not have been a better friend. We went boarding, boating, bar hopping, and wrenched on a few cars. Juice could fix just about anything, stereos, engines, suspensions. If you can't find him, check the local best buy, auto hobby shop, machine shop or the closest hill with snow on it. Ginger! We built the best half a race car the Mechanical Engineering department has ever seen. I don't think I would recognize you if you weren't covered in grease. The closest to having a brother I have ever had.

Matthew Krayewsky

He may be from Vermont and is probably a tree-hugging hippie at heart...but Matty Kray is a total bro. From his fervent desire to be a Marine, and his improbable dream of becoming an Astronaut; Matty Kray was the first mid to the South Pole and will expat there after his time in the Marine Corps. Though he is an Alpha male, you may have seen his softer side as he was a chick flick connoisseur. His modesty was exemplified when he gave himself the title of "Kray Awesome." The Doc, The Long Islands / Jetpack...MTV can wait, tailgating when there is no game. Nasty Nine member, doing so much extreme stuff, great times at Lori's, brick winner, Deb Balls, Lake Placid trips, Cancun taxis, and Nashville nights. Nice bro. The man.

Zachary Lamb

In a sea of Academy debauchery one midshipman stands high above the rest. Zach was a bastion for the pure; his insatiable smiles greeted everyone. Dubbed "sparkles" for his sparkling personality he was one of few who would never allow an individual to feel unnoticed. His use of the "no game game" seldom yielded results. Perhaps his large white van had something to do with it. No one could understand why a college student would drive a 15 passenger van but that monstrosity baffled not only Midshipmen, it sent families with small children running. We aren't quite sure how he survived the Academy; between the 6 man, the falcon, and Mike's pyrotechnics we were sure he would go the way of Leonidas. Even with nicknames Benedict XVI Zach raised his own version of mayhem. We can't forget the parrots or the time Homeland Security almost shut down BWI; through it all there was Zach with a smile and a laugh. Pilots beware this NFO might seem unassuming but we can assure you he's a handful.

Jarrod Larson

Calm, cool, collected, but a wild animal when placed in a Bill the Goat Suit. The only thing he loves more than girls and classic cars is firefighting. A master at remembering the names of his dates and first impressions at JMU. Owns enough vehicles to start a used car dealership. Bacardi Silver. A great roommate and even better friend.

Daniel Machado

"So hoist our colors, hoist them high, and vow allegiance true, so long as sunset gilds the sky above the ocean blue, unlowered shall those colors be whatever fate they meet, so glorious in victory, triumphant in defeat."

Jeffrey Matthews

"Now colleges from sea to sea - May sing of colors true, - But who has better right then we - To hoist a symbol hue? - For sailors brave in battle fair - Since fighting days of old, - Have proved a sailor's right to wear - The Navy Blue and Gold."

Kevin McGill

A salty sailor, and a true varsity athlete, youngest old looking guy in the group,  summer scam artist (he's in brazil, wait France, wait Spain, Newport?), Army / Navy @ Goldie's, Blowing $150 on Columbus Ave, Ladies man, Pick me up, its Freshman F-Week, Wawa -greatest drunk (shlabo) and hung-over cure (breakfast sandwich), Are we in Delaware yet?, Random trips up north, UMD - fist fights over girls, reconciling, then coming home with signs; Killington; NC State, <censored>, where are my shoes?; starting cowpond hours before anyone else got there, Picking up girls with Bessie the dog; Sea Isle nights; Bahamas SB 06 - 1 of 2 of the drama free crew w/ a diet of liquor, crackers, and pizza; The Hitts house, Echo Company president - the original company president, Going to Dave Matthews w/o tickets - 2 hrs away, I'm from Jersey, Washing cars/Flan at 5:30, have you seen my naked roommate?, keg baseball & dizzy bat, protecting Viv from the creeper, Big things come from small states

Josef Miller

"So hoist our colors, hoist them high, and vow allegiance true, so long as sunset gilds the sky above the ocean blue, unlowered shall those colors be whatever fate they meet, so glorious in victory, triumphant in defeat."

Jason

Perocho

The Ocho, From South Jersey, or California?; Sick Track Runner; The most athletic Computer Nerd ever; Sneaking off to PA on Plebe overnights; Playing Spiderman in Cancun; Going to Rutgers and leaving with signs...which became very common; The Nasty Nine, enough said; Bahamas '06-the balcony; DC Bike Ride ending in DC emergency room; Starting at Preakness, waking up in Virginia, & buying season pass to Six Flags; Phi Psi-We go the last laugh, its our fire extinguisher now; Hiding in DTA backyards for 3 hours; Crazy ski trips up North; Cruise Ship infirmaries after liquor pong; Cornerstone & the Duke House, fist fighting for girls; Keep your voice down! Why? You can't tell me? Labor Day weekend at the house-let me in, New York City, and Cow Pond. Great times with a Great Friend.

Mark

Pulley

The best cheeks this side of the Mississippi. He somehow managed to get out of more mandatory events than any midshipman in USNA history. Most likely to be President because of his warm smile and ability to BS any situation. A charismatic man who can always put a smile on your face.

Lizbeth

Quinteros

Crazy Legs, Crazy, there was another nickname you never let stick. Four years of "True life: I play in the triangle." She's never been one to bite her tongue, but she'll give you Cali love. The Dino-rash was HOT. Wino nights with yellowtail, girl...you're FRUNK. That's how we do it...H to the N...that is NOT the business. Many mistake her smile for a pissed off look, which isn't the case unless she's driving, and that is another story entirely. Aw shut up Latisha you know I can do it! Long practices...I'm trying to be nice today; oh is that why you're not talking? Take a lap! Leg cramp, OH! Think about it, not act it out! This critch is always willing to help while calling you a DB. Girl, you crazy or sumpin'! This Roxy wearing (plaid all year), virgin rita drinking, shopaholic LA native climbs like a monkey but psh whatever all she wants is cheese. Roommates, teammates, classmates, and friends (lucky thing). Wait, wait, I have a story...4 for 4!

Robert

Rodriguez

"Four years together by the Bay where Severn joins the tide, then by the Service called away, we've scattered far and wide; but still when two or three shall meet, and old tales be retold, from low to highest in the Fleet will pledge the Blue and Gold."

Erich

Schoen

Erich Raney Schoen is a simple man of few words but many great accomplishments. He excelled in many facets of life but his overwhelming modesty tricked many into thinking that Erich was just another average Mid which of course, was not the case. A golfer by trade, Erich shocked the masses at a San Diego driving range when, after a string of dismal shots, he effortlessly drove a ball to the horizon with a club more aged than he. As one of the Navy Golf greats, Erich never revealed his secrets but rather, kept his fans entertained with his exceptional play. Erich had the unique ability to side step the system whenever he pleased which allowed him to enjoy dta more than most. His ability to move freely was also due to the fact that he never told anyone where he was going which, according to his father, is a family trait. A constant observer, Erich had the uncanny ability to ignite laughter among a group with the greatest of ease with a simple one-liner. His humor, although very unique, seemed to strike a chord with whoever was listening. Whether it be chasing himself, singing Sweet Caroline, or delivering crushing blows, Erich was always on top of his game. Many will remember Erich's legacy but to the men of 5366 he will always be da Bone Bone.

Sian

Stimpert

As an optimistic person always looking for more to do, she will always be remembered as the little girl with the big loud voice. At a great height of only 5 feet, Sian proved that size did not matter and rose to any challenge put in her path. When she wasn't involved with singing her heart out at Gospel Choir or kicking some butt in Gung Fu or writing away in Lucky Bag, she was typically found doing something with the company. The good times for her definitely included plebe year from sounding off to Sea Trials to Herndon. The times continued to roll on into youngster year with being carefree. Even though the grades took a beating that year, she pulled herself back up second class year which went by in a flash. Firstie year, what can you say, the most hectic and chaotic year she can remember, but still filled with valuable lessons and memories. Sian will most likely be remembered for her enthusiasm and hard work which she hopes will continue throughout her Navy career.

Michael Tem

Coined infamous one liners while at USNA. He had more fun instigating intoxicated midshipmen than being intoxicated himself. Brought us all together with Call of Duty. He's destined to become 2008's first Ace no matter the cost. Master at throwing knives and all things relating to the Apache song. One of the funniest and most genuine guys you will ever meet.

Theodore Van Dam

Ted grew up in the dirtiest state in the nation, the Dirty Jerz, but you couldn't actually tell from the lack of fake tan, blown out hair, and Armani clothes. He tries to pass himself off as being from the South, from the cowboy boots, to the acquired southern accent, to the blue Silverado pickup truck he drives. No matter how hard he tries the New Jersey in him shows through when he pronounces coffee, or rather 'cawwwwfee,' and talk, 'tawwwlk.' From his ability to drink Guiness like it's water, to his motivated flat top, to showing a guest the comfortable living quarters of a mid, and his run in with daquiri's post Army Navy game, Ted Van Dam was one cool mid. So this Bud Heavy's for you Ted, Mister 'I'm going to fly things that weren't meant to.'

Daniel Vassar

"Now colleges from sea to sea - May sing of colors true, - But who has better right then we - To hoist a symbol hue? - For sailors brave in battle fair - Since fighting days of old, - Have proved a sailor's right to wear - The Navy Blue and Gold."

Flannery Woodward

Flan, Flann, Flanjob, Flanimal...Hailing from the great state of South Carolina, she was proud of her southern roots and made sure to always tell you about growing up next to Parris Island and seeing the Blue Angels more times in one year than most see in a lifetime. Flannery spent all four years as a "fatty" on the Women's Rugby team, a singer for the Glee Club, and a crazy roommate in countless late nights and laughs with Dee and Liz. Her teammates and Glee Club girls will always think back on the crazy times Flannery seemed to have. Remember those "Irish Car Bombs" in London on St. Patrick's Day or that "daddy gulp" of Jess' "Amaretto Sour" in Rome? Back in the Hall, there were many late nights as an Aero major, although some included video taping elevator rides and not studying at all. Flannery has a free-spirit that is contagious and will create even more great memories as she continues to Pensacola and beyond...well, that is, after her 6-month long TAD in Annapolis...4 for 4!

Mikoto Yoshida

Mikoto Yoshida. Miko, Yosh, Yoshi. 9th company and Navy Boxing. Beck, Deebs, Kray, good times and bad we went through a lot together, thanks for everything. Vic and my boys on the boxing team including Coach McNally and Coach Searing, I wouldn't have survived or stayed without you guys. Bust 'em. Semper Fidelis.

Laura Young

"Four years together by the Bay where Severn joins the tide, then by the Service called away, we've scattered far and wide; but still when two or three shall meet, and old tales be retold, from low to highest in the Fleet will pledge the Blue and Gold."

Joshua Accomando

I love my mother very much and I never would have made it without her.

Sarah Atwell

From the beginning of time, Sarah has wanted to be a SWO. If I didn't know Navy Women's Crew most loyal photographer, I would think she was the daughter of John Paul Jones! Speaking of loyal fans – Sarah was the face of the Navy. Spirit Squad leader for every possible event, just look at the shoes (and laces), face paint, and pom-poms. My other half of the Navy/Marine Corps Team she was born to be a SWO and a great one at that. After all, she already has her first piece of MAHAN Spirit Gear. Always quick to give a smile or high-five Sarah was able to avoid nearly all cynicism over her 4 years. This may have been attributed to her lack of time to think negatively: she was either at crew practice/regatta, fallings asleep in class, or trying to study in the library. She owes thanks to all the special people in her life over the past 4 years whether they knew her from 10th Company, the boathouse, classes, summer cruises, or just around the hall. Go Navy! Beat Army!

Ryan Beall

Beall - Does anyone actually use your first name? Can you fix my computer? What does the "press any key" error message mean? Thanks for the laughs and the memorable 4 years all the way to the end! Get me in an airplane already!

David Burkett

I'm nice to customer sales people...so long as they tell me exactly what I want to hear. Southpark Zone. Don't let him hurt me anymore. Alex. I hate MATLAB. Chik-fil-a. Grateful Deads. I put that workout schedule up so it will make me workout...Dave you've done it 5 times in 2 weeks...Materials Science…"that's what she said." Keeping up international relations in Canada and leading us on a wild goose chase for Margaretville in New Orleans...that place was not at all as "swankey" as the Blue Penguin would have been oh, and who can forget the horrors of walking too far down Bourbon Street as a poor plebe in uniform. Let's do the time warp! hallway wrestling; is a full cappuccino machine really necessary? too far, dave, yet again too far. One thing he can't hide forever is his 5425 tattoo --jk jk, but seriously 5425 4 life. Speaking in 'bubonics' since 2K4. I can't I have IFS. I got one more in me!

Andrew Cassity

"Four years together by the Bay where Severn joins the tide, then by the Service called away, we've scattered far and wide; but still when two or three shall meet, and old tales be retold, from low to highest in the Fleet will pledge the Blue and Gold."

Matthew Cave

Throughout his four years in Annapolis Matt made many friends. Sadly, they were all plebes. His endeavors in friendship are comparable to his efforts with the ladies. However, this lack of success was due to his spotty memory. His social skills are not of personal fault though, but rather should be attributed to living with Rainman and a terrorist for years on end. Luckily, Matt found his true love and best friend in San Diego: Barry. Always a stellar athlete, Cave excelled in the weight room, becoming one of the strongest men at school. This led to countless triumphs on the intramural fields. Matt's stellar academic performance didn't go to waste either. Using what he learned as a math major, Matt realized Atlantic City was his key to prosperity. The ultimate trainer, Matt changed the lives of many midshipmen, and is sure to be a great leader in the fleet. Matt will certainly excel in his future career as a Marine aviator, and may someday be as accomplished as he was in middle school.

Thomas Chamberas

Hailing from Poughkeepsie "Power Kingdom", New York, Thomas "TP" Chamberas was undoubtedly Greek. From his monastic attendance of Greek Orthodox mass to his displays of Greek culture and even his crush on the actors in 300 (they're not really Greek, Tom) his pride in Greece showed through. Tom excelled as an Oceanography major. Any question you have concerning tides, buoys, dolphins, or sea otters he could answer. Tom spent much of his time at the Academy rowing on the Heavyweight Rowing Team. If one could fairly say something about Tom it's that he put the Heavy in Heavyweight. Get some, man. Tom also got his jaw sawed apart and safety pinned back together. For fun. For a month he ate only liquids. Feel free to insert your own joke. Loved by all for his jovial manner and easy-going attitude, TP Chamberas will make a fine EOD officer (dork).

Lindi Marie Conner

"Now colleges from sea to sea - May sing of colors true, - But who has better right then we - To hoist a symbol hue? - For sailors brave in battle fair - Since fighting days of old, - Have proved a sailor's right to wear - The Navy Blue and Gold."

Justin Daniel

"So hoist our colors, hoist them high, and vow allegiance true, so long as sunset gilds the sky above the ocean blue, unlowered shall those colors be whatever fate they meet, so glorious in victory, triumphant in defeat."

Brigitte Fox

Brigmeister-Stallion-Goal Scorer-Economist-McTubetop. Quiet, but not to her friends. Plebe summer sparked her love to show her dance moves and firstie year she defined perfectionist. NCAA's, Beat Army x2, and MVP without an ACL. Give her a song and she'll sing, ask for a movie and she'll tell you every line. King hall-no way. Summer training tested her patience but left her with an iron stomach. Finished in 10 but will always be an 18. The "creepy" guy got the last laugh, but "I'm freezing!" Briiiiigiiiiitte! The only person to spend her college fund on clothes and still have nothing to wear. Yut, Marine Corps! Je ne sais pas. No more funnels. "Bri-gitte, I think about you evry day." I love San Diego! Brigitte's next step in life is NAS Pensacola where she will undoubtedly carry on her ways of dominating.

Timothy Francis

Timmy Franchise. All that comes from his mouth is hate. A stud from Pittsburgh, PA and a die hard Pittsburgh sports fan as well, it's too bad the G-Men won the super bowl in the great year of '08. Some good times in 5421. He ate all of the Mini-Wheats so there was a new box every week. Timmy did not like to share; you would never be able to score any food from him. You don't take a lightweight's food. When they can eat, they eat and they don't share. During the rowing season he would always look like he was dying from starvation, but he got through it all four years. Tim's decision to go into the Marine Corps was a good one for him. He showed that he could hold people to a standard while being company commander first semester. His great leadership showed in the color company rankings at the end of the semester when Tenth Company ranked last in the brigade in academics and in the bottom five in overall color company points. The Corps is getting a great Marine Timmy…yuuuut.

Robert Harrell

Coming from the streets of Lake Highlands he will first tell you of his football prowess with Frank. I know him differently. Between "Alex is snoring" and our trip to Syracuse I never saw him playing football. I did see him on his 21st and again when his friend "stole my clothes". Throughout it all I saw a great friend and a gifted leader. We have been through a lot, usually yelling spouts from the red headed angel (or not) and our love for the crow. Good luck and fly safe. -MB We've got a clinger. Be Careful She has a cigarette. I better label my rack. Alex, your crazy red headed girl stole my clothes! But I don't want to do anything. Thank you for shoving the muffin down my throat. Pink shirts. Grateful Deads. Lightning Bolt! I'm a Pilot? Team Meeting at Fleet! Stupid Camera. I won't get WoW. I promise…I got WoW. Study, why study, I'll just go drink. I'm just gonna chalk that up to being a bad decision. Nap time! Everything takes a minute when you wait to the last one!

William Inch

"Now colleges from sea to sea - May sing of colors true, - But who has better right then we - To hoist a symbol hue? - For sailors brave in battle fair - Since fighting days of old, - Have proved a sailor's right to wear - The Navy Blue and Gold."

John Judy

Jen Budy - You will always be the lovable, slow-loafing goof with the awesome TAPS games (Congratulations, Laura and Zack). Notorious for taking a weekend for Fantasy Football, planning graduation week around baseball and basketball games on TV, drinking coffee (always) and then more coffee (most of the time) and then some more just to talk to the waitress (once, er maybe more) and beer + physics = working on catching skillz in front of the fire alarm at 2200 when everyone else is studying for finals; I appreciate your ability to tear me away from anything productive. Remember, bald spots are sophisticated...and easy to find! Nice apron, man. Keep working that West Chesterage, you steam roller you...just stay away from Marty! Fight the man, Grandpa Judy, and keep playin' the propaganda. I'll miss your carefree lifestyle coupled with your 3.8 CQPR (jerkface) - what's studying again? Four years of play by the bay. Oh...and who's John? - Stacy, Gen, and M-cubed

Ali Kianpour

Kianpour will never be forgotten by his classmates. The master of psychological warfare, Kianpour honed his skills by preying on unfortunate plebes who wandered too close to his domain and his arch nemesis Matt "shingles boy" Morse. An average day would see Kianpour sending thousands of men to their deaths, pausing only to cook a gourmet meal on his non-Naval Academy approved kitchen appliances. This passion for violence and the better things in life led to many sleepless nights for his roommates who feared they were living with Hannibal Lecter. Also, his tendency for abnormal growths and the subsequent experiments in self-surgery only furthered their unease. However , that could be overlooked since without him Leavitt would not be done, wild Irishmen would have roamed the hallways, Atlantic City would not have been so bright, and the number of awkward moments everyone endured would have been cut in half. Best of luck to you on your farming in Switzerland.

Stacy Kulczewski

Stacy Kul...um...ski? - For someone who can't sing at all, you sure love music: #1 Glee Club Groupie, Halloween Concert Dome Crew, Manamana queen, do I hear Animaniacs in the background? You always kept me well fed with Dr. Pepper Thursdays, banana bread, pretzel dogs, beef jerky and Cheeeeeese Gromit! Cheeeeese. I'm glad we established that your sole purpose in life is to entertain - the flashing froggie will always be mine mine mine yours. Ben says your sister's hot, but so are you in those nasty Navy cammies. Thanks for being such a great and generous person, even if you do yell "dog pile." Biter, but feisty. Wait...who's TAPONE? Team Awesome rules the world! Oh, I'll miss you my sunrise-hating, gold-star sleeping, fonetikaly-challenged LBN. JENGA! I love you (?) - Pookie

Joseph Leavitt

Joe remained under the radar during plebe year, and as a result, no one realized he was destined for greatness. That all changed when Joe single handedly defeated Grand Theft Auto III his youngster year. Soon after, an infamous night of drinking with the Irish would land him in the slammer for 21 days. Joe survived, and at the start of 2nd class year began dating Jessie. Suddenly "Party Joe" became "Love Poet Joe" and his extensive cell phone use will certainly result in brain cancer later in life. As it turned out, the kid that constantly played with his food and stared slack jawed into space was one of the smartest guys in our class. However, that didn't stop this distinguished grad from skipping the Secretary of the Navy during graduation. It's been a great 4 years of excess; be it food, drink, mountain climbing, or roller coasters. Good luck in all that comes your way, you will do great. You truly are a remarkable and fun person, despite your lack of bunk bed etiquette.

Kreg Lesage

"So hoist our colors, hoist them high, and vow allegiance true, so long as sunset gilds the sky above the ocean blue, unlowered shall those colors be whatever fate they meet, so glorious in victory, triumphant in defeat.""

Bradley Mayhew

If you took one look at Brad Mayhew you could tell he was a product of Troy, Illinois. Tall, handsome, outgoing, and worldly he was loved by all. The Marine Corps was fortunate to snag a decision maker of Brad's caliber. "Did it land heads or tails?" ... Brad was always in control of his destiny. If he had decided not to become a Marine officer there were many other career paths for the talented Mr. Mayhew. A job as a professional bowler, whistler, or male escort were not out of the question, and the day he turned down a future in the Speedo modeling industry saddened everybody. His legacy at the Academy will hopefully live on with the uniform modifications he created such as the SDB dickey shirt, the bare-chested IKE jacket, and the trousers around the ankles look. However, knowing Brad, he will most likely be remembered for being a famous stock market guru, a well known sports columnist, and a true friend.

Melton

For most of us, our first encounter with Matt was hearing his breathtaking rendition of Jessie's Girl. Our ears bled. His musical career would later culminate when he sang the "Time Warp" in a costume that left little to the imagination. Whenever we partied, Matt was the responsible one. This was probably due to his acute sense of direction. He could find a dormitory just by being told it was "rightish". Perhaps the biggest impression that he left was his ability to make his flatulence quack like a duck and his ability to procrastinate until the last possible second and still pull off VGEP grades. Good luck in every endeavor you undertake. You have accomplished a great deal so far and I'm sure you will continue to do so. It will not be long before all of us are calling you "Matt the Diplomat".

Mmmmmatthew MmmmmcCamley Mmmmmorse - Agh! Shingles! Stay away from me you creepy real life musical! Jump fatty - 10th Company's very own Irish Foreign National. You were like an abused puppy when Ben found you and made you his roommate. You've since spent your time singing incessantly, calling/visiting Hayley and idolizing Greg Mortenson. Fix your watch! And remember to buy your clothes on the right side of the store. Who needs a radio when you're in the shower? Congrats on surviving four years in the wrong major. Be careful of knife-wielding maniacs, and we wish you the best as a yut-yut. - Ben, Gen, and Stay-Kay

Michael Pfaefflin

This 5425 alum is anything but ordinary. His inability to sit still repeatedly produced new and unexpected entertainment. His proudest moment may be the gallon pickle challenge, but then again it must be two pounders in one glorious sitting: Double pound for that. He's survived a cancerous blue and gold, hallway wrestling, and a series of out-of-town 'real-college' experiences. Know your roots: Beat Hopkins! Whether sporting a high and tight or a mop, being straight gangster or a blown caffeine addict, as a waldo or a Jake G., he has done it all. Of course, we cannot forget Mid-life-crisis or pfaefflin.com- Mike is sure to go on to be a rock star at something bigger and better than these stints but one can only wonder what that will be. Until then-

Crystal Joy Piraino

On May 23rd 2008, Crystal became the first in her family to graduate from college...When Crystal applied to the Naval Academy, she didn't have the strength to do a single pushup, but her desire to become a Naval Officer propelled her to achieve significant physical improvement. "I failed the IST as a plebe, and vowed that it would be the last time I would ever fail at a physical event," she said. Crystal set a goal for herself to be able to do 101 pushups and 101 sit-ups in 2 minutes and was able to accomplish this during her 2/c year. "Adversity breads leadership and my experiences here have certainly made me stronger." ## Andrew Reynolds

From his auspicious beginnings as the Plebe Summer Assistant to the Assistant Squad Leader, it was clear that Andy was on the path to greatness. Despite nearly getting relieved of this essential position, Andy was able to rise to the high rank of Battalion XO---much to the dismay of his friends and his "street cred." Known for his happy-go-lucky attitude and quirky sense of humor, Andy was a friend to all he came in contact with. Cigar birthdays, hunting with massive casualties, sad attempts at fishing, overeating followed quickly by purging, underage drinking offenses, my little buttercup, amusement park trips coupled with alcohol, Halo parties, and zombies are just a few of the things that have come to define him throughout his 4 years here. Although he never succeeded in winning that highly sought after handball championship, his grades and service selection show that hard work does pay off. Congrats on all you've accomplished so far; there are surely many accolades to come.

Despite this appreciable list of epithets, this gentleman cannot be introduced without his plenitudinous titles, to include: Treasurer, Co-Social Coordinator, Grammarian, Spirit Coordinator, Money Man, Haggler, Discount Diva, Business Aficionado, Fake Chain Wearing Always Gangsta' Party Animal, Wild and Crazy, not so fast on the bike, soon to be driving nuclear submarines, Dude, and good friend. Tomas, from your early days as sketchy cyclist number one, to your prime as Donald Trump/JayZ/Gramarasaurus Rex, we will never forget your cycling days and fiscal ways. ### Genevieve

Studer

We all knew that Gen would go far, but who knew she would make general her 1/C year? She had a bit of a rocky start, being the "Tripod" and all, but who could have hoped for a happier or hippy-er cripple. (Good thing she learned how to land before Benning…) After she finally realized she didn't have to remain locked-on at Izzy's table, she eased into her new (an "A" in EE !?!) self. Gen is special, whether it is her Germanic tendencies or her Obsessive Compulsive PERSONALITY Disorder. How OCPD? She almost got fried for running!!! Finally, everyone got to know Brigade XO Gen, with her cheery way at ~~noon~~ ALL meal announcements, her cowboy boots, how she ran the Brigade (with a little help from SamSki), and as the only Mid to actually read Midregs. But only a lucky few got to know the rolling-around-on-the-floor-laughing, headgasmic, look! shiny object, "Pookie" that we love. Gen, next time you see a beautiful sunrise, DON'T WAKE US UP. ## Matthew Chesney

Matthew Chesney, also known as "the new guy" but known to his friends as Kenny Chesney, escaped the DMZ at the beginning of his second class year. After escaping from the infamous Ninth Company Pirates, he continued his love for robots, both his private and professional portions of his life. Kenny brought disco dance parties, scaled Mexican mountains in the name of America, and hilarious one-liners to the Eleventh Company…all while he was inverted. After relegating his love for robots to the engineering sector, Matt's demeanor and disposition underwent a rapid and dramatic metamorphosis. Some would go as far as to say that Matt actually became fun. Sadly, Matt's downfall spun out of control with his prostitution for flight hours. And, yes, he was still inverted.

Victor Colon

Living with a Rhodes and Trident Scholar for 2 years made me feel like an idiot. But we had good times at the Holidae Inn. Flash, splash, & dash. Whiffle ball. Lejeune. Slurpies. V-Dog/"Michael" Moore don't forget me. I might ask for a job someday. I gained my real education at the Tree House of Pain, under the tutelage of El ScanMan. He taught me so much: dance party, Penelope, falcons, las pumas, y La Capitana to name a few. Senor Moses ran back across the border, but at least he left el refrigerador. Couldn't have passed Statics without you, hombre. D-Tarp and Canon, thanks for always being in my corner.(fyi:it's a metaphor) Shoutout to Optimus Prime, Murda, JungJin. To the KAMA Fam, sa rang hae yo. And to my brothaz of the sweet science, remember: train to fight, fight to win. Carboom!/Bust Em! Yosh/Matty, we're on the wall 4 life. To Mr. Reed City: KidRock is overrated! The theme song for 4 years: Third Eye Blind, "Can I graduate?!" At last, Autobots, Roll Out!

Matthew Cox

Matty, from plebe year boxing through spring breaks in the Bahamas, nights at Riordens, and countless afternoons in the Playaz club you have always been an enjoyable person to be around. Your adventurous demeanor and confident personality have been the source of many great stories. We have been 'arrested' in Ocean City, had the 'big splash' in the Bahamas, the puking incident at Penn State, and the NOLS Alaska experience. You could always be counted on to argue your 'communist' political agenda or purchase some sort of vitamin 'cure all' no matter which trip we were on. Your cynicism has often provided a much needed comic relief at school, whether it is at formations, parades, or through companywide emails. I know that you will have fun every day of your life and that everyone around you will benefit from knowing you. Good luck with everything.

David Lee Ferris

David, aka, WAAAVID, will be remembered for: being the king of gadgets, the king of gymnastics, winning every robot building competition ever, and snoring that sounds like an asphyxiated pig, Mata beating him with a pillow to stop the snoring, Dave's soft spot for the foreign ladies, more electronics suctioned to his windshield than any other human, digestive-system-altering-hot-wings, getting hit in the face by a huge Samoan, excelling in the Academy's most supremely exclusive group of academia known as Honors Systems, helping Erik and MATLAB get along, working the system and making $$$, John and Dave's joint venture into Wii distribution...

Rhett Gilman

Everything is bigger in TEXAS... well maybe not everything. His laugh, which he would later become known for, helped him immediately win over his classmates, as well as J. Chewning. The consummate student, Rhett could often be found at Nimitz. As one of the most leet members of his class, Rhett excelled at halo and youtube. Rhett could always keep you going in the middle of our famous all nighters. He always had a new jam, funny joke, and inspirational phrase to keep you going. Hopefully you will continue spreading your joy as you have done with all of us.

April Icard

Now Showing at Bars in Pensacola: April "Tiffany" Icard: A Serious woman for serious times. If she could be faulted for one thing it would be that she hung out with a shady crowd. Frequently being fried for being drunk while on duty, she was often found at the docks on liberty swearing, whoring, and boozing. She loved to read, espiecially her favorite book "Arabian Nights in Amber". Despite her curious behavior of doing homework (she was an astro major) and running a lot, it would be a hard-fought battle to find a truer friend, her shoulder often wet with tears or heavy with the weight of another. If you are looking for a good time, try hanging out with April, but never at Communist Bars in Baltimore (Parks in Maine are better). On a serious note, I want my fuzzy handcuffs back.

Clinton Lawson

It's not always about what ya do know, sometimes it is about what ya don't know. And if it weren't for Bo's motivated class mates he would not have known the 5th Law, and perhaps that's the theme. The experience is made of all the people and events involved. Because if it weren't for the midnight plunges into the Severn, riding the waves on the east, west, and Hawaiian coasts, bar hoppin' up and down the east coast(Auto Slim's), the multitude of red and blue flashers in San Diego followed by the trips to downtown, "feeling" the seas off of NC, and numerous trips to 'Rebel Land' the experience would not have been nearly the same. I know he has enjoyed the ride. It is with no uncertainty that this is just the beginning for him. "Keep on keepin' on"

Thomas Lucey

Tom, for us, befriending you has been a blessing and a curse. Your optimism, your 'conquer the world' attitude, and your ceaseless energy make you a joy to be around. On the other hand, your goofy mannerisms, your lack of coordination (a baseball hit you in the face), your unbearably loud and obnoxious voice (particularly after half of a Budweiser), and your poor taste in music (Kid Rock) keeps everyone at a safe distance. On a serious note, you are always ready to try new things and to explore new places: Alaska, Notre-Dame, the Bahamas; you truly love life, and this positive outlook and enthusiasm with which you approach every day is contagious. I am honored to have you as a bud. Getting to know you has made my life better, and I know that you will continue to have a positive impact on anyone who is lucky enough to meet you. We love you, Tom.

Robert Malcolm

"So hoist our colors, hoist them high, and vow allegiance true, so long as sunset gilds the sky above the ocean blue, unlowered shall those colors be whatever fate they meet, so glorious in victory, triumphant in defeat.""

John Blaine Moore

While a Midshipman, Blaine Moore carried a QPR of 9.000. Also an athlete, he competed in such events as indoor base jumping, midnight hurdling, and the iPod scavenger hunt. A low point in his Naval Academy career was his failure to get over his caffeine addiction, despite repeated stints at rehab and not sleeping for his entire junior year. Nevertheless, he became a Rhodes Scholar, Trident Scholar, Knight of the British Empire, is worshipped as a god by some Pacific Islanders, and will cure cancer. He briefly pursued a career as a rapper his freshman year, but to no avail. Blaine, more affectionately known as Baby Bunny, enjoys late-night Slurpee runs, long walks on Hospital Point, study sessions on Farragut, making his roommates feel uncomfortable in their own room, and working out every waking moment of the day. ...Your face!

Joshua Moses

From Chewning's reminders not to pick your face to the Treehouse of Pain, it's been an interesting four years here. Although never really a room to partake in naked study hour, we still had our share of awkward run-ins with Rich Mayer youngster year. Scat Man. Random trips for gelato during plebe year that gave way to Pusser's and Fleet as the years progressed. Always ready to throw down in a spontaneous dance party and relaxing to Sandstorm at a ludicrous volume the night of the EE final. Be it randomly navigating the streets of D.C. instead of hockey games, celebrating St. Paddy's at the source, or visiting the Sexy Boutique, you truly did fly by the seat of your pants. Bonded with the Edge Dressing 11, but why did you leave the Playaz Club?-MS

Gregory Moynihan

Greg Moynihan came to the Naval Academy in the summer of 2004 and rapidly became a visionary for fun. Greg began by undermining the Plebe Study Hour rules with his "Naked Study Hour." Furthering his fun as a plebe, Greg and his plebe year roommates Canon and Greg organized the post-TAPS plebe pillow-fight tournament. The most memorable of Greg's fun was his idea of a 21st birthday celebration culminating in the founding of the Edge-Dressing Eleven (as seen on YouTube). Greg also enjoyed wild drinking swings (Youngster year) including the Annapolis Crawl, goat riding, and natural grass watering. One memory Greg will always have will be the superfluous arguments with close friend Brad Jones, followed by immediate trips downtown for beers. Greg's company mates proved to be a tremendous help in the communal Facebook strategizing to persuade some unlucky female to accompany to him to Ring Dance...two days prior (said girl was in his company...and a plebe).

Evan

Petracca

What can you say about a New Yorker that he hasn't already said about himself? Like a true New Yorker Evan was never afraid to tell you how he felt. Whether it be rack races during plebe summer or late night convo's, you always knew where he stood. He was the first to tell you what you needed to hear and when you needed it, what you wanted to hear. With the same straight forward approach, Evan shared his dance moves with the ladies in DTA. Evan was on the cutting edge of fashion and music, often forcing both upon his roommates. Evan, while we know your path to greatness will be long, take comfort in the fact that your path will be a straight one. We know you will find success long before one of your stories gets to a point.

When I met Irv on I-Day, I knew I'd have to wear the pants in our room for the summer. When he moved out, Campbell provided some candid advice for time management. REAL Squad forever. Loof always ready to brighten our day with Kid Rock, thanks to Evan's media chits plebe year. Hanging out in San Diego with Ace and Jitterbug. Cody's outlandish speakers and awkward run-ins with Rich Mayer. Gangsta's Paradise didn't last long Shane, but Candyland will continue. Over my four years here, corrupting Victor Colon was my greatest accomplishment. Vic – whether through clubbing, la Capitana, or cougars, you kept it real. You'll get Penelope some day. Holler at the Treehouse of Pain, where pants were optional. The Edge Dressing 11 – restrictees that will live in infamy. Raves, Halo, and anything related to Lim – that's what I'll remember from my time here. It's been a good run in the 11th Company family. My legacy will live on through Squad America.

Sloane

In one word, Thomas Sigler Sloane would describe himself as habitual, and, well, there is not one better word to describe his tenure as a midshipman at this fine institution. When it came time to drill, TS would habitually find some reason to be marked as an excused absence. Homework? He would habitually leave that to the last minute and then. . . round up some friends for a few games of Halo, watch a movie, and then maybe set his alarm for 5am, hit snooze, fall back asleep and do it after lunch. When it came time to go out with the fellas, have a drink and solve the world's problems, he would habitually drink a Captain and Coke, no lime. When someone had a great idea for a fun weekend, Tom habitually found himself involved in one way or another. And when you needed a friend to complain to, ask a favor of, cheer you up, get your back, go drinking with after failing a EE exam, talk a gate guard in San Diego out of arresting you, or set you straight, TS was there, habitually. Yut yut in the cut. Rhett probably wants to know if that's the wedding haircut. Bush Gardens reception with red t-shirts and cami pants? You can wear your gold Supe-er stars and wreath, though we know which one you'll pick for the uni: 3.60 (smarty pants). If not, there's always the stash of Navy Boxing apparel from years of remodeling your face and all-day workouts (yea 0530 runs). Plus, you'll look good with your Miami tan/burn. At least the burn will match the grass stains and scrapes. Who says you're not adventurous when you venture out of the room/Hall? But why leave with such amazing ESA cooked food? It's the alcohol in Glen Burnie that will really get you into trouble though. Zero... Maybe this time you won't pass out. CVS, NYC and the best $15 blanket purchase EVER. Sandcastles!

Vandenengel

Lots of good memories with some great people. Jumping out of the ceiling of Lejeune, wreaking havoc at CP, wheelie-chair Wiffleball on 5-0, being an inaugural member of the "Edge Dressing 11." Jumping the wall for slurpies, great road trips to Myrtle Beach, Virginia Tech, UPenn, etc. Growing up in the Holidae Inn and then living with the "Autobots." Spending way too much time in the Playaz Club, on chemistry, and on watching the Red Sox. Who said Chemistry-major future-submariners can't do 50 Milers? Do they have morning quarters formation at Boston College? Thanks to the genius who coined "Vandy" so people would stop butchering my name, and to everyone else that helped me create the illusion I was marginally smart or knew what I was doing half the time. "HEY, we're on the 1" "Rock, paper, stripes" "I should have known better than to get into the car with you two..." "Doggone fingers extended and joined!" "Don't pull a Midn Walker!" Toothbrush hits; making breakfast; Gold Bond; Dahlgren sprints (again!); tape wars; chipped bayonets; Pgilfer the Plebe; the best watch section ever; let's plan a weekend!; camping; paintball charges; Colombians – 'nough said; assassinations; bungies, tarps, and tequila - the necessities; karma hates me; OORAH; emo bottle; classroom bob; always making at LEAST one U-turn; fights that seem important and the shades of life that no one understands; rugby skits and ice baths; waking up early to get the gym to ourselves; MCMAPing; New England vs. the desert. ## Brigade

Monica Amagna

From "She's Asian, too?" and twins in BCGs to Captain of the rifle team. Getting lost in NYC in Harlem but seeing the bridge from the Olsen twins movie. Building a wack shack because it's freaky to sleep with your eyes half open. Don't dye hair weird colors. Room service at midnight rocks. Polar bears are cute but eat their young. Boxer puppies are the ugliest cute dogs. Wings + tequila = no more trips to Armadillo. Organic foods and King Hall don't mix. Taking mangos from Buddy's and walking out of pink shoes. TV over IP is amazing... so is abc.com!

Joshua Benson

"There are no extraordinary men...just extraordinary circumstances that ordinary men are forced to deal with." -Admiral William "Bull" Halsey

Paul Bridgers

"You guys! My senior chief told me...." The famous words from YP's second class year. Cheeto Bridgers since Poinsettia Bowl 2005. The red headed step child of the '08 offensive line. "Coach my helmet is covering my eyes!!" Who can forget passing 300 yard shuttles after passing out on the fourth leg? Ocean City 2005, how much fun can you cram into 24 hours of "weekend" liberty? It was a great four years and we will pick it up again in Pensacola. Nice.

Benjamin Broussard

When Ben wasn't busy with his Aero classes, he was probably on leave. Otherwise, he was busy as the director of Dirty Dozen Productions' series of Spirit Spots, a huge success amongst Navy football fans and Joes with shiny shoes. No one can deny that he has slain the Jabberwock and came galumphing back. Not much of a jokester, his occasional outbursts always inspired a round of hearty laughter. Never hesitating to designate himself the driver, Ben served as the room 5151 chauffeur in "the Tank," his Texas-sized SUV. A loyal Houstonian and Cajun, Ben always shared his mom's excellent care packages with his roommates- as long as they pledged to the Texas flag. Though he's been seen on the site before, rumor has it that one day Ben will create his own Facebook account... but don't hold your breath.

Jacqui Charnigo

4 years at the academy but the track was my home- Mona Lisa, Angel Wings, Jumping Jax- breaking my leg high jumping plebe year all the way to breaking the school pole vault record senior year- break out the lime green spandex! To my faithful team captains Katie, Prisca, and Kirsten- who I was honored to follow when I became captain- I love you all! I'm thankful to my horse Monty who provided a pleasant escape from the realities of Academy life, and she thanks King Hall for all the apples delivered to her stall! My first roommate Jacqui, who I shared my name with, my final roommates Christina and Caroline and all those late nights ;) Summer school and room 5347, yeah! The ring dance soap opera group. Summer '07 with EODMU2 , "I don't run distance- that would be anything over 200m". Thanks to all my friends who have shared some great memories with me over the past 4 years, especially my best friend, Ian. I love you and look forward to spending the rest of my life with you…

Jordan Fogler

Jordan "Fog-Dad" Fogler, did your daily game in today or is it formal game night again? Whats the streak at? Word on the street is… Jordan is back in his cave again. What's he doing back there, I never know what he's doing back there. I miss Hannah. Hey, check out this youtube video. I need a 20 to get a D in the course so I'm not studying. Me Gusta Margaritas! "WE'RE NOT THAT DRUNK. WE'RE NOT THAT DRUNK!" Let's go surf kayaking. Jordan are you going out tonight? Just a few quiet beers. Tequilla night Dominican Republic - where did you guys get those tie-dye shirts? Nice morning stroll on the beach and such. I'll leave the light on for you bud. I puked in my shower this morning…again! Game today?…its easy to tell when you have a different sling after every game. AI, wardroom, 8 o clock, be there.

Matthew Galamison

Always willing to help out a friend, Matthew Staggs is the "perfect guy" that no girl has found. Although, this was not without much effort on his part. Too shy to approach a girl out in town, he always found it easier to talk to girls inside the Hall...or at carnivals with rising 1/C in San Diego. Matt is a man of conviction, yet he frequently had a hard time making up his mind about his home state (FL or CT) and his daily ethnicity. He must have had a deep understanding of his major because he never had to study much or stay up late. With all this extra time, he became a TV and movie aficionado and could quote RENT even during one of his frequent naps. He was well known for his proficiency and passion for drill. Through it all, Matt remained extremely loyal and whenever presented with an opportunity for a good time he responded, "THAT WOULD BE AWESOME!!!"

Katharine Haskell

"Four years together by the Bay where Severn joins the tide, then by the Service called away, we've scattered far and wide; but still when two or three shall meet, and old tales be retold, from low to highest in the Fleet will pledge the Blue and Gold."

Kevin Howard

Kevin is the best combination of tall, dark, and awkward that you will ever meet. He was incredibly popular with the ladies, whether it was elderly women at Bar Chicago, waitresses at Morton's Steakhouse, underclass girls and Jell-O shots at Spring Break, or with his wonderful mid-hound girlfriend. The ladies also loved his incredible athleticism, which he displayed proudly on the men's volleyball team, and his smooth moves on the dance floor. Kevin has great manners as well and will even ask permission from his sponsors for his friends to stay at their house a whole hour in advance. His sense of navigation is keen because to him, everything is on the right. Kevin was extremely loyal throughout these 4 years because I don't know anyone else who could root for a team as awful as the Miami Dolphins without being loyal.

Robert

Innerst

Traditional American values. Great Penn State connection. I have to relieve myself... where's the nearest sink. Where's your wristband son? Smartest dumb person we have ever met. The true escalator...blue cheese is not always necessary. Frag out. What do I owe you guys for that meal... don't worry we already got it out of your wallet. When you miss the toilet Andy is the next best alternate. It's Bobby not Robert. I hope Craig doesn't wake up on the bottom bunk. Love those after spring break fights.

Jeffrey

Kingsland

Jeffrey Kingsland was one of those quiet kids you did not want to mess with. Though a reticent plebe, he met many friends at the academy and it was a shock to all of us when he eventually married one! A man of action, Jeff let his deeds speak louder than his words. However, Milky's deeds usually involved a high degree of putrid flatulence... or long, lonely nights on the shower floor. (Don't worry, we won't tell Michelle...or Senior Chief Soladay). His attention to cleanliness did not necessarily equate to good health. Who can forget the meningitis outbreak with its mind altering affects on Kil's life or the yoga induced ringworm that spread like VD among the usual suspects? Yes, Jeff did the downward dog as a SEAL candidate. Speaking of SEALs...did your medical record get cleared yet? In or out of the Navy, just remember: Hawaiians don't go skiing.

Andrew

Krebs

Hey Andy what company are you in? Stop infringing on my personal time. W-Palooza 2007. Will I ever see you again...probably not. The love guru...many women are indebted to you. Sometimes I just want a hummer. Andy don't look now but your boat is floating away. Are you not entertained? Roden and Krebs...youngster drinking team. Waistline tattoos. Andy maybe this year you won't have a screener to do on your birthday. As training sergeant you always knew how to train those plebes...even in San Diego. Annapolis harbor rendezvous, I'll just borrow this yacht to take PDA to the next level.

Richard

Le Fils

A true "manly-man," Richard Lawrence wanted nothing to do with such sissy things as "culture," or "style" in his four years on the Severn. No, bench-press and football were as familiar to this man as his legendary chest hair. True manly foods like meat and potatoes were eaten at the expense of anything green. He could sleep through a fire alarm no matter the volume, and had an unmatched love of jets and dancing when drinking. Ricky loved getting away from the hall, and he used the first night on a trip to Ocean City to show an uncharacteristic wild side. However, he was adept at making sure everyone else had a great time too, and organized a house for some sorority madness Valentine's Day 2/c year. His charm and charisma caused his leadership and popularity to take hold and led him to the title of Company Commander for the spring semester of Firstie year. Oh and by the way, he's engaged!

William

Lennon

We never actually found out who your late night library date was. Love those Maryland dorms - face down, pants off. Crazy club lax, did you ever actually play games? Beer pong champion. You were the reasonable one until you made a homemade flame thrower. Look at his three brothers, he's got to be adopted. Crazy Legs Kilgore. Billy is at the library. 3 meals a day - King Hall Baby. Saving money and living life. Let's get spontaneous and go to St. Mary's. All that's left of 7155. Where's Bill?...... Library. Ring dance call: It's Bill, he's in India. Billy blending in around the world. The hardest worker we'll ever know. Mel just make it look like I had a haircut.

Leonard

Who is Martin Leonard? Doing his stork walk from the nasty 'nati, there's one thing this SWOdaddy had right, it's 2.0 to row. He started by taking down the night stalker, and finished a wise man. It was always suns out, guns out, even with a marshmellow finish, like a wet noodle. The king of tact, he always knew what to say in Miami. I mean, no one likes to floss. The helicopter proved true and when it didn't, there was always the nest. Never would a gazer go unnoticed, and never was there a dull moment with MLL. A member of Hubbard's finest, with the Jet a regular in Mafia's row, Stork's loyalty has always gone unmatched. So now its out to the San Doggy, where the slam pigs gotta be strong especially in the knees, cause its up, they see me...OLD MAN!!

Caroline Mayer

"Now colleges from sea to sea - May sing of colors true, - But who has better right then we - To hoist a symbol hue? - For sailors brave in battle fair - Since fighting days of old, - Have proved a sailor's right to wear - The Navy Blue and Gold."

Edward McGuinnis

Put it on his tab. My parents won't know I smoke until they read this. It's not dry enough, take it back and put a twist on it. Joel's babysitter. Passed out on his desk and his ship sailing off in the distance. Joining the Black N club never felt so good. Casapolis - fire extinguisher, 4 hour drive to get a hot dog....it was worth it. Mom can you dress me? Condiment road battle....Ed we owe you a lot of memories. Colorado skiing and chilling. By the way, how's Towey and Kat's sister. Rolling with Roden. Giving the daily input on Socrates and Plato wait a minute you're full of caca.

Craig Potts

Craig Spritzer Boyer Equalizer Escalater Potts Face...you sir are a gem. "Jordan I got you a picture of myself for your wedding". Impossible to walk down Stribbling with you. "Get these girls out of here." It must be hard being right all of the time, but life is good being at the end of the table. The piranha is always on the prowl for a smoke and a nice post move on a dime piece. There is nothing like a good funnel full of tequila in Cass. Shannons cousin will always be remembered. Some things are just better the second time around, but then again sometimes you just have to be the first. "We gotta go Craig pushed a girl." Sometimes ring dance dates just aren't that fun, so you just date tequila. What happened on the first two days of spring break? Careful where you put that breathalyzer tube. The potts face loves a good tree climb. How many times did you dislocate your shoulder? Craig Potts you are the man.

Edward Prendergast

Weak Sauce Eddy, Eddy Bartendergast, Eddy Mirror-Hands, Fred, Rhino...the list goes on. I have never seen someone try so hard not to graduate just two weeks before they graduate. I mean honestly who doesn't do their final senior project. "His work in this class could be considered a colossal failure." You were a project unlike any other for the red hammer. It must be nice being able to do whatever you want and then saying "what are you gonna do, I'm Ed Prendergast." The story of Ed's weekend was infinite lives at ACME, banned every Friday night...back every Saturday. ACME is still looking for a new door. The only equation eddy ever learned at the Naval Academy was that 350 pounds moving at a velocity of 10 m/s through acme equals a smashed door, 100 demerits, an LOI, and 60 days restriction. The dragon.

Shannon

Reese

Late night photo shoots, getting owned in wrestling by Jess, locked doors, escapades, weekday runs... Captain Morgan and camelbacks. Making Kat deal with your hysterics over plebe summer. OAR/311/Jimmy Buffet concerts, stealing all your roommates stuff. Pansies are defiantly hardy! Making rainbows in the woods. Playing with seals....dolphins? Shut up Shannon days, Sleeping in a bathtub? Gay week in Key West. Evil looks? I don't give looks (that's a lie). Sending Ed papers from London to write for you. Strip club in New York. Rugby. The surprisingly innocent one. Having Kat introduce you to Roca and Rose. Spending all your time with your favorite Mexican. OBX- the end of an era! Watching Kyleigh bring sexy back. Disappearing with Cait. Kat..."You're gay!!!!". Having roomie snuggle time... -Jess and Kat

Thank you so much to all my friends and family who helped me through theses four year. Jess and Kat, I couldn't ask for better best friends. I love you like sisters and you will forever be my roomies for life. Mom, Dad and Kel, I would not have been able to do it without you. Thank you for your continuing love and support. I love you all! "We must be willing to let go of the life we have planned, so as to have the life that is waiting for us." -E. M. Forster

Christina

Rejent

Chrstina or Tina or TTT loves basketball and her mom's home cooking. She's the only girl in her Naval Architecture... oh boys. Running = free therapy sessions and psychiatry class = analyzing everything. Nobody has a cooler shoe collection. How many bottles of febreze have you used this year? Skiing accidents that end in a puff of snow; visits during study and bathroom breaks; communal candy jar; long afternoon naps; phone calls to Cali; can I date your sister? Here's to Meredith from Grey's Anatomy in disguise.

Jessica

Rosa

"Escapades". Jessie knows best. Biggie smalls. Captain Morgan and camelbacks. Chocolate obsession. I own Shan in wrestling. Late night photo shoots. Backpacking in Italy. It's my Birthday! I hate my major-never could have survived without your help E-van! Hey Kat, I sound like you! Gospel queen. Close 2nd in the "numbers" race. Getting Laura through plebe summer. Drunken parties at my house. Gotta love momma Rosa! Bellybumps. The room hairstylist/manicurist/waxer. Bulbous behind-thanks Tim, was that a compliment? Slayer. Awkward turtle...inverted awkward turtle? Ceiling jumps in the middle of the night. Ponchos and goats in San Diego. Shotgun! Buying short skirts in NYC and sneaking out of the hotel only to be followed by a creep on the subway. So many great concerts- Oar, 311, Jimmy Buffett, 3 doors down, Jack Johnson, Keane, Arctic Monkeys, Carbon Leaf, Train. FISHDO. Tarzan swings off the boom. Preakness adventures...I can carry my friends only so far (*cough-Joel). Protra-party. Broomball-so much fun. Amanda, how about we wear the same shirt without planning it? Shout out to my lady laxers (CM-dirty dozen!). Drunken line dancing. It happens-just let it.

Ryan

Ross

Ryan - GWH, need anyone say more? After a few too many drinks one night: "Um... it's not going down" The elusive Sika... too many nights pouring over textbooks = overachiever... boo boo kitty... stubbed toes and broken fingers... Professor Garcia's faith in his math skills... the breaking of car windows on HP... 3 new guns... numerous weekends at PG...

Dmitry Shvets

"Now colleges from sea to sea - May sing of colors true, - But who has better right then we - To hoist a symbol hue? - For sailors brave in battle fair - Since fighting days of old, - Have proved a sailor's right to wear - The Navy Blue and Gold."

Neal Soladay

"So hoist our colors, hoist them high, and vow allegiance true, so long as sunset gilds the sky above the ocean blue, unlowered shall those colors be whatever fate they meet, so glorious in victory, triumphant in defeat."

Matthew Stacey

Don't mess with Texas! Matt started and ended his Academy days on crutches, but no one will deny that he turned himself into a real hard charger. Though a true genius, one wonders if he ever went to class Firstie Year. Matt had a Texas sized personality in both good and bad moods (trash cans and computer monitors beware). He was always ready for adventure and a good time on the weekends and could somehow make about anybody laugh. An unlocked rifle could not hide from him, except his own occasionally. Ooo, whatcha say? That you only meant well? He prepared himself well for the Corps, including countless hours of Call of Duty 4. As fun as the Academy was, there was no doubt it was very long and very hard (that's what she said). In summary; Yutt-yutt, Devil Dog, Oorah!, Semper Fi!

Tucker Stachitas

The only good Marine's a submarine; the only real Corps is the reactor core! Unfortunately, nuclear submarines don't use any gas, which Tucker is certainly full of. At least the room was never short of midnight "alarm clocks" to wake everyone up. However, he always seemed to be able to hold it in while talking to the ladies, a favorite pastime of his. So much so that he's willing to ask a girl for her number even if she spent the whole night talking to someone else. Despite being an academic stud (top 100), he is very diverse with interests in music and yard gnomes (Gary is still high on ëshrooms). During Tuckerís tenure as the 12th Company Training Officer and resident-Charles-I, the plebes never suffered from a lack of suffering. And boy did he know how to put that last minute sparkle on your sink right before an Alpha inspection. You will probably find him in the fleet sipping a Shirley Temple courtesy of his roommates.

Joel Stoorza

Joel Stoorza...the way I see it is there are no words that could describe the impact Joel has had on everyone over the past four years. I heard Ireland was a fun time and so did the President of the United States of America. Who knew that a human body swells from alcohol and then twitches after four hours with no drinks. THUNDER CATS ARE GOOOO. "I thought it would be fun and it was fun." Land Rovers are actually meant for land. Crabs aren't too tasty raw and neither are fish eyes. Joel you wont chug this. The poor monkey was scared. Give a crack head a cigarette and he will give you directions. It actually takes 6 hours to get to Philly. That external hard drive was a piece of work. Once a Marine always a SWO.

Alberto Varela

Albert "Shop till ya drop" Varela. You sir are one freakishly well dressed individual. You'll always have a sparkle in your eye and glitter on your face, and everywhere else. Who's couch were you sleeping on last night? You'll always have the back of Bobby's truck to remember those LAX tailgaters. V what's on your desktop? Que Paso? V act drunker when you enter this room. We run everywhere. V is hammered. Hey, hey, hey.........rah. Any good dreams lately? I hear Banana Republic is hiring. Bobby take a cab back I want to shop with Shannon rather than watch James Bond. Que Paso? Always there to lend a translation and bridge a cultural gap. We love you but not in the way that you love us.

Benjamin Voetberg

I hope I never have another intercessional again. What happens when you throw a paint can in a fire. It must be nice living in that world of yours Ben...Ben..BEN! What is so interesting about that wall. K-Dog in the alley. Severna High will never be the same. Remember like in eighth grade when all the high school girls were really hot...ya they still are. Your life is a soap opera, but better. Ben will never forget the proper uniform in Main-O. Ben seriously you made it a 50...who does that? Ben why didn't you just buy the beer. Intramural Champion, flag football head coach! Text Message: DENIED, some things are just meant to be left at spring break. Thank you for introducing us to the Class of 2009. Im not watching this lets come back in five minutes. Player for life.

Kristine Wong

From "Are you going to eat that...I have never met a food I didn't like" to Rickover being your second home, you introduced our company to the age of Bluetooth in the breezeway. On the hour bathroom breaks are a must, along with a night with the girls watching Grey's Anatomy and study breaks turning into spill sessions with chocolate. Con lockers are friends in a moment of desperation and the color pink will always make a girl smile. HELLO Digi camis and Marine Corps. Ontario and Vegas = trips of a lifetime with someone dear to the heart. Remember Jamaica and saving a roommate from stingrays; the infamous pink Nalgene, fuzzy blue blanket, de-stressing runs along the seawall and Greenbury Point, triathlons and the friends to keep for a lifetime.

Ryan Worrell

Sup Shades. Ryan shes doing the key fumble, go back. The Juke, down for the cause and a right of passage. The great thing about RJ is he always leaves the light on for you. "Excuse me sir, Can I get another Porter House?" Old Blue has never been the same after the great crash of 2007, I hope she makes it when we head out Floridee way again. There is no way I would ever approve this chit...5 minutes later: Okay you guys can go. The best way to run from federales is by roof top. Realist of the Real. Recruit...get in the bathroom. When I'm sober I'm going to be so sad?

Jordan Young

I knew it was going to be a good year when our company poet was retained. Motel Young was always a good place to find some rest, even if the party was still goin down. There is nothing like a good ice luge as long as its only liquor and not bodily fluids. All day at the lax tailgates and put it on my tab at ACME. Its not easy babysitting a 6 foot 5 270 pound devil pup, but some things just have to be done. How many cell phones did you have again? Battalion ADEO was just the right fit for this fine midshipmen. He could be found patrolling the bars to ensure responsible drinking was occurring. His late weekend nights in the winter months were spent driving the shipmate van. Chubby ole ground hog croakin bullfrog, thanks for the good times brotha.

Nicholas Adkins

Hailing from the great state of North Carolina, "Graanit Qury," Nick-Nack is the man's man. Showing up 2/c (or was it 3/c...) year w/ a '71 Chevy Monte Carlo SS (with the quad hemi cam loading superblowers...etc etc) he could make a bicycle get 10 more horses. Man in Black, Servers UP. JBelushi (JD chug); Columbia-"I can't move my arms..." -What a nice hotel room. ; keeper of souls. DIXIE- "keep your confederate money boys..." 301S snob. Bojangles. "You can keep me here til graduation, but these sideburns are stayin." Heights. "Daba dip do de de da"-translation- (Wanna go out and get dinner?) Nick has always been there for a great laugh and a good 0-60 drag race. Watch out TOP GUN, the Dirty Hick is comin.

Mark Beale

Mexico, construction, boats, trips with the Federalis, and X-Country... What else to write? "The Bealer", a true southern gentleman, who entered the Tecumseh Institute of Technology and Science with many goals (Rug,frogs,polo,etc), took Navy for everything it was worth and never looked back. ANOIFFF. "We Collaborated, sir." (special letter sweater) The Winger and Ms. Rempt, "Mark W. Beale, Builder" (you can't park there); ND games (actually only 1); SERVERS UP. Youngster year crew; What a wardrobe/ wardroom. JGill stiff-arm from hell. NLight; "What's our bearing, Bethmann?"; Metallica, "I'm from Raleigh." We know Mark, you're a NARC." What a friend, roommate, and SALTY SWOTIVATOR!

Thomas Bethmann

"Bethmannia" was the SUPPO from the start, tailgating with firsties as a plebe and assuming the role of Wardroom well before 1/c year began. "Give me my MONEY!" Dip anyone? Always makin an extra buck. Trips to Notre Dame (Mountaineers fans for life, and yes, I CARE ABOUT YOU) 93 in a 60, sorry Tim. Staubach's Box; Louisville 3x; Expensive guardrails. Finish the survey, go to the brief, no internship interviews. Broken finger in GOLF. Bancroft sleepovers and special sweaters (we did collaborate). AC trips with "Mr. Marshall." CDSG. The Gov'ner! "Today is the best day of my LIFE!" Big man syndrome (Biles, Lisante...) Monkey Balls; "Freeze... Attention on deck!-its MacGilvray;" Servers UP! In four years on the severn, TB smoked a few Cubans and got in some trouble, but was all smiles (with a complaint or two here and there). Watch out Athens, GA, THE SUPPO is coming to take over Milledge Ave.

William Eucker

Out East from Denver, Colorado, Will YOO-KERRRRRR is a self-proclaimed fundamentalist and lover of country music...adventures and voyages of this warrior scholar are numerous, but herein lie a few: the long trek through blizzard for "Shangri La"; through the thick and thicker for Shawn (blessings be upon him)... and plebe dating with other sponsor bro, exotic foods and potent teas; office parties; "BOB, another 55!"; "Na, Euk-dog doesn't rate a decimal place"; Boston or bust, and BACK– "comfort is a state of mind"; Here's a dude who's birthday in May!; the annual Christmas party; "Tea anyone?"; Colgate "trifecta"; the Sweden vegan; Dave Matthews in NYC; Virginia Beach with Kim and Chris...wait, where's Ben?; "Is this NAFAC week?"; thank you LT Furman!!; Chipotle connection; trident tribulations; the long marathon of scholarship lotteries...hey but one is going through the Gates!; A physics major likely to talk geopolitics with a debutante, to the "Admiral"...here, here!

Mika Feagans

Blink Blink the lights are on sir! and FEAGANS DOESNT LIVE HERE! Even from the beginning Mika always had a smile, ok maybe not during the scariest adjudication ever but pretty much every other time. From plebe summer, no one will ever forget Mika's cankles, Sharp snotting in her hair, and Mika accidentally stealing Will's socks. Plebe year saw Mika's floor stripping fiasco (why is one section whiter than all the others?). Youngster year wouldnt be complete w/o tours in the snow, mono, Eric's movie screen, and constant references to LEGOS. Skiing, camping, Hawaii and Ring Dance were highlights from 2/c year. Firstie year, however, was the best--the same corner 4-man with the peeping construction workers, Paul's constant "Where's Mika?", ship selection night, her engagement, the stripper machine, and more. Mika was always known for her kind personality. If anyone ever needed a Designated Walker or just a friend, Mika was there. You will make an amazing officer. Congrats Mika, I love you!

Benjamin Fehr

"Now colleges from sea to sea - May sing of colors true, - But who has better right then we - To hoist a symbol hue? - For sailors brave in battle fair - Since fighting days of old, - Have proved a sailor's right to wear - The Navy Blue and Gold."

Brian

Geisen

"One Team, One Fight;" Nocturnal; Senior hurricaning the room; Conveniently gone before room inspections; I don't have to, I'm brigade staff; 5 hour outers plebe year; All-nighters writing papers with nothing but a case of Mountain Dew; "Geisen Rules!"; "Help me put my uniform on...the anchors go where?"; "What time is it?" Class ended ten minutes ago; was SAVI Coordinator and Sea Trials/Herndon Commander; Hookah pit at 0200; Diehard rugby player who learned to walk again, twice; "Yes, 9 dates I don't have to pay for!"; Always ready to listen and cheer you up with a highly inappropriate remark; Going to Worden Field for spring break–it's good to get away; Communist kittens...; world's crudest SAVI; begging for mercy during Army Week; Apologize song nonstop for all of Plebe Summer; "It's everywhere! It's on the walls!" Sea Trials phone bill; 65 casualties and he hasn't even deployed yet! To my Family - I love you. Josh/Carlos - go to hell, I'll be waiting with a cold one for you.

Gift

D J Jazzy Gifter. It's good to see you're back after your 3 year break. And look, you still have all your PT Gear (including socks). That Napolean Complex was really something but it might help with your strive to be a NFL coach. Dan, what is the square root of 4 again? Don't bite your hand. You can figure it out. When you weren't helping tutor others you were doing late night studies of your own in the wardroom. Yes, I would like to borrow a movie from Giftbuster and then I would like a good excuse for you not being at all 3 formations and the parade today. Oh, VGEP, got it. Should have thought about being a Nascar driver, all while playing "Ain't No Mountain High Enough" on the radio. We know you were forced to be the training officer but it's no reason to whimper in the bathroom stall on service selection night. Where did Rye Guy go at PSU? Oh well, we have time for another game of drunk jenga. Too bad Todd couldn't make it to the hottub party. Always will be remembered as an instigator and hiding the goods from Courey. Remember, when you get back from DTA, SERVER'S UP!!

Troy

Goss

Though he hails from the sleepy hamlet of Shelby, NC, Troy's mind was always on bigger and better things. From football, to The Server, to his ringworm Joey, Troy impressed all with what he could accomplish on only 22 hours of sleep. Troy's devotion to honor, courage, commitment, and academic achievement ran so deep he had to force himself to utilize Shirrel, his longtime love and companion. Owing much of his great success to his surrogate mother, DH, our humble Troy never failed to thank him with the occasional, "DH, shut up!" From his cavern in the back of The Meat Locker, this nocturnal creature was at home amongst his favorite fan Pierre, his four year old sheets, and the mildew accumulating in his shower. His existence was rather Spartan; Troy maintained only one set of each uniform. Troy's hobbies include discussing the Bourgeoisie, collecting dip spit, debating the outcome of the Civil War, and "borrowing" our clothes. Here's to you Troy - Server's UP!

John

Grady

"So hoist our colors, hoist them high, and vow allegiance true, so long as sunset gilds the sky above the ocean blue, unlowered shall those colors be whatever fate they meet, so glorious in victory, triumphant in defeat."

Bryan

Harris

Bryan "BK" Harris came from the frozen wastelands of Plattsburgh, New York. He quickly became known for his prowess with technology and was the company computer guru. Bryan is also known for his great skill against all varieties of demons and monsters, specializing in those with immense posteriors, gracefully defeating them with his skilled footwork and agility. While many of his opponents came from the region formerly known as "Griffin's", his greatest opponent was one that he had been battling for years. This harpy had powerful jaws and razor sharp nails and chased him from Plattsburgh to Annapolis, and even as far as Texas. While ultimately victorious, Bryan was left with scars worthy of a great hero and even had to have his ears reattached. Finally free of this burden, Bryan decided to head for warmer weather and easy living, venturing to the islands of Hawaii. Undoubtedly, he will soon conquer the native evils and be remembered there for all time.

Walter

Haydock

Hey, if you see Walter Haydock give him a pat on the back, he did the Mini-BUD/S screener. A strong supporter of "All the way to Herndon," Walter committed to memory the pages of MIDREGS early in his military career. Now an adept of "All the way to Graduation", he has become an attested beacon of training within the Brigade. In fact, Walter has been on multiple occasions approached by numerous random midshipmen that want to be blinded by his aura and his shiny nugget. He'll go to the fiery gates and back to help you, unless your unfortunate situation is the result of your own ignorance, laziness, lack of forethought, poor planning or you not reading the email. Walter, it was a great honor being your roommate these past 3 years; I learned a lot from you (minus the procrastination problem). Once we get done with this Academy you will finally become what you were always meant to be: a Marine. Oh, and did I mention Walter did the Mini-BUD/S screener?

Austin

Hervey

Austin Hervey trekked to the Naval Academy from Arizona on foot. Across the southwestern deserts, over the plains of Middle America, and through the icy rivers of the east he marched. It was such a hard trek that he forgot how to say anything but "muh" and had to relearn English during plebe summer. He also forgot how to drive along the way and totaled his car firsty year, but such toys only lead to weakness anyway. All he needs to get by is a "Duke" and a blue magnet. The only way other SWOs would ever be as hard as Austin is if the Navy goes back to wooden ships. How did he get this hard? A pound of beef for every meal washed down with scotch which he chases with more scotch. After four long years of preparation, he will finally visit death upon the bad guys... or deliver food to starving people.

Gloria

Hill

The Road Not Taken
TWO roads diverged in a yellow wood,
And sorry I could not travel both
And be one traveler, long I stood
And looked down one as far as I could
To where it bent in the undergrowth;
Then took the other, as just as fair,
And having perhaps the better claim,
Because it was grassy and wanted wear;
Though as for that the passing there
Had worn them really about the same,
And both that morning equally lay
In leaves no step had trodden black.
Oh, I kept the first for another day!
Yet knowing how way leads on to way,
I doubted if I should ever come back.
I shall be telling this with a sigh
Somewhere ages and ages hence:
Two roads diverged in a wood, and I–
I took the one less traveled by,
And that has made all the difference.

-Robert Frost

Donald

Horner

Donald Horner the third; DH; Don Don; The Golden Boy: A man who felt comfortable around everyone from plebes to presidents. This handsome man was the epitome of all that is America: a protector of freedom, a cunning scholar, and an All-American athlete. DH never shied away from responsibility, opportunity, a cute youngster, or unruly Army Captains. He will forever be remembered by the perfect golden locks upon his head (and thanks to Paul Mitchell, somehow were always within regs). Regardless of the daunting tasks he was faced with, Don never missed a Yankees game, middle school dance night in the Meat Locker, American Idol, a 2-for-1 sale at the Mid Store, or an opportunity to see his favorite band, 'Burnt Sienna.' DH was a slice of perfection born into a family that should have had a TV sitcom based on their lives. He was very humble of his success, and insistently attributed his achievements to the love and support from his sister Peachy, Mrs. H, and the privacy of the Doc's office. In no time this great leader will assume the responsibility of serving Americans from his office in Washington; but until then he will surely live by his motto, "every day is a campaign day."

Carlos Iguina

a.k.a. Iguana or C-los; Always on the lookout for a good laugh; Quiet while sober; Sleeping on the desk for 6 hours "Carlos, go to bed!"; "Carlos, 10 minutes. Ugh"; Tan lines for Ring Dance; Kill time in 7209; I can't...I have drill practice; The smartest SWO with a yut cut impressed into subs; Herndon commander (but never interviewed); IM conversations from 4 ft away; DBF-"You don't know how to graffiti. Give me that spray paint!"; Breaking the $15,000 airfoil in the wind tunnel–oh snap! Shooting AKs in frozen Colorado; eat your vegetables, especially at 5 star hotels; starry eyed 2 hour phone conversations; So smart, he should be banned. Wait...; Fiercely loyal to family, friends, and...Puerto Rico? "Its April! It's so freakin' cold!"; Aimed high (flying airplanes, designing rockets), hit low (go subs!); Transformers addict: Never sure if he was coming back on Saturday nights; Croquet match firstie year–you probably don't remember; gangsta music; Vaya con Dios hermano.

Katie Johnson

Katie was a character from the get go. She could pass any written test she was given but her immune system seemed to fail at everything. A few plebe events were the best Army week hit ever, singing all calls, bloody noses, and late night parent calls. Youngster year was filled with restriction, tours in the rain with a boot, "Good afternoon, Ms. Shewmaker", and a losing fight with stripping machines. Camping then swimming in the Chesapeake, seeing too much of EVERYONE, skiing with a glove, I mean a sock, hot tubbing with an arm condom, Hawaii, Ring Dance, and Spain were a few highlights from second class year. Just remember, next time you're walking across the pizza parlor make sure your dress isn't tucked into your bathing suit. Oops! Firstie year had good times in DTA, a Bronson Road wedge, awkward situations with peeping construction workers, and Paul's entertaining self dialogue, Where's Katie? In class? Hehe. You are going to make an amazing officer! We love you!

Felicia Manoliu

13th Company is commanded by Fell-E-shuh Man-ill-loo of Constana, Romania. Hates to buy candy, loves to eat it. When in doubt, just feed her chocolate. Felicia's favorite time at the Academy was talking football with LT. When not discussing the superiority of the triple option, she could be found on the bridge of a YP shouting "Fire the laser!" Felicia is possibly most notable for being the inventor of the highly anticipated Aqua Monkey 2.0, which has an expected service life of two hours, three if not in use. From your little brother, bafta papusha. We'll start up that motorcycle gang when I come to marry the sister of my non-bald former roommate. Oh yeah, one more thing, "...Come on, baby."

Courey Marshall

From Mount Vernon, Texas, to Black Label in Atlantic City to the Yellow Rock Star in Las Vegas… it has been long live "2/C Marshall" since the opening of Pandora's Box in South Bend. Through generous offers of punch sports drink and irrigating the CPU–Courey never failed to "Make it Raaain!" The infamous wheelchair ride down the Vegas Strip and YP movement into King Hall was his way of "Letting it Riiide!" This generous man is well known for the 300% tips at Griffin's and the Sony camera and Fossil watch contributions to the taxi drivers in Cancun. "MR. M" always managed to sweet talk his way into free champagne, the Hard Rock Penthouse Suite, a Paris Hilton VIP party, and a Las Vegas graduation cake adorned with the Naval Academy crest. According to Courey, dining etiquette is a poker game, thrills and excitement lead to faints, and numbers were meant to be counted. As for The Trinity–from the Expressway to the Strip, let's see how far we've come, and always ACES AND FACES, BABY!"

Thomas May

Coming to Annapolis from Battle Creek, Michigan (which he will tell you about in great detail), Thomas Kraft May exemplifies the qualities expected in a midshipman and naval officer. As an avid athlete, Tommy could always be found cheering on the PRT-ers in his jogging suit at the finish line, wishing his toe (clam) would heal quicker so he could join his beloved shipmates. Also a sports enthusiast, Tom organized and officiated the first ever Pennsylvania Invitational Sumo Wrestling Championship, where everyone was a winner. An indefatigable student, Tom set USNA records for hours of AIM logged, number of Ac Boards passed, and repetitions of Thermo. Concerned with bettering the community, Tom's favorite cause was obesity in young adult women. Following the advice of friends, he arranged the inaugural Florida "300 miles for 300 pounds" Race, which will never be forgotten by the lives that it touched, or dropped on their head. Tom May - an athlete, scholar, citizen, diplomat, guy.

Jonathan Paiz

"So hoist our colors, hoist them high, and vow allegiance true, so long as sunset gilds the sky above the ocean blue, unlowered shall those colors be whatever fate they meet, so glorious in victory, triumphant in defeat."

Christopher

Powell

The oldest man in the company but the youngest at heart Christopher Lee Powell first came to be known as 085292. Then we all found out more than we really wanted to know: Singapore, his small bladder, Firecrotch and BDPs. But all of these made for some good times while we were marching to his beer cadences and shaving his back. "Rubbin's Racing" and then comes the broken neck! But that never stopped him from braking it down on the dance floor and yelling at youngsters to "Get the HELL out of here!" Though, through it all he did it with style and HONOR. Speaking of honor, this combat vet had several close encounters with the enemy: from snuggling on a cruise to the mystery inside the tent. What did happen in that tent, Chris? To his credit, he did share a lot with his friends, especially Tom in Michigan and Pete during Ring Dance. He even answered the age-old question of how long you can wait to get a date to dining out. Always remember Chris, "There ain't no mountain high enough!"

Dell

Robinson

"Now colleges from sea to sea - May sing of colors true, - But who has better right then we - To hoist a symbol hue? - For sailors brave in battle fair - Since fighting days of old, - Have proved a sailor's right to wear - The Navy Blue and Gold."

John

Russell

John Russell (Russel?) was born in Missouri following WWII. Sick of school, he enlisted in the Navy to see the world; his recruiter convinced him that this is done best from the inside of a sub. While enlisted, John visited exotic locales like Charleston and Upstate New York (for school). While in New York, John contracted a shiver so bad he can no longer hold his hands steady. John was given the choice of reporting to a submarine or going to NAPS and then the Academy. He chose more school. At the Academy, John became a master debater, always capable of recalling obscure "facts" that he remembers reading somewhere (a chain e-mail). He developed a set of manly ideals and believes that man should eat beef raw at every meal, devour whole pizzas in under 10 minutes, and hard liquor should wash it all down—his appendix couldn't keep up. John service selected Submarines and will attend nuke school following graduation. He might eventually be paid for something other than class attendance.

Erik Rye

"So hoist our colors, hoist them high, and vow allegiance true, so long as sunset gilds the sky above the ocean blue, unlowered shall those colors be whatever fate they meet, so glorious in victory, triumphant in defeat."

Peter Santos

Pete the Elite Santos: the man who always knew WHAT TIME IS IT? This Honorable Mexican/Asian/whatever dinner was that night was a Professional Surfer and avid Angler. He was quick with the Tequila Shots but not so much with the bowie knife. How is that leg Pete Pete? Cruises were always an interesting time for this particular fashion guru. He did everything: sneaking apple juice on board, robbing the cradle, and even nearly falling overboard. We will never forget you downing in a fishbowl of tequila and then throwin your first dip. That might be the only time you spit more than Erik. And if your past time was not inviting cops to your parties then it must had been volleyball. However, isn't it conduct unbecoming of a good volleyball player to wear kneepads? Peter what did you win for "The Bet?" Hopefully a travel mirror or a sleeping bag so you don't have to share again. Maybe some Rogain so you can go tour with Usher. One last question, Pete, what did happen upstairs in Michigan?

Costel Serbia

Hailing from Constantza, Romania, Costel arrived in America with little knowledge of what to expect at the US of NA. Though he quickly improved his English, especially while searching for a "termometer," he remained mistrustful of American medical technology, on one occasion removing his full arm cast using only his plebe-issue scissors. An avid and world-class martial artist, Costel had no problems adapting to the physical rigors of the Academy, though occasional buildups of sand deposits did hamper him at times. As a firstie, he demonstrated his full leadership potential, from having unfortunate plebes daisy-chain their canteens together and hold them at modified present arms to standing Midshipman Officer of the Watch in a professional – though at times inebriated – manner. Though he certainly did enjoy his share of "room 7207 Mickey Mouse bull," it is time for him to move on. We all wish him the best of luck back in the Motherland.

Joshua Sharp

The holiest motivator we know. Hails from mountain country. Gets lost without mountains to the west. The plebe choker. Guns, airplanes, and Bible Studies. Photoshoped paint chips in the car. The anTaganizer and Frenchie. A little too much fun at Sea World. Traveling to Uganda, the DR, and Belize. So many books, so little time. The marathon, Bethany Beach, the peace of Gettysburg and the havoc of Rickover. Rollercoastering and AWEsome rides. Flute in the Chapel dome at Halloween. Nearly capsizing the sailboat. The Muffin Man. Late nights building airplanes and giving them sweet paint jobs. Snoopy! And who can forget crash boom bang in the wind tunnel? Kill time? Stop with the pistol! Marshmallows to the face! Rolling in a Porsche for Ring Dance...pure awesome. Trying to drive your car...Stalled again! X-Files marathons at O dark 30. Its not ordinary milk its Yut Juice...RAH. Fighting Seabee...An Officer by the grace of God, an act of Congress, and the Commandant of the USMC.

Timothy Sheehy

One of a kind, they broke the mold after they formulated this HOOYAH out of rocks, bugs, nails, and bullets. Tim had one mission since day one... "Give me my chevrons, (edit) I'm out (edit)."; "the Goat!"; Panama trip-Que PROFUNDO, Posing in the doorway. Ultimate wingman (Cleveland); Youngster year crew; "I heart Rob." Journey Concert, Seger, 80's. "You're dangerous (bite gum)." Law and Order, X-Files. THE BEAST; RLTW-hooa! Supermodel, oops. Stuntman. Infamous cowbell picture. VA Beach Russians. "Who the hell drank my FANTA?" We're glad we are on his team, cause watch out bad guys, The Timmius Sheehius is on the prowl after 23 May 2008.

Thomas Thomas

Thomas Nathanial Thomas (TNT) proved himself during Plebe Summer, when he sang the Laws of the Navy on the Gilligan's Island theme song. Never mind that some of his classmates couldn't even speak Aenglish. A notorious self-appointed MD (you may find his biography on Wikipedia), his medical achievements culminated with his attempts to cure diabetes with gallons of cranberry juice. While not as dedicated as our classmate John Paiz, throughout the last couple of years he has been amassing an arsenal worthy of any zombie attack – Thomas will be ready when they start coming over the hill. Spending more on guns and cameras than the average Romanian village does on food, Thomas found the time to take up snowboarding. If you see someone going down the slope in a full cast – wave, it's Thomas. Soon after graduation look for him in the mountains of Montana hunting for food or in Romania looking for a wife. Tum Tum esti cel mai bun prieten si frate din lume. "Love you man, love you too dog."

Anthony Tordini

Lub Lub to those who knew him best, or met him on MOH in the Bazzar, hailed from the great coffee state of Washington. Pretty BURLY for his size; 270 max bench, 160lbs soaking wet. "Attention on Deck!" Sam Adams snob; Servers UP! The Steeda Stang. Honorary 15th Co member. "Don Tordini." UPenn Softball, what a hookup. THAT GUY, ALWAYS. "AJ, QUIT STEALING MY STUFF AND HIDING IT EVERYWHERE!" Head of the Ram. Systems E-the spinning trash can; 7234 water balloon spotter. TWT-

Kathryn Traster

TRASTA MCNASTA! Katie's amazing athleticism was apparent since I-day. She was known during plebe summer for her running skills and her uncanny ability have punch sports drink poured on her. Is that you John Wayne? Plebe year Katie spent a majority of her time kicking butt in soccer, however she did find time to help pull off the most amazing Army week trashing in history. Youngster year brought ball run planning, seeing a little too much of Haltom during carrier landings, and, oh wait, did you ever get those LEGOS? 2/c year was marked by even more ball run stuff, lullabies for Mika, the Niger pop-up, holding KJ's hand when she got tattooed, and finishing the soccer season with the best record in school history. 1/c year was by far Katie's favorite–that was mostly attributed to IFS. Nala, shower time after surgery, and blaring music were fun firstie memories. Katie is a cool, confident leader who is respected by her classmates. She will make a superb Marine Aviator. We love you!

Sean Valdez

"Now colleges from sea to sea - May sing of colors true, - But who has better right then we - To hoist a symbol hue? - For sailors brave in battle fair - Since fighting days of old, - Have proved a sailor's right to wear - The Navy Blue and Gold."

Emily Vanden Heuvel

"So hoist our colors, hoist them high, and vow allegiance true, so long as sunset gilds the sky above the ocean blue, unlowered shall those colors be whatever fate they meet, so glorious in victory, triumphant in defeat."

Benjamin Whatley

Ben Whatley is a southern boy heralding from the peanut capital (right..) of the world, Dothan Alabama. Dressed in his favorite suit, Ben has always impressed people with his big projects. He has even been known to snorkel with wild water snakes. But that is not the only wild animal he has encountered. There are even rumors of him fighting tigers in NC. Often engaged in tactical missions, even on service selection night, Ben never shied from his UDT shorts. He stayed in excellent physical shape through his sweating with the oldies work out vids and the patented Ben Whatley Special. No warrior can avoid friendly fire, however, and Courey's backpack may be a bit worse for the wear. That's OK, though, because this budding EOD officer can handle anything that people throw at him – including the safety fire fighters. 4000 people will attest that Ben Whatley will always wear his seat belt! Always professional, this AHHPS! officer will ride into the sunset as the premier "Naked Warrior!"

Craig Wright

While many come to Annapolis to be Maverick, this Colorado country boy came to be Tom Cruise. In his years at USNA, Midn Wright proved to be a daring pilot willing to engage any target- even those other mids wouldn't touch. In fact, he seemed to get engaged each weekend (how sad his sister got engaged too). On the stick, outfitted in a Filipino wedding shirt, Craig could find no mountain high enough and was infamous for downing multiple shots at Griffin's, questionable multitudes of women, and two warthogs over the coast of Cancun. Known by his call sign "Craigamus," he did have a few close calls: losing the seats to the Miata he was piloting, nearly causing an international incident, and even once needing the aid of an ambulance. Soaring to his mantra "silence is consent," Craig never backed down from a fight - Ring Dance Royal Rumble, questionable dudes, and his battle with the drill crack pipe. That is why we all must clap for this aspiring aviator!

Michael Buckley

Michael Buckley…if that is your real name. The Penthouse never always knew what this Athenian was up to, but we always knew he'd look out for # 1. A devoted member of the council by day and a swift, silent, and deadly double O agent by night. Whatever the case, the general could always bring order between the light and dark side. After we broke through the language barrier, it was pretty smooth sailing. I mean, if you don't count his immense lack of game, numerous drunken escapades (both in the United States and abroad) his painful lack of style, exemplified by his continual wearing of the same pitiful clothing for all four years and his constant shadiness, highlighted by his secret foray and romance on the dark side, unbeknownst to even his closest friends. Nevertheless, Buck is a great leader, loyal friend, and physics master, and it's hard to believe that Littlefoot is on his way to the Corps. Regardless, we always knew that it was Rocky Top, you'll always be, home sweet home to me.

Lucas Burke

Lucas Burke, Bakersfield, CA…bucas lurk, high mileage in costa rica. Wheat thins and jerk. Big or little spoon. Brown bear, Sammy davis, TBS concert, Phoenician warrior, dc funnels, nature hikes in Limano, back stomping in Notre dame. Al: love 'n hate. We know you can hear us over there! XBOX, PS2, PS3, iPhone, 3 new watches, 2 new iPods, 2 big screen TVs, where is this money coming from! Chocolate Rain, Swordfish Tattoo, Banana Phone, Hey, Will u be around this Saturday? You don't have to answer that, we already know the answer. Old Grandad, Rothman loved those jeans, thanks for all the movies over the years, sometimes before they were even in theatres…better if we don't ask. Fastest man on the yard or at the least the most hardcore, 4x8 school record, but nothing compares to the beer mile crown. An Officer and a gentleman, or at least a skater and a player. Remember moving out plebe year? Or your plebe summer limerick? Rat pack for life. It's been a journey, you little Guamanian.

Patrick Burroughs

A word from Pat: "Thank you to everyone who supported me and helped me to get through this place, I'll do my best to earn it." PJ Sparkles, Turtles, spiders and crabs all call your mouth a temporary home, you know every animal and love zoos, had no computer or calculator for three years of USNA, still made the grades, lost everything, found most of it and if I were your cell phone I would still be on your desk under three different uniforms, number one plebe militarily, intramural champion, jack of all trades, cleanest kid I've ever met, the purple hornet, bending time and space, college crashing and the magic of junior year and facebook, omega's and spring breaks in Mexico, the bounce-pass, dinners at Bruce's, summers at Zeiler's and in Florida, Protra-party and the riots, learning to surf at PB; joining the SPECWAR community after declining Med Corps, definitely the "ONE" Thanks man, and best of luck.

Audrey Callanan

What can be said about Audrey? Well, she's Jewish (half, anyways), enjoys going on yoga retreats and coming back with great souvenirs, traveling the world, and traveling around Brancroft Hall. On any average weekend you can find her out in DTA with her closests friends finding drama in any local bar. During the week you could find Audrey with her nose in the books, only to break for food and a workout. As a math major she enjoyed some GREAT classes. She spread her "joy" by throwing fits and consoling herself in her closet that was always overflowing with clothes. Audrey has the most shoes and clothes of any female in the class of 2008. Most of you might be surprised to know that Audrey is from the OC! She once dreamed of auditioning for a part on the show, but decided against it because she knew she wouldn't get it as she is too willing to break a nail. You should hear her YUTTTT!!!

Keenan Chirhart

Keenan Chirhart, or Fleenan Beerhart, you be the judge... You were always so popular, kind of you to have your friends, the OOW, MOOW, SDO, BOOW, and CDO for that late night visit 2/C year. Hey, have you seen my spare change? Well its probably chillin' with that poker chip, your notecards, Burke's Cheerios and those marbles. Always good for a story, always having the BEST weekend of your life, always loving the ladies – no matter what size... Zippo tricking, ball juggling (no time), wall flipping, harmonica playing, power lifting, web-sensing man among men. How could we ever forget our roommate for four years in Nap-town, K-man 5000.

Jason Condi

"Now colleges from sea to sea - May sing of colors true, - But who has better right then we - To hoist a symbol hue? - For sailors brave in battle fair - Since fighting days of old, - Have proved a sailor's right to wear - The Navy Blue and Gold."

Christopher Dailey

Chris had a 21st birthday he will never forget . . . training day 1. So the fun memories began. Plebe year, the Spud, all calls, Kjono and Nelson, "that would be a great systems project!" Being thrown off the fantail, seasick sailor, summer training was so much fun. The Luxury Yacht was cold in the winter and hot in the summer. Youngster backshaft, nerf wars, jumping in the gymnastics pit, Aikido master, Protramid west was a blast, YP . . . or should I say YPG? Saleh, Army-Navy and cheese steaks in Philly, grappling hooks around the yard, the best year. Subs, aviation, swo, Devil Dog, what will it be, Chris? Firstie year, is this the best it gets? No name room, day-walker. "Don't put words in my mouth, as a matter of fact, don't put anything in my mouth." "Nano, Nano, help you?"

Graham Drury

Oh Captain my captain, you are our savior. Hailing from the promised land of Charleston, SC, you wouldn't know it from his frequenting of NY or his affinity for Yankees. Always a difficult man to find, the destroyer of the stroke coach could either be found taking secret naps (phone on silent...hiding from coach, demanda, or his screw-up teammates), or managing his beautiful hair and physique. Reeves Calhoun was too cool to sit in the bow, but he was always willing to join the port party. The wisest of the wise men and the dominance reestablishment leader himself, Grambo jammed to Big Willie while cruising stealthily in the batmobile. With a strut recognizable from any distance, he was always dependable and a loyal friend. RC brought XXX to the Penthouse and was the only true varsity athlete in the room, in season all eight semesters. A self proclaimed southern gentleman, he is a Yankee at heart. Graham will go down as one of Hubbard's finest.

Brian Dunn

Brian Dunn, man of iron. REAL IRON. Boston was a blast huh? Those 26.2 miles were great I bet. Brian Dunn can kill 2 stones with 1 bird. Beastman beastman what do you know, about taking off your clothes? Who does more work than the CC? Hey Brian can I...SHUT UP! Brian is the greatest Pirate Hunter in the world. That's what she said! Loves the bike, loves the Meg, 2 percent club brotha! Loves Happy Hour at Ram's Head. Do you know how to pick locks, 'cause we do. Remember the night before Herndon? Remember the night before graduation? Remember over plebe summer when Mankins ate it comin' out into the P-way? Drunk waving in the P-way, flasks, t-shirts, all money in the bank baby. Entrepreneurial Prodigy this guy. Loved Leatherneck so much, he went subs. From Schraeder to Commissioning, roommates for life, K-Man, Burkas, and BDunn.

Ryan England

Plebe summer, Plebe year, and the last three years: all felt like the same amount of time. The academy is what you make of it, and the memories are what you take away from it. I-Day–the day I found out I knew absolutely nothing. Swimming in the frozen Severn!? 14 days to Herndon, the big banner and climbing all over Bancroft. Quib's Dance Parties!? Spring breaks: DBSB2K5, Skiing and Montreal, Cabo, Carnival Cruise to Bahamas. Summers: the POS Ogden, Protramid aka protraparty, Pax River–made me love flying. Sailing: Bermuda (3 times!), Key West: on Allegiance, American Promise, Dreadnought. The team–great friends and memories (power hour?). Virgin Fest (front row). Ring Dance. Signing taps: P-B-, X, scribble. Sean's mouse? Weekends at college park. Aero and DBF–long hours but good times. Thanks goes out to: Parents esp. mom (with twins!)–for support and motivation to do well. Love you. Roommates and 14th company–for fun times and getting through crappy times together. Fly Navy. LUB!

Anthony Florez

Well, I stand up next to a mountain
And I chop it down with the edge of my hand
Well, I pick up all the pieces and make an island, might even raise a little sand
'cause I'm a voodoo child
Lord knows I'm a voodoo child baby
I want to say one more last thing
I didn't mean to take up all your sweet time
I'll give it right back to ya one of these days If I don't meet you no more in this world then uh I'll meet ya on the next one
And don't be late
Don't be late

Brendan Geraghty

Hailing from the mighty state of California, Brendan Geraghty brought to Annapolis unparalleled qualities. Undoubtedly the smartest roommate for the last three years, his academic prowess and ability to tolerate his rowdy and unkempt roommates were overshadowed only by his battlefield genius in Risk. And though his cheesball-eating skills may be brought into question, he proved his expertise in cheesball irregular warfare. Always the grammar expert, his insatiable appetite for knowledge led him to the best final semester anyone could ever have. You can call him Brendan, BJ, Beejer, or FFG (as his plebes lovingly dubbed him over plebe summer) but in our hearts he will always be known as the ICOR of 7262.

Stacy Gulley

Ms Gulley certainly has the pedigree of a distinguished Annapolis graduate. The daughter of the son of the first Gulley graduate, Stacy was destined at birth (or before) to come to Annapolis. She hit the ground running, and by the end of plebe summer she found herself standing above all of her classmates, proclaiming herself the greatest push-up champion the world had ever seen. Because of this, her boyfriend spent three years trying to compensate for his inadequate upper-body strength. A closeted die-hard SWO throughout her time at the Academy, Ms Gulley will thrive in her natural environment upon the high seas, and the crew of the Chancellorsville will never be the same. While she would never admit it, we will all be hearing the words "Admiral Gulley, arriving," before we know it.

Robert Gwinn

Son of Robert Allen Gwinn and Nancy Faith Gwinn, Robert Colton Gwinn hails from the Great State of New Hampshire. Graduating from Sanborn Regional High School he went to the University of New Hampshire for two years then transferred to the United States Naval Academy. It only took this gentleman six years to complete his Undergraduate Degree in Applied Mathematics with an Operations Analysis Subspecialty, and only six months upon graduation to complete his Masters in Finance at Johns Hopkins. He has been assigned as a Naval Aviator and will be most remembered for: being part of the Varsity Lightweight Crew Team, National Eagle Scout Association, National Outdoor Leader School (NOLS) - Alaska Trip, all his summer cruises, and for being nothing short of amazing.

Sean Hurley

Sean P. Hurley. When you say that name around USNA, it is usually followed by a laugh, and/or a story about his exploits the night before. While he was known initially for having a large head, his boastful rubbing of his chest hair, and his role as the most vocal minority at USNA, the members who are Democrats, he grew into so much more. Sean developed into what he would call, a true American and a real man. His love for Budweiser, Copenhagen, Luzianne Iced Tea, the state of North Carolina, his beloved Tar Heels, and the fallen generals of the Confederacy notwithstanding, it takes many a man to challenge the manhood of one of Navy's all time leading rushers, consume Mickey Mouse and pass out in numerous bars in numerous cities. When you get past all of this, you find a true friend, who is always up for a chat, some laughs, good times and of course, ACC basketball. He may be "The Biggest Disappointment in the Class of 2008", but the future is bright for him. Handle that Sean- GBL

Alex James

We always knew that he would be 'that guy' wherever we would go. He enjoyed being unconscious (whether from kyle miller in rm 1405 or a tough little lady at Preakness in '06). Girlfriend's roommate. "This car sucks." Screen name PMO.

Gavin Lippman

The development of Gavin Boyd Lippman during his four years at USNA has been entertaining to watch. As a plebe, he was a political butterfly who roamed Bancroft at 100 miles per hour in no particular direction. Over the years, however, he developed. By the end of his firstie year, he was a political butterfly who roamed Bancroft at Mach 2, still in no particular direction. He will always be associated with his affinity for British Naval Officers, cider, and anything of Asian descent. Lipp is a true friend whose loyalty and care go unmatched. He will surely go on to great successes in the United States Marine Corps. Look him up in 20 years; you'll find him running the city of Baltimore as its beloved mayor- MPB Family- I can't explain how much you mean to me, I couldn't have made it without your love and support. Friends- From the Shrine, SP, USNA, and my two favorite golfers: I love you guys, I truly am blessed. I look forward to what the future holds for us. Handle Your Business-GBL

Michael Lowhorn

A word from Mikey Lo- "The past four years have been an adventure with friends who would travel to hell and back just for a laugh. I am leaving having made some of the best friends one could wish for… I got by with A LOT of help from my friends." Mikey Lowhorn, from enormous BCG's to Swim Team Captain, enjoyed many struggles in school but always managed to pull through, could sleep through any class, and stay positive through any practice, four training trips with NMSD, John Lyles, DBSB2K5 and making it rain, spring breaks in Chicago with Matty Wood, and enjoying the fruits of USNA, shadiest of the shade and ultimate skater, bar golf in DTA, weekends at JHU, cigars with the old man, second most distinguishable laugh and bar ski with the Dragon, training trips in PR and good times with the locals and SPECWAR screeners, long walks to morning practice and freezing Lejeune, never gave up and always stayed positive, best of luck at BUD/S

Jacquelyn Ludeman

"So hoist our colors, hoist them high, and vow allegiance true, so long as sunset gilds the sky above the ocean blue, unlowered shall those colors be whatever fate they meet, so glorious in victory, triumphant in defeat."

Stephen Mankins

"Four years together by the Bay where Severn joins the tide, then by the Service called away, we've scattered far and wide; but still when two or three shall meet, and old tales be retold, from low to highest in the Fleet will pledge the Blue and Gold."

Bruce Manuel

It's more like "laugh with the saints and cry with the sinners"
For only the meek on the Earth are the winners.
Know that it's never too late to make a fresh start.
And never let others define who you are.

Courtney

Munoz

Courtney has always been the consummate trend setter... after graduation she will head off into the quaint town of Norfolk... a far away land she has never set eyes on... she will delight the people there with not only her fashion sense but with her love of 4am phone calls, Johnny Depp, and South Park... and if a job ever requires removing scary moldy ceiling tiles, pulling a rack down, or spelling awkward, they will find a helping if not slightly sarcastic hand... wherever she goes she will be successful, assuming no computer skills are required and she remembers to read what she writes in her planner... fair wind and following seas ~ your favorite roommate ever

RUCHTEWHATSTHEMENUFORMORNINGMEAL?! Manbox partner, nerf accomplice, knee-injury brother, grapplehooker, plebe smasher, clock looker, rock climber, hot car driver, pimp caner, honor trainer; do you not have honor?! And now you're going to flight school, but not to fly. It's like all chain and no ball. That's what she said! We're gonna get so wasteeeeed wooooo! Thinking about P3s or, what is it that kids fly these days, a...pheasant! Lerooooooy Jenkiiiiiins and SPARTA! Your favs! Fact: your iPod has 160 gigs. ## Lacey Savoie

Whats up SCORP!!! Lacey Savoie came into my life Day 1 of Plebe Summer, when my first memory is seeing her tumble into the pavement on the first run. Plebe year saw Lacey become a constant fixture in our room, whether it be because of our gorgeous looks or for poking some fun. Lacey was christened with her name that serves her well: Scorpion-Woman. Over the years, her name evolved as well as Lacey. We often question whether or not she would rather be a human or a robot because of her sometimes boisterous pride in her major. Our 4 years have found Scorp becoming the apple in many gentlemen's eyes, and she often had to live up to her namesake and sting the young gentleman when he least expected it. It is hard to believe that the girl who shrieked at a cockroach during Plebe Summer, eventually became a commander of a YP and ultimately 3rd Battalion. The USS FITZGERALD is getting one hell of an officer, and I can safely say that Japan will never be the same. Handle Your Business-GBL

Andrew Schumacher

Gud mo-ning. The mysterious prior who Schraeder liked for 24 hours. The plebe who Anderson liked until he found out he played games (Rothman!!!). The nuke with no soul. The game-playing non-speaker. The Stargater. The T-Rex partner. Schu is all these things and more, but you'll never get him to talk about it. Shut up with the broccoli! Despite a dogged dedication to go "running off the yard" for hours on end whenever there was no weekday liberty (Spa Road?), he still managed mediocre run times on the PRT. From vomit-filled trips on "The T" during YPs to vomit-filled nights at Pusser's, his wild times were confined by the death grip of Psycho-T. Yet who can forget the secret compartment behind his closet 2/C year? Many don't realize it, but this man can throw down (Emerald Bowl?) As he enters his 7th year of naval education, he is well on his way to an unprecedented mark of retiring in 20 years without ever leaving a Navy school for any time in the fleet. Charleston awaits...again.

Andrew Stafford

Andrew Stafford: A man who is in perpetual motion, regardless of who or what is in front of him. Never a dull football game, party, or moment in his presence. A true friend, always up for an adventure. His tailgating skills, both in the driving and football sense, were unrivaled. A proud Oklahoman who sticks to his guns in the face of uncertainty. His ability to endure the challenging Chemistry major paralleled his ability to endure his roommates (and snoring). Always the ladies' man, his charisma led him to countless escapades on Main Street, most of which resulted with one hell of a story. And as the fairytale story of Andrew Stafford resonates through the halls of Bancroft, he will be forever enshrined as a fieldball legend.

Brandon Tseng

Per recommendation of the Penthouse's franchise player, something he would quickly and eagerly forget, Bram "I like to watch" Arnold was a 2nd round draft pick by the Penthouse GMs and the US Navy SEALs. A resume that included being a dominant water polo player, slayer extraordinaire, a great dancer, and just overall nice guy earned him a nice door spot in the Penthouse. His time at the Academy included getting yelled at in the pool by Scho, partaking in optional swim peps, building a racecar, chasing shiny objects, missing taps, watching midlove, solving computer programs, cheateneering, slaying, a small but addictive WOW stint, beating SEALs in shooting contests, training plebes, climbing ropes, casual Mondays, and most recently, his favorite, training for BUD/S, aka "icing his shins after long walks". A lifelong member and brother of the Penthouse family, great and outstanding things are expected and will come from this tall awkward aquatic beast of a man. Strength & Honor.

Christopher Whitley

Christopher Whitley will always be remembered as a fearless person who lived life to the fullest. This intrepidness applies to his adventures oversees, scholastic procrastination, leadership of 14th company softball, combat with all germs in his and his roommates' living spaces, contribution to the GDP (Ab Lounger), and application of salt, lime, and butter to any food imaginable. Chris always thought of others first and was the most considerate of friends.

George Yacus

"Love must be sincere. Hate what is evil; cling to what is good. Be devoted to one another in brotherly love. Honor one another above yourselves. Never be lacking in zeal, but keep your spiritual fervor, serving the Lord. Be joyful in hope, patient in affliction, faithful in prayer. Share with God's people who are in need. Practice hospitality."

Allen

Dave "Staypuff" Allen entered I-Day as a portly plebe, but ask him now to try on his Whiteworks Echoes and he would be swimming in his clothes! Many feel that David has weird tendencies, such as listening and singing to sappy music and watching romantic movies... but so far, this tactic has worked well with women, though we don't quite know how... his wooing skills forced him to travel to see a special someone, known as KJ, which proved to be a short trip...David is also known to frequent his sponsor's house...he was never short on funds, which led him to buy big cameras (for his big hunts) and big Ranch trucks...David "whiskey drunk" Allen is a superb athlete as he bounced from rugby, football, and finally track & field...one of his more famous quotes was: "If you touch me, I'll kill you and your wife." And one more thing, David, are you getting that senior citizen discount yet?...P.S. I love you...

Emily

Ansorg

Always been a weird young person: Coughing for hours, H-16 mate enters asks 4/C Ansorge's roommate: is she ok?-she sounds like she's dying; roommate: she's fine don't worry about it. Club 7-4. Pillow talk...interrupted, silence, Are you Serious? I'm going to BRAVO inspect you now.. (MOOW looks around at drying laundry askew everywhere)..But we're in the room..never mind. I had a real 2/C year. Ma'am today in sports..(pause to stare at the pan while passing)..I read. We need to keep The OC here in our room.."It'll be great!" You drunken English female prisoner. Rotting band-aid. Oh don't worry about going to formation..so restriction has been a really good experience. Pick up that Strawberry Chex Mix quick! Wow, REAL appropriate. Can I borrow Cathy?-I don't even know why they call these mountain climbers! Ms. Ansorge, which part of this rifle is locked? Um...none of it sir? Would you guys mind stopping at this next gas station? We need some water...we're kinda thirsty...

Nadia Brouillette

Nadia "buzzz" Brouilette is best known for giving the company "David of 15" plebe year... while she came of age in an igloo in her younger years, Nadia was the musher of the dog team at the Academy...she couldn't get enough of snowboarding and blowing out her knees, which rarely stopped her from her sick board tricks...Nadia pursued boxing, but preferred to play quarterback...had a fetish with the color orange, poor computer...despite having no middle name, thanks to her sister, Jen, they were two peas in a pod, while Nadia desperately defended Jen from her pursuing dogs...her upbeat and caring attitude made her irresistible to be around, but if you crossed her, tell "AJ to lock the door"...she was tough enough to hang with the boys and survived pickles to the face... but was also known to be a cheap date, one and done!... and her Egyptian roots made for interesting conversation...which leads to the final point...Nadia? the van?...seriously, come on...it has to go...

Jamie Call

Jamie- the Tundra wookie....I love Flamingos, this is the greatest part of my spring break- Oh wait I got engaged!@!.... Silly Alaskans get swindled at carnivals...I love penguins and all my penguin friends in Alaska...its so cold...Bar golf-amazing idea and the McGarvy's landing is a great place to hang out, pass out or whatever, and I'm pretty sure that the O'Callahan hotel elevator has never and will never be the same....F-ing mouse it out smarted me all damn semester long!! I love Swimming, really I do soo soo much especially my own special happy fun time with Rob...Joss sushi- they know me...Grad school is so cool, really honest its awesome- I love reading 3 books a week...btw, I love companies, so I might as well join most of them- 23, 20, 18, 19, 15.....its cool I'm just trying them out....July 20th, March 10th, January 3rd.

Wayne Cheney

Wayne "Ball and" Cheney arrived at USNA already married, though it was only a question of which girl he would eventually settle down with. We really hoped it was that first one, what was her name? He made an immediate impact plebe summer with his well-earned respect for his superiors, never dropping a single "sir." Wayne was known for his sense of fashion, always looking sharp in a suit or his whites (accented by USNA shorts). He also had a talent for dodging bullets, whether it was moving out during Plebe Summer or convincing the Dean that his better judgment wasn't better. By the time he was on girlfriend number 3 (or 4, or 5, its hard to keep track), we were sure that met the perfect girl. Eventually, he found a successful pickup line: "Hey, does this look broken to you?" Wayne will be soon found at a basketball court in Pensacola

David Devan

"So hoist our colors, hoist them high, and vow allegiance true, so long as sunset gilds the sky above the ocean blue, unlowered shall those colors be whatever fate they meet, so glorious in victory, triumphant in defeat."

Allan Elsberry

Attention on deck, Major Johnson! Known for his fondness of Asian culture, Rite-Aid medical supplies, unorthodox fighting methods (biting a bit), and swing dancing, Allan never fails to find the "worst party ever." Allan is the dumbest smart guy we know, earning his department's award for his toy helicopter and the room Darwin award for breaking his arm twice. As a plebe, Allan introduced himself to the battalion by setting off the fire alarm during finals and running from his room in tighty-whities, carrying his computer. A frequent blood donor, Allan always gave everything he could. While on exchange at USAFA, Allan "crossed into the blue" and grew close to sponsor sisters at both schools. Congratulations on the jump wings and your unit award; you worked hard for both. Good luck finding a wife at GA Tech; the odds are good.

Katie Erwin

Katie "Busch League" Erwin returned youngster year looking surprisingly normal from her previous atrocious plebe summer hair and BCGs. What Katie taught all of us in 15: Nebraska is known for its football and corn, not for its hammocks. Let's be honest, hammocks can get a little trickaay, seriously Katie, do you need more Band-Aids for those knees? How 'bout that pineapple soaked in rum? Thanks Getty. She spent much of her weekends working to save her friend's lives and their future commissions, for which we are FOREVER grateful. Who can forget those moonlit nights "dippin' the skinny" off of Naptown's bridges? But what Katie doesn't let any of us forget the glory days of Husker football...in the 1970s. Yup, that's right, in the '70s. How 'bout those sketchy road trips through Texas in a minivan with 8 stellar mids, can we say border towns? Check. Rock out in PCola, we're sure you'll do great...We all know you love the tunes, but that Remix has a special place in your heart. GO HUSKERS!

Getty

Nathan Getty who has showered us with his great attitude and joviality and endearing personality, is always doing BIG things... spent his time with his closest friend, Adrian... GEHHEEEETTTYYY all-calls...with his carpenter jeans he was always ready for the high seas...the really high seas. 7367 for 3 years...room tennis, fish breeding, you guys are really in our company??, window yuts, and the infamous 7367 bathroom exploits. Halloween is fun for everyone–for you a time for firsts, for us a show we will never forget. Uniform slippers, expensive activities ("I thought it was for all of us"), drunk phone calls, eat big get big, and "you sure you don't want to go subs??," were all a part of the Getty we'll never forget. Thanks for the condo, buddy... EMAWAS B

James
Goodwin

James "anteater" Goodwin, will be remembered for his exceptional story-telling skills as "master orator"... takes the cake for Best-Looking Widows Peak... horrible driver and even worse taste in music, which can only be described as rap of the future . . . despite having the coordination of a 5-year old, Jimmy's Irish roots spurred him to pursue a boxing career while at the Academy, though he was best known for his punches thrown in the back of a mini-van in Texas...his enlarged sombrero was a hit in Mexico which made up for his payment of $60 to avoid jail a previous time in the country . . . his good looks and brains are not the only thing going for the feisty Missouri man, James Fred used his charm to woo Peruvians in Chicago, but had the fortitude to entice Tim's 16 and 366 day year old sister . . .his streak continued as he was kicked out of a bar in Key West, only to realize that the bar was a bit too "brokeback" for his taste...James "Shakin' it out" Goodwin, the man, the myth, the legend.

Austin
Hancock

Austin "Luce Hall" Hancock earned his exceptional reputation while putting in some extra duty in the classroom. Not a fan of Blue over Khaki, Austin ditched them for SDBs for the majority of his youngster year. Though his academic record never faltered, he can't be blamed for other shortcomings because he came to USNA against his will (Mommy was proud). Austin's encounters with the "Big World" after leaving the farm led him to encounters with characters such as Jonathan Taylor Thomas, Thing 1, and foreign nationals (I told you three times!). Not above the occasional smoke break, Austin enjoyed socializing with sponsors, young and old. After spending a semester on exchange at USAFA, Austin rejoined the Brigade to commence his "Reign of Terror." Thanks for Major PT, Austin. It's hard to imagine firstie year without you and your sibling. On a serious note, congratulations on going down with subs. We hope you're more successful with your next XO.

Timothy
Herman

Tim “Chesty” Herman, aka, “Shoulda/coulda/woulda” Herman, aka “Hugh Hayes”, is known for his charm and delightful attitude, and if that didn't garner him attention, he was always the best dressed among us...his witty and colorful remarks got him both into and out of trouble while at the Academy, and with the help of an Admiral, Tim could talk his way out of any situation, even restriction...Tim's luck ran out when his protests of war in Baltimore during the Army/Navy game were met with some resistance, and the result? A punch through the window of a taxi cab...as if that is not enough to woo a person, maybe his remarks of “Your kids are not getting into a private school” would work...and speaking of wooing young suitors...he was known to spend more than time, but money on flowers for a certain dancer in New York...yes, class is Tim's middle name...don't let Dae drive your car! By the way, buddy, how are those tours going?

Ian
Higgins

Space Cadet Alumni, Ra-ra-ra-remix Higgagguns, avid volleyball superstar whose sculpted body made him a fan-favorite at the national tournament. Despite being threatened by JT Money, the crustiest of roommates, he survived to raise and nurture a family of mice and has since been successful at the Academy. Youngster year he moved into the sweetest of suites and could be seen working on his incredible dance moves to Call on Me, perfecting his yut, and even bore witness to the spectacular dog and leash show. The summer before firstie year “Craven” set off to explore the glaciers of Alaska and to finally understand to true use of small rocks. Always a ladies man, he has discovered a personal secret to pleasing women...send them to someone else...msbinh. His final year Ian discovered that double life as a four striper and aero major allowed plenty of free time and copious amounts of sleep. If you want to tailgate, the Guns's is the place to be.

Stewart
Latwin

Stewart “SPLat” Latwin: A submariner disguised as a pilot. Stew arrived at USNA spouting off the periodic table to our detailers. We knew he was destined to serve down under. The quintessential engineer, Stew was renowned for his built-in radar dishes, excessive body hair, the mysterious black ring around his desk, and his uncanny ability to say exactly the right thing at the right time. Stew spent his spare time shaving, watching videos on YouTube, and downloading with Napster. He surprised everyone when he went pilot and landed the hottest girl of the group at Notre Dame, only to have that blow up in his face. We will miss his gift for punchlines, storytelling, Jewish chocolate, and his completely random and totally pointless comments. We hope you find that $20.

Linsley

Matthew “should I call my girlfriend?” Linsley, despite spending most of his days at the Academy in the library, has lived up to his Ohio “blue-collared” roots...he has grown from his simple days as a simple grave digger in East Palestine and his incident with the potato gun... he now rocks out to “The Boss”, despite his tone-deafness, and enjoys eating chicken fingers, pb&J, 2% milk, and cheese pizza... while he and Mr. Hanky wrestled at the famous condo night, he relives his day when he once trekked 13 miles to the nearest McDonalds on an emotional journey after hearing “you have worse relationship skills than your father,” from his own mother...but do not worry, Matty has high hopes in returning to the Academy as a professor after a successful career of writing history textbooks...just do NOT be caught in a class with him...thanks for forever ruining movies like Troy and The Patriot, buddy... and remember, they don't have mustard in England... “Oxford, a simple school for a simple man.”

Lauren
Nelson

Lauren is proof that everything is bigger in TEXAS, not to mention her enthusiasm for that 50 yard line tackle…Alumni and co-founder of team HOLLER HOOT, this girl knows where the FIYER's at! Gate Zero is no match for the pirate, contortionist, or the kidnapped kid which all lead to hungover Mondays in golf class...work that waggle…phantom ripper…she worked hard, but played harder…Typical weekends included a pregame stop at club Nissan, followed by a cleptosesh,"Yo Lauren, it's Steve from the Fleet", a recon up a flagpole with Gabs, finally winding down with a power walk down West St. in pink pumps…Slap that bag? NO--she's a Lady!… Stress for LC was usually induced by those many public humiliations by B-52 bombers, Red Hammers, and those exceptionally long naps… Spring break Key West? No, Lauren did SB07 deployed on the USS Bancroft; this SWOmama started her career a little early... Why'd you choose the USS NORMANDY? I dunno, I like France…DA FOLK is NOT ready for you…

Callon
Nichols

Callon "Hal" Nichols started his stellar career at USNA by aiding and abetting a rice-cooker. He later reached the height of "striperdom" by reminding Austin he outranked him by a battalion commander–very honorable of you, Brigade Honor Advisor. Always a fan for stripes, Conquistador Callon's Achilles heel is that he tends to see double when enjoying gin. His long string of accomplishments include being a varsity rack star, and exchanging with the Columbian Naval Academy. Callon worked hard every day to mirror his role models–Patton, Webb, and Joe. Voted "most motivated shorts," you never failed to show us up with your cowboy boots and three o'clock shadow. Congratulations; we look forward to all the weddings, you Devildog you.

Robert
Notari

Robert "Slayer" Notari, a man full of energy and love for our Academy… after finally being set free from his BC curse, Rob was able to overcome in the true Information Technology way, the binary system…He is known for his endless charm...if one word would describe the fast-talking New Yorker, it would be CLASS…one tactic Rob used was taking his dates to hockey games, but they ended up to be too "tired" in the end…don't get into an argument with him, Rob's a sea lawyer at heart…He could be seen frequenting the Fleet Reserve while double-fisting rum and cokes…but he was winner of the big prize one night at the condo…Whether with "Crazy" - Matt how was your nap??–or others, Notari had friends across the brigade. A true motivator, he could always push others to run faster on the PRT, they claimed they heard death close behind them…2/c year, Rob was finally able to learn enough IT skills to develop his own home network and most importantly become a true Guitar Hero…

Robert
Phillips

Rob "Blue Chip" Phillips has graced our presence at the Academy with a great deal of class, class, and even well, even more class… he has made strides in his effort to correct his "no standards" reputation… which includes juggling between several suitors and his secret "dark side"… don't be fooled by his infinite "arrogants" on MIDS for Rob is blessed with endless charm…for example his experience with, "Hey is it okay if I wear a one piece?"…once professed that Warren Buffet is Jimmy Buffet's dad…Harry Carey poser… bobble-head…and last but not least, "Guys seriously, I wouldn't say anything, but I need to know, did you guys do something to me last night…seriously."

Erica

"Hu-hello?Hu-hu-hello?""Hello friend!""Are you kidding me?"..pillow talk interrupted; "Who does that?"..The O.C."Are you serious right now?"The club in Philly;"Um..yeeahhh..if you could just do that, that would be greeaaat"Your laughter catches on like an epidemic; "Shoes..OMG! Shoes!"..not sure what to think at first, but 30 seconds of silence was worth your eventual reaction; "Whooa-Oooooha!"; "Let me put a little bit of exCITEment back in your life style!"..playing songs over and over again; PRK outfits, "flava"; "Really?"..fighting over the yogurt covered Chex; "Stan! The Man! With a tan! I'm a fan!".."Don't cross your legs!"..thanks Mom..I mean, errr..Erica; always looking out for the girls in company; "I'm just going to bravo your room now"[room overflowing with damp laundry and garbage]"Guess how much I paid for this?!" "$10?" "Haha! No! $2.50!" Latin Palace Queen; Marshalls/TJMaxx/Ross, Why can't you take a Pokemon to the bathroom? Grey's Anatomy; "Monkey!" Eurotrip dance dance!

Rice

Joe: The one the only "Yo Rice, pass the rice…" who managed to become the greatest Level 70 Warlock the Academy has ever seen until his retirement during firstie year. You would never know by first meeting "Never," but his wingman skills are unsurpassed by no one as can be attested by the Las Vegas adventure and his roommate's wild escapades known across the Brigade. If not on the climbing wall working his game, Joe was probably out conquering the great outdoors–70+ MPH winds, blizzards, making people throw up, and making some of the best pizza you could imagine. Dub rolls, bread, granola bars, and oatmeal cookies–Joe could not get enough. Getting less sleep than humanly fathomable…yeah, seriously it sucked. 0 demerits, never been fried, yet standing restriction…he was that good. Do me a favor and don't forget your white belt.

Robert Ross

Rob "D-Rod" Ross's first notable action at USNA was puking on his detailers' shoes. His career is distinguished by three ac-boards, throwing away his 2/C loan on a car and beverages, entertaining the sponsors every weekend, countless Ben & Jerry's tubs, and growing the occasional 70's 'stache. Today, as the anchor pilot, Rob is easily recognized as the mid wearing brown shoes, flight jacket, and carrying a helmet bag while transiting between sorties on Stribling. When not in the Chaplain's office, Rob is perfecting his double comb-over in the room's mirror or playing "I'm a Pilot" on YouTube. "I'm sorry baby." A well-kept secret is that Rob is Hispanic. The women of DTA will forever miss "Me llamo Roberto." His Academy experience truly embodies a "Whale of a Tale." Distinguished member of the 2% club. Happy Birthday Rob!

Jeffrey Sawin

Jeffrey "B Team" Sawin, who couldn't pass his driver's test, still managed to have a successful career while at the Academy despite being the black sheep in his family...as squash team captain and extraordinaire, Jeff amongst many other achievements, was winner of the esteemed Salad Plate...he also merits the award for surviving despite having the worst roommates ... Jeff can be better described through his memorable quotes: "It's 4 o'clock, you guys gotta leave," "This baggage is heavy," and the most noteworthy "I will never date a mid"...hmmm, that's interesting...his drinks on Farragut and the bucket of crazy ring dance dates and the booze cruise will be forever remembered ....well, maybe not the booze cruise so much...and Jeff, really? A Red beard? Who would have thought...

Parker Shelato

From enlisted ranks to USNA you did the enlisted name proud. From NAPS and partying at the house in Connecticut to Ridiculous spring break stories from Ireland, getting yelled at by the CNO as a plebe, the President knows your name, trips to South Carolina, weekends at the condo, Club Soccer trips, Lax Game Hooligans, worst luck in the world, and one of the best friends anyone could ask for, you have had some fun. 50 years from now you will be able to look back and know that you truly got everything out of the academy.

Adam Shields

Adam "Swords" Shields hit the ground running by aspiring to become the Brigade Commander. Hello Regimental Character Advisor. Thanks for the ridiculous item of the week, BSMAJ. Active in club hockey and women's lacrosse, Adam spends his time playing scrabulous, eating Chinese over chick flicks, staying in the Delta Hotel, and making offensive Pinocchio impersonations–you're a real boy now, Adam. He excelled in the honors English program, despite never turning in anything on time. He will always be remembered as the emo training officer who loves Dashboard, cummings, and Love Actually. Though not a good sailor, Adam, with his five stripes, forged a reputation for superior craft-handling aboard a Navy 44. See Allan about making up that test.

Eric Wilckens

Eric "champ" Wilckens, will always be known for his sunny-disposition...real serious... really serious...despite his Buffalo, NY roots, Eric always had a love for the Bills and urban music, which could be heard thumping on his ridiculously fast car....Ewilcks merits the "most improved" player award as he came out of his shell Firstie year after reaching the pivotal age of 21...Eric spent most of his senior year on the "Gray Ghost" as he maintained the Mid watch on the high seas of the Severn...he is recently known for frequenting DTA and getting a little action at Middletons... and Eric? One more thing, come on man, for all of us...just pluck it...

Samuel Willard

Sam Willard, aka former "Californian High School wrestling champion," has amazed us with his endless stories...claimed to have embarked on a 500 mile cattle drive, Mr. Willard is the ultimate adventure to include his daring swim in the Nuance River in Texas and his unfortunate chilly night in the Chesapeake on the Gray Ghost... Always ready for a fight..."Fish or foe!" A true California man and USC fan, but knows the best beef still comes from Nebraska...despite being a patient of the "doctor", he has done well for himself...he now enjoys eating out at Asian places...by the way Sam, getting that knee checked out?

Beals

What do you get when you squeeze Scarsdale? Dan Beals. Monkey boy. Always keeping his golf balls in socks in his grasp. Feasting upon the undead. Having a fantastic time at Preakness 2007. Will you put cheese on my knees, please? P-funkadelic. Club Love. Double down on 11. JMC. Baby Jesus. Everything was beautiful, and nothing hurt.

Natalie

Blandon

As many of you know this little devil pup hails from Rockville, MD and after four years by the Bay, lacrosse sticks in the shower, and countless empanadas, Natalie is headed down to Quantico. While at the academy, Natalie could be found on the lacrosse field or downtown at Riordan's, YAY for crab dip and fufu drinks. On special occasions you could find her and her roomies picking up waiters at the local Italian restaurants. "What happened? He was hot at the restaurant!" Natalie's countless accomplishments while at the Naval Academy include: mastering the O-course! YAY baby Natalie, getting a bachelor's of SCIENCE in English, and the Special K diet. Natalie will always be remembered for her winning smile and personality, her ability to talk to anyone about anything, and her drive to complete intense day long workouts. To sum it all up, if there was a beauty pageant at the Naval Academy, Natalie Blandon would be Miss Congeniality!

Leland

Burns

It has become a well-known fact that Kenny Chesney uses Leland's life for song-writing inspiration. As a true Gamecock, Leland hails from a long line of classiness, sipping only the finest Natty Lite from champagne glasses. Always ready to get the J.O.B. done, Leland takes matters into his own hands. He has certainly achieved much in his time at the Academy. Leland has learned to tame bufoniform camels; he single-handedly caused an international rice shortage; but most importantly, he met the Wright Brothers. Once an Eagle Scout, Leland achieved the more prestigious rank of Buffalo Soldier by getting chubby in Spain. While not Level 5, Leland has been an inspiration to all of us, always putting others before self and exerting himself as a true Southern gentleman and scholar. Love, 4158.

Joseph

Carelli

Though fresh from a rigid European education that included drinks with teachers after school at the neighborhood bar, Joe never missed a beat adjusting to some of the finer points of life in the Hall. In particular, his room standards were impeccable, though this can perhaps be attributed more to his spotless roommate. Joe never failed to impress with his fine European tastes and manners-refusing all cheap beer, enjoying Cappuccinos in Hardbean, and attacking his McGarvey's Aviator Wings with fork and knife. Yet, Joe's grit and determination were equally impressive-as a boxer in the ring, fighting through sickness in a Crossfit workout, and unceasingly pursuing his passions, as both a Marine and scholar. Spurning the system, Joe worked his own way into Harvard. There, Joe's impressive balance will persist, as he hones his intellect, but also builds his fighting spirit which will soon enough yield a fierce and competent Marine Officer. Semper Fi, Joe.

Eating pizza in the bushes; Halsey beats Chemistry; Big & Rich; Mangia's and El Toro Bravo; Les Folies; JMU party; New Years and the beach; Cocoa Beach sunbathing and putt-putt; Kayaking to the forbidden island and back against the current; Dolphins; Penguins; Skiing and falling in Park City; $300 steakhouse; Cross Country, Protocol Staff, Academic-O, Plebe Summer Detail; Seattle...wait let's go to Florida! Proved to be a wise decision; Spring Break in Bornholm and Copenhagen; Climbing on Hammershus; Racing across Rip Miller with bags; Disney with Stitch.

Christopher
Cottrell

"So hoist our colors, hoist them high, and vow allegiance true, so long as sunset gilds the sky above the ocean blue, unlowered shall those colors be whatever fate they meet, so glorious in victory, triumphant in defeat."

Leann
Darland

LeAnn proved her love of all things military by grudgingly forgoing parades for 4 years and trading her firstie cruise for grueling stints in Paris and London. Ever the patriot, she clung to her Rainbows in the face of fierce French resistance. Although she may not have been 16th Company's most vigilant CDO, she did earn honors for best C-walk (sorry Whipple). The embodiment of the Academy's mission, LeAnn was equally at home pounding pavement on the B&A trail and soaking up her beloved accounting textbook. As much as she loved Mason with Cle, D, C, B, and Taylor, she found a second home in Annapolis. A lady living in a man's world, LeAnn not only survived 4 years at USNA, she dominated. No other girl could pound Busch Light or represent in an OchoCinco jersey with so much class. It took the Navy long enough to figure out what to do with you, LeAnn, but only because too many people wanted your vast and unique talents. Best of luck in Hawaii and beyond-stay classy.-Lee

Christine
Gargan

"Four years together by the Bay where Severn joins the tide, then by the Service called away, we've scattered far and wide; but still when two or three shall meet, and old tales be retold, from low to highest in the Fleet will pledge the Blue and Gold."

Christopher Gavieres

From Tennessee to Ohio to California Chris can claim them all as home, but no one would be more willing to drive those thousands of miles than him. With his sweet Veronica who else can forget the infamous door dings or Georgia hail. But of course, think 44 north, Scooby snacks, skippy, plastic trash bags, and all the good times in DC. Sometimes he can be found wandering the boardwalk in Pacific Beach for countless hours with one thought on his mind, "dude, where did I park my car?" But even he knows how to be the awesomest DD ever! Yes, he might have graduated first in the class.....of the second thousandth, but he knows how to keep things going. On the other hand, Chris's devotion to his friends and family are unquestioned. He cares for those around him and he is willing to go out of his way to give a helping hand. But in all seriousness, avoid St. Johns at all costs! Insert wings here and a lil' wayne laugh here...so never forget...smokey was here.

Kyle Green

Stefanie Green's unparallel driving skills led him to many great adventures. Spring break 07 was unforgettable. At least he received three squares a day. Bringle and his beautiful bottle of 7up lead to a great end to Preakness 07. Watering the lawns outside of the race lead to a nice stumble to the bus. The A.C. run where the D line dog came to play. Sadly we had to rush out of Resorts due to a wet roulette wheel. Kyle will always be my mother's favorite Jew. For all those planning to visit Kyle remember to be prepared for an assault with about 4 different weapons right after entering the house. "Yeah, well, you know, that's just, like, your opinion, man."

Christopher Harris

"Now colleges from sea to sea - May sing of colors true, - But who has better right then we - To hoist a symbol hue? - For sailors brave in battle fair - Since fighting days of old, - Have proved a sailor's right to wear - The Navy Blue and Gold."

Jonathan Hewitt

Reactor Core! ADCAP Torpedo! Semper Silent, yut! Maybe it was the Marine blood from my father, but I've been quite a motivated Midshipman. The odd thing is that it's been for SUBmarines as opposed to US Marines. Many of my classmates might call it stupidity, or perhaps craziness. It probably did not help that I have wanted to go subs since High School, yet majored in Aerospace Engineering, Astronautical Option here at USNA. Who am I to tell my classmates that they are wrong? As much as I would have rather have gone straight into the submarine pipeline, I have learned a lot about leadership here, even if its just not what to do! To end with a joke: A Submariner walks into a bar and yells, "Why do I always hit my head on this pipe!"

Courtney
Hixson

"So hoist our colors, hoist them high, and vow allegiance true, so long as sunset gilds the sky above the ocean blue, unlowered shall those colors be whatever fate they meet, so glorious in victory, triumphant in defeat."

Clayton
Jarolimek

Clayton, you're the first person we've ever met from North Dakota. Thanks for bringing a little taste of Canada into our lives, and sorry we waited a year too long to get you into the room. ---After an illustrious high school career that included awards for MVP Band and Best Actor, Clayton set a high bar for himself to continue his success in Annapolis...and he wasted no time meeting it, with his enthusiastic, albeit brief, time in D&B and YP Squadron.No one we know can transition so easily from heatedly discussing history one afternoon to sharing a laugh over a cheap beer that evening. And, of course, we could never match his legendary "shot over the shoulder" in New York. Soupy's love and capacity for "The Best" was matched only by his passion and devotion as a capable hands-on leader, constantly serving those under his command but always pushing them to excel. The Corps is gaining a fine man and a fine leader. SemperFidelis, Clayton. Love, 4158.

From the first time EJ put out a paw at tables plebe summer and asked Millsap if protein supplements were available in King Hall, we knew we were dealing with a rare breed. But despite 6am protein shakes in the blender, the lingering smell of canned tuna in our sink, and the bandit trying to steal our manhood, we grew to love and respect our lean-meat-loving roommate. And so too did the rest of the company, as evidenced by the constant stream of Centurions who found their way to his back corner of the room to seek advice, insight, and encouragement. EJ's diet may have broken down with an occasional M&M or ice cream binge at the Esterson's, but his devotion to his friends never waivered. Whether he was Sanchez in Madrid, Robin Hood in South Beach, or a Level 5 Leader in Mother B, EJ was always committed to bettering those around him. The Navy is gaining one dedicated, intelligent, and toned aviator. Fly high and fast, EJ-we'll miss you. Love, 4158.

Erik Kowalski

I done got my book learning. I are educated and am gonna help the South pay back for the War of Northern Aggression. It's a cryin shame I got 4.0 in Mech E. I would have made a great truck driver or a heavy equipipent opperator. I guse I'm just curesed with doing the Banditos homework and sticky sheets. I done read about it in the Ka-wall Street Journal, the local source for all your random facts and made up trivia.

Levi Lundell

Yo soy El Bandito! All the numerous e-mails sent out to 16th Company "by Levi" and the constant stream of pranks made for a firstie year one can only hope for. When Levi isn't beating up his smaller roommate or pumping iron in 7th wing gym (really just splashing water on his shirt to make him look sweaty), he can be found lassoing trashcans in the p-way or working on his hunka junk from the 70's. Pranks and Trans Ams aside, Levi's devotion to his religion and his friends is unshakeable. Good luck at flight school. I'm sure someone down there will help you get dressed when you need to impress. Levi, even though you're getting old, never forget the Panamanian, Hawaiian, and the Pennsylvanian.

Ian Mackichan

My time at USNA was dreamy and constantly filled with smiles and sunshine… always. I did what I came here to do and had some fun along the way. I have several great memories with awesome friends from trips to the DR to weekends spent "there" rearranging locks, riding the "mountain bike", and shooting the magic powder. I'm very thankful for the support of those who helped me get here and helped me get through it even when I really didn't think I would. I'm especially thankful for my close friends, family, and most of all God.

Richard Mehlmann

Tricky D, Dick, Ricardo, White Lightning…? From the great state of Little Rhody and its large coastline; I'm never doing that again…never mind, I was lying; Feeling good for the 2008 Army Navy game; Come here buddy, give me a hug. I just want to love you. IT'S A TRAP! I drink your milkshake. Watch out, Jimbo could be anywhere; Spring Break '07: How you feeling? Siggggggggh. Don't make me give you the annexation of Puerto Rico. Staying out till sunrise every night in Vegas; Ocean City '07; great times up on 3rd deck McDonough, the home away from home.

Joshua Press

Princess dissapeared this year running away to Philidelphia to be mesmorised by a Ginger (and worse a ASU grad). Not much can be said about him we just hope that she was able to feed Hungry Hungry Josh and put up with his amazing impulse buys. Why one needs a full sized electric keyboard when it is pouring rain in a minature sports is beyond me. But most of Josh's logic was always beyond the rest of us anyways.

Matthew Quigley

USNAAAAA!!!!!!! ATTACK!!!!!!!! Matthew Quigley was unfortunately taken over by his cyber self Usna, the warrior troll. We all missed the random ridiculous facts that Quigley came up with. "No really I read it on line." Queen Quigley failed to maintain his royal court finally getting fried for uncleanlyness and allowing his Princess to run off to Philadelphia. When USNA did allow Matt back for a little while he was plagued by gay ring tones that forced him to whisper sweet nothings over the phone to Jen. (who was a block away, yet he could not see) But no need to fear Usna is here to save the WORLD! (of warcraft) riding in on his trusty mount.

Bret Royston

"So hoist our colors, hoist them high, and vow allegiance true, so long as sunset gilds the sky above the ocean blue, unlowered shall those colors be whatever fate they meet, so glorious in victory, triumphant in defeat."

Benjamin Scripture

"Sir, could you tell us a little bit about yourself, sir?" - So Handsome It HURTS! - Went all the way to Spain for my first Heine...and almost got in a fight with Joe's dad's BOSS - Toenail scratches on my neck at Herdon - Honing HALO skills on grayhull cruise - mandatory youngSTAR SMTs...although we DID get to sing in the parades - "Where'd my food go?" - Big Blue Wonderfully-Shady 'Do you like candy' Van...R.I.P. - Defending my honor from KP's wandering hands - "a HAMMOCK?! I will NEVER forget (no matter how hard I might try) my four years in the greatest, handsomest, most 'loving' (yeah...you know) company Bancroft ever knew.

Michael Slagh

Michael "Gordon" Slagh graduated with honors and distinction from USNA, and while absolutely an honorable and distinguished man, Mike's friends knew him in a light few others saw. Via email Mike was good for at least one good photo shopped picture and a text message with a clever new nickname for one of his friends each day. Mike was also quite the consumer, able to find free blueberry muffins and Red Bull from WaWa and the Mid Store for his friends when they were hungry. Mike's greatest talent however outside of the academic arena resided in the all too infamous and familiar UFP. His willingness to go where no man has gone before, fortitude to deliver a good old fashioned rogering, and ski mask ways make Mike the perfect explosive ordinance disposer.

Joseph Solosky

Joe "Zone" Solosky is considered by those who know him to be a man of simple tastes. He does things that look good, feel good, and taste good. Beyond that, he makes no promises. A dedicated Yankee fan, Zone was seen at his highest highs and lowest lows throughout his four years by the Severn depending on the fate of his team. Some of Zone's favorite pastimes are: eating three or more slices of pizza at Steerage, getting laid back with some video games, reading Bill Simmons articles, putting really emotional songs on repeat, updating his blog during class, building houses in New Orleans and mud huts in Georgetown, and, of course, LDS. Expect big things from the Joe-Zone, because this future Flag Officer turned New York Yankees General Manager, is determined to put his rubber stamp on history.

Gregory Syme

Syme, Sim, Salabim; Symewise (the Brave). Rowing for seven semesters, rounded out with a semester at Hopkins. All nighters in Michelson caffeinated until the code fell off the screen, discussing the finer points of Software Engineering with Captain Young, and spending three years with the same 14 guys in the same classroom for Computer Science. "It's like a banana, ready, row" "Water is a creature comfort" the Speed Shake and Pedialyte. Three trips to the Charles and Camden along with more Chicken Parmesan than any person should have to eat. Giving up block zero and one to watch the American spelling bee on ESPN. Weapons detail - learning to sleep to the sound of sporadic gunfire: Leatherneck - night landnav and the American Mujahedeen. Stork's broken leg. Plexing, Dock Street, Sushi and mind erasers. Unprecedented nerding and 1 class a week. Two more years of school and Greg will have to give up natural light and a tan for the healthy glow of the reactor core.

Michael Walter

From the uninhabited lands of Iowa; Affectionately referred to as 'Ghost Plebe,' 'Slick Mick,' 'Momma Mick,' and 'the Voice of Reason'; At 6' just about the shortest and one of the only surviving members of the 'tall kids club'; Unusual knowledge of music, science, and illicit drugs; 'The Rico' produced Rum as his signature drink; Numerous major conduct interrogations that resulted in only two minor fries; Buy a $1300 van on eBay and drive it to New Orleans? Good idea until it breaks down in Tennessee; Spent 3/C year 'hiding in parking lot bushes'; Lived in DC, Baltimore, NYC clubs 2/C year; Never sleeps cause there's too much Astro work to do in the week and too much fun to be had on the weekend; 60 straight hrs of work plus 6 hrs of partying on 1 hr of sleep is always a good time; Usually the oldest in a group, but the only one to be ID'd; Probably the only person in the top 10% to get a C in his Capstone Course; Responsible for fixing countless 'situations' from MD to GA.

Steven Weiner

Ween Peace, the savvy seafaring Strong Island Submariner can be heard from a distance thanks to his deep, surly voice. On a given day during his Four Years By The Bay, you could hear him calling out "First we showed the color blue" (during his days as the most motivated plebe in the regiment) as well as "It's a party at the Weiner's, it's a party!" (during all those days in between plebe summers spent carousing and rough housing at 11 College Ave). Getting up the rope, rock runs, and other assorted runs to 11 Col. rounded out his workout regimen, but most notably his affinity for Living the High Life and Hitting the Reserves kept him feeling tip-top. While he didn't employ the UFP or even the Salt Stick Extension Technique (SSET) like some of his closest shipmates, he managed his fair share of wily sleeping arrangements on Duke dormitory floors and Big Easy mattresses, but none more epic that his Taraculous... um, Miraculous way of finding free lodging in south Florida.

Ryan Whipple

What else is there to say about Ryan, but that "he gets it."Ryan has had his fair share of setbacks during his four years by the bay - a rough NY trip, Riordan's closing its doors, and a service selection "surprise" - but he always bounces back stronger, and happier than ever. Even a rough morning after, such as the thinking man outside a Madrid train station or the Reagan Airport bathroom, could never keep Roger Bannister from running his four-minute mile, time and time again. From cross-country workouts plebe year, to submarine workouts firstie spring, Ryan was always hard to beat. We're going to miss him, but probably not as much as the Hollister Store in the Annapolis Mall. No matter which pair of flip-flops Ryan was wearing, though, he always had a smile and brightened those around him. His skill at always making the best of any situation will lift him and those around him to greatness, in the Submarine force and beyond. We'll miss you, Ryan. Love, 4158.

Jillian Bahlman

From the rocky streets of Hercules, CA, Jill, the 'feminine half Mexican' gun slinger shot out of plebe year as a no mercy youngster bad ass. With her geekers in one hand and her fist in the other Jill quickly became known as a sweet smiling, kind and helpful friend. Of the most notable experiences, anyone opening Jill's door could catch her singing to some song as if she were an American idol, or helping her friends with homework and diligently working as company first sergeant and company commander. The fierce look in Jill's eye only struck dishonorable mids to the ground and pride in her company. Weekend trips to Ocean City looking for that perfect tan and any chance to get out of King hall to eat in every restaurant in A-town. What was in Jill's hand at night? - a good mix of Tequila sunrises or amaretto sours.

"Four years together by the Bay where Severn joins the tide, then by the Service called away, we've scattered far and wide; but still when two or three shall meet, and old tales be retold, from low to highest in the Fleet will pledge the Blue and Gold."

John Beinert

First, it's not a pizza it's a pie. As in, "It's a pizza pie, what else would you call a whole pizza? (said with a thick New York accent that only appears when the conversation turns to 'the island' -Long Island- or any of his NY brethren are around)" John will also affect his accent when discussing his "ponies.". No, John does not own any horses. His ponies are, in fact, his legs -or more specifically, his huge (silent h) quads. But, it's not just his quads. John's a 'uge individual in personality as well as stature -though 6'1"/175 lbs might not seem large, he's has taken care to surround himself with underfed Navy Lights. And, what he lacks in true hugeness he more than makes up for with his not so quiet confidence and boisterous manner (John, boisterous means loud) - both of which have secured him a position as our resident Goombah (No, he's not Italian, he's Irish, but you wouldn't know it except for his seal-like skin and his proud proclamations of his lineage on St. Patty's day).

Jesse Burdick

Though 'Reef Points' states otherwise, Jesse Burdick was the youngest Midshipman to enter and graduate from the Naval Academy; graduating at the age of 13. While the Brigade might remember him best from his sharp and clean-cut hair for leatherneck, Jesse will always be remembered by his closest friends for his crazy legs, commitment to MIDREGS, and his professional attitude in New York, Stanford, Atlantic City, and Philadelphia. Never once did Jesse's young age compromise the habits of his older friends while out in town or at a Sponsors house, as he always followed the rules. After a dinner at the Chart House at the age of 11, Jesse refused to join in a wine toast; however, he decided to run an outer in full USNA sweats prior to TAPS. Jesse was a business manager for the JMC for 3 years, and provided the Jewish MIDN with elaborate events and the opportunity to grow. Jesse was and will always be in integral facet to everyone he touches, despite Wardlaw's frequent discards for excellence.

Kyle Corry

The company grandpa and unapproachable HERO, he still turned out to be an amazing guy. Engaged for the duration of his Academy career, he is now a proud member of the 2% club...we think Ashley's a keeper. Are you a prior? What are those wings? Please remind us again, Kyle. Why is your face getting so pink? One of the most solid and consistent guys I know, Kyle how about a little emotion? Thanks for being such a great friend to all of us, you are the type that life-long friends are made out of. We shared many good times and the better ones are the ones still ahead. Good luck, buddy. -Wiggy and Zach

Joshua Domagalski

Resident philosopher, staunch defender of the faith. You entered the academy desiring the traditional warrior-role: SEAL, Marine, but realized your bent for a new, evolving, perhaps more relevant warrior: the Cyber Warrior, prophesized best by Ben Kingsley in the movie, Sneakers, ""The world isn't run by weapons anymore, or energy, or money. It's run by little ones and zeros, little bits of data. It's all just electrons.... There's a war out there ... and it's not about who's got the most bullets. It's about who controls the information. What we see and hear, how we work, what we think, it's all about information." From Japan to the world of Information Professional.

Amy, it all began with the Smokey Bear and went downhill from there. From the parks of Maine, to the streets of Philly, to the bars of DTA and to the hanging with the Russian Mafia in Baltimore, we could be found living it up in style and with class... most of the time. How can I forget YP's, Condomsense, Steerage dates, Bamboo Bernies, and Red Square. Good times were shared, hard times were had, picking up the pieces of your heart wasn't a hobby of mine, but I did it because I knew you would for me. You're a true friend and I am looking foreward to more good times to share. Don't worry, you won't be that "cool single friend that my kids call Auntie Amy". You'll get your fuzzy cuffs back! Kyle, there is truly no better way to send you off from this great institution than a conglomeration of Big Lebowski quotes, none more appropriate than the first, so here you go, my friend: Your revolution is over, Mr. Lebowski! Condolences! The bums lost! My advice is, do what your parents did! Get a job, sir! The bums will always lose-- do you hear me, Lebowski? THE BUMS WILL ALWAYS LOSE!
For your information, the Supreme Court has roundly rejected prior restraint. Lady, I got buddies who died face down in the muck so you could enjoy this family restaurant!
The Chinaman is not the issue here! I'm talking about drawing a line in the sand, dude! Across this line, you do not, uh...Also dude, Chinaman is not the preferred nomenclature. Asian-American, please. Brought it bowling? I didn't rent it shoes. I'm not buying it a beer. He's not taking your turn, dude. You have no frame of reference here. You're like a child, who wanders into the middle of a movie.

Straight off his Tennessee lake and into the Annapolis snow, a man of vision, faith, family and strength–both on and off the wrestling mat–emerged. A true Starbucks connoisseur. The ultimate scavenger and entrepreneur. Seeker of truth. Varsity athlete, OE Scholar, pragmatist, storyteller, standup comic, and lifetime friend… the moments always outnumbered the time available. Learning to fly with Redneck Air and keeping YP's afloat with A-bears, squalls, cookie men, and death cabs. 141 lb zombie, Goodyear blimp or somewhere in between. Oh, and PROTRAMID West, union of the Bash Brothers, political campaigns, not wearing drawers and never knowing what time it was. In freakin' Denver. NAS Lemoore with Smokey, Cowchwitz, and Helen of Troy. Where are we going? Regrettably tasting the rainbow. Strength, Honor, and Stockdale. An avid fan of Alan Jackson and his hit, "Tall, Tall Trees," this future aviator has his eyes on the sky. I would run the shoots with you any day, you adrenaline junkie.

Michelle Mattingly

Brian Miller

From an awkward band kid to Bizzy B (AWOL)… just to clarify, my muse - booze. Where do I begin, plebe Mazatlan, good Lord. Ending relationships, but newer better ones (haha). Away football games, Rice? Stanford? Tweedle Dee and Tweedle Dumb. Room parties=no degree, but we did it didn't we! School is overated…until UAVs and IFS - I forgive you. The random rumbles…split skull anyone? THE FAMILY. Restriction - your full 7 days. (not our fault). Did we party? Despite it all we made the best of times. Look out for John, make sure he's taking care of his stuff. Attempts at SCUBA. RUMPLEMINTS!!! Don't forget our ongoing squash game. Then there is Jill, the love of our lives. Tiger Woods golf or FIFA? God, Jesus and Devil. Atlantic City - gambling problem?The many done nights - underwear at Brads, naked in the coffin, "asleep" on the terrace. ## John Owens

A prouder (and louder) Texan can't be found. Known amongst friends for his loyalty, friendship, ridiculous comments, and luck (if only he had given some to Adam). John was the sailing coach's favorite skipper, Garfield's prized plebe (didn't he catch you sleeping during the day?), and a lover of applesauce. John never was known for perfect accountability of his things (how many cameras is that now and where were your clothes in Mexico?). A true party animal, his favorite things were Vodka tonics, women, music, and the city of Miami. Fun times in the "party wagon," even with a broken windshield. Friendly encounters in Philadelphia, holding Jesus signs at 6am on the side of the road in AC, battling (and partying) through a "mild" sore throat, pillow fight harassment (you could have caused an international incident! haha), and a naturalist exploration of the Yard at midnight with Adam. Hold on to your clothes, I think that's "Your Love" I hear…Good luck and good times, Johnny Boy!

John Pressley

Calvin is the true definition of an officer and a gentleman. He can always be seen with a contagious smile on his face no matter the situation. Even when he was struggling with issues of his own, he never hesitated to rejuvinate the spirits of those around him.

Matthew Recker

Matt hailed from sunny SoCal, a fact readily apparent by his 2 surfboards kept in the hall and 4 years of sentences peppered with the word "dude." Thanks to tremendous help from classmates, he completed a MechE major, but not without some bumps along the way. SpenSOR will never let Buddha forget about the grade that WAS "so high" in Dynamics. Member and then captain of Offshore Sailing, his roommate found it hilarious that Matt had "3 stripes, mind you" - but then Justin had to wear 4 himself and move. Matt names VOST as the highlight of his time at USNA, mainly because it got him away from the Academy. Summer sailing included races to Nova Scotia, Bermuda, and New York. He missed class to sail in rough places like France, Key West, and Los Angeles. To members of 17th Company, VOST (KCup & Boatyard Crews especially), his LSAP compañeros, and his insane roommates Mark, Themba, and Justin, go Matt's endless thanks for the memories and more so, all the stuff we can't remember.

Adam Schuman

Adam's luck is about as bad as his nose is big. Probably was sat for a total of 12 weeks during his academic career. Countless months of summer school, Saturday nights in the hall, eons of EI, 45 days of restriction (think twice before you destroy government documents), and even a few extra months to enjoy at the academy. This guy appreciates freedom as much as his ancestors did when they were liberated from Egypt. He always keeps a great sense of humor and is a prodigy when it comes to pleasing parents or thinking up incredibly offensive insults. As long as he's not your lab partner, he's always great to have around whether you're chowing down on bagels and cream cheese or drinking cheap 40's and dancing with trannies (oops). Sharkfinsoup, SchuJew, Crazylegs, it's been fun man. Wish you could've crossed the stage with the rest of us, but you still made it brother. Enjoy the shipboard life. Take 'er easy dude.

Jenna Schutz

Here's to the good times: The Unbreakable Trojans, squad 2; J-Crew, Sushi Fridays; Kristen, Danika and Jess - best roomies ever! How come we didn't go to the Renaissance Festival sooner? And who can forget my 21st birthday…Oh wait, I did. Thanks for taking pictures. Long live the Trifecta! WYBADIITY? Army Navy games - can we say sweep? Spring Breaks - Caribbean/ Bourbon St - losing precious cargo??? Squad 4-3 2/C year - best squad ever; weekend concerts and road trips - Charlotte, D.C., B-More to name a few; drinking and dancing in DTA; Ring Dance: party bus anyone? Beer pong at tailgaters, Pukey arm (Touché), CDO nights from hell; sketchy picnics at St. Johns ;), Theme pics, meeting my parents in Colorado (not the cops), Six brothers and one token girl, enough said. Debauchery, oh the debauchery.

Joanne So

Dedicated, smart, funny, kind, tough. Joanne So embodied perseverance through four years of hard study while many of us studied our hardest learning new types of beer. Long nights in the lab and library with food from Howard and BBQ chicken pizza from Steerage to sustain us, it all paid off. "It always works out!" When you need a good laugh or smile, go see JoSo. A better friend couldn't be found anywhere in the world. She's not only a friend you would want, but a friend you would need. From Hawaiian adventures, running through freshly untrodden snow, or building 5 ft tall roller coasters and the last great snowman of the semester, it was always about having fun today while looking forward to someday. As we leave Mother B and scatter to all parts of the world, Joanne serves in the Medical Corps–there's no Corps like the Med Corps. It is a comforting thought knowing that if anything should happen to us, there will be people like her to take care of us. "Forged steel and faith."

Kristen Sproat

Sproater has sproatastically controlled her sproatalicious destiny through her sproatastic intensity and dedication which gives her a sproater like concentration which could give anyone a heart attack if interrupted. From the halls of Bancroft to the shores of the Severn, she fought her USNA battles; academically, militarily, and athletically. First to fight for grades and sailing, then to keep her honor clean, she has always been proud to claim the title of an outstanding upright individual. Skiing immense slopes, and sailing great distances, and traveling far and abroad, and playing a mean viola, and singing to her heart's content, she has lived for the experiences. Pineapple Martini, salsa, chilly Severn water, books, DC rendezvous, Tahoe, and Colt 45 are only icing on her cake. Don't forget honor investigations, remediations and academic counseling. But more importantly her fidelity, dedication and kindness are rock solid and if you want this boat to float then you can definitely trust in Sproat.

Zachary Templin

I just wanted to extend my deepest gratitude to those who helped me out through these 5 years it took to get me to graduation. I met many great individuals who did everything they possibly could to help me out, no matter how little or big the gesture. I am truly blessed to have lived, partied, learned and experienced the countless events with such esteemed people. Thank you all for your help, patience, and friendship. Good luck to all and stay safe!

Samuel Travis

"Now colleges from sea to sea - May sing of colors true, - But who has better right then we - To hoist a symbol hue? - For sailors brave in battle fair - Since fighting days of old, - Have proved a sailor's right to wear - The Navy Blue and Gold."

Jessica Troska

This sparkly young lady made Team Awesome famous for it's DR Pepper Thursdays! Every other day of the week is just as good if you get to see Jess's smiling face. It's the little things that make her big in our eyes - that red Wisconsin t-shirt skillfully worn under SDBs, colorful e-mails and news clips that literally brighten your day, a library full of good books, two extra-comfy chairs, and a desk covered in fun sticky-notes (plus a spare lizard or two). I dunnooooo what we would have done without the always full (but sadly not always running) teacups, the ever scrumptious couscous and brown sugar, and the endless supply of pictures! Thanks for knowing where we live and for living en route to class (and formation).

Andrew Wiggington

Wiggy…we both thought that we could never be friends with such a stern, motivated yut-head like we saw during plebe summer however, we all know the saying about the cover of a book…, and you have been one of the best friends a guy could ever ask for. However, we fear your potential to procure a mate with the frivolous dancing techniques when prompted by a certain song. You are one of the most thoughtful and dedicated people we know, and there have been many times where the tunnel was dark and your positive attitude, although at times annoying-why can't you share in the cynicism-kept us alive in the game. Finally you wised up and decided to go Navy, now if you could only wise-up and throw some skies on, you might be able to keep up with us at Whistler next time. We wish you the best of luck and look forward to the awesome times we will share in the years to come.

Joshua Andres

Josh Andres is a man of unprecedented dedication, the type the Academy was meant to produce. He enjoys a challenge. While many have witnessed this in his physical triumphs (while most only do a forty year swim, Josh's was forty-three), few recognize that it extended into the academic arena as well. Josh's dedication to his education prompted him to establish a firm foundation in systems engineering before completing his B.S. in history. He is a humble leader, voluntarily putting himself in dangerous situations: Chief Hutu's warpath, Phoenix police, his roommate's ex-girlfriend, even the mysterious, dark corners of the planetarium. It was only his leadership that brought us together after a night of whitewater kayaking. Above all he is a true and caring friend. The consistency in his character commands the respect of those around him. While we're looking forward to his future successes, we aren't planning on missing him because he said he'd keep up. We'll see…

Justin Bardin

He came, he got a 4.0, and disappeared below periscope depth – all with a Justin Bardin style. His boldness in life was seen his first year when he asked to wear the Supe's SDBs. He started as a thinker and a survivor (and one who saw snow for the first time). Justin survived Calc with the devil lady and too many semesters of all that singing, Stewie and farting preachers. Justin is one amazing man with whom to share wild times and late nights in the 2-4 penthouse. He is the epitome of character and tenacity – he never quits, never fails, and proves to be a life changing example for all. Cheers to the best roommate at the Academy for making it 4 years worth to remember. It's been quite a journey, from late nights to early mornings. Who could ask for a better friend, a stronger man of God, or a closer cohort in crime? Here's a toast to the times, our ladies, and our future. Run silent, run deep, and come up to periscope depth soon . . . you'll have a motorcycle waiting.

Jonathan Blanchard

Live Free or Die is the NH motto. Jonathan “Thann”/“Bonhomme” Blanchard chose another option: the USNA. After trying his hand at an honest living, the motivated prior became an officer. Few could have predicted his future success, culminating in the coveted position of 18th Co. Commander. This achievement in leadership came only after careful preparation as the women's soccer manager which he altruistically accepted. After enduring a plebe year roommate with no respect for the 2200 lights off policy and a penchant for waking Mr. Blanchard at odd hours of the night, he was kind enough to switch roommates yearly to spread his wisdom among the Beavers/Yard Dogs. His final contribution to the Academy was a robot that “picked up” tennis balls that had previously been painted orange. Thank you, Thann; we are indebted. Two bits of advice for his friends: wear socks to bed and don't put the window lock on. Thann is a man of integrity, a consistent and thoughtful friend, and an impartial leader.

Peter
Bleday

You'd like some half whiskey, half vodka? Sounds like you're in the mood for a Peter Ronald Bleday. While preferring a glass of whiskey himself, he'd also be able to educate you a thing or two on the responsible use of drugs and alcohol. This half Irish, half Russian was known to the Brigade as "the shipmate guy," with his amusing, Friday afternoon emails. As a rugby playing chemist and the captain of the Harpooning Team, his voyages would also have him working closely with Women's Rugby and Women's Lacrosse. An avid film watcher, Peter logged 24,840 minutes of movie time while a midshipman. Fancy yourself a baller? Then meet Peter out on the squash court where the racket meets the metal, or the floor, or the wall. If you didn't find Pete on the court, try the swimming pool where he would often live out his glory days by saving the lives of drowning sailors and marines or teach them how to swim. Yes, the Submarine Force is gaining quite the gem with our beloved Petie, yes indeed.

Rory
Broughton

From the middle of independence came Rory Gerard "Sneaky" Broughton, the sly squirrel, the crafty chipmunk Rory is always one for games. Driving his yellow bug around DTA, always up for a good time... Rory was the favorite of both men and beast, freeing many a mouse to the luxurious Sup's lawn. Rory excelled in being a midshipman. He will forever be remembered for his antics in the hall. Never one to pass up a good pieing no matter how poorly it always ended up for him. Always kind, never watered down Rory will be remembered as one of the greatest people ever to graduate from this fine undergraduate institution near the severn river.

Alexander
Campbell

LETS CRANK THIS DOMINO!

Xander, the Big Boli Taste: You wouldn't be able to tell from the goofy exterior but Alexander J.F. Campbell is the most likely to surprise us all and become CNO. With a smile on his face at every corner, Boli took all the bumps that the administration could put in the road and made it into a joke, making the academy a shockingly pleasurable experience. Only a true leader could have such a good time while BOHICA. There is no better friend, companion or fearless leader than somebody who takes the hit for his friends and keeps on moving. "Taking his position as a joke" was only the beginning, Maverick has nothing on this hot shot.

John
Canny

John Thomas Canny II lived the philosophy that if you slept for 12 hours each day, you would only be at the Academy for 2 years. Helped along by tiring Sprint Football practices, his legacy includes sleeping through every Astro class and still understanding it as well as the rest of the class. Referred to as "Gunz", Tom's exploits reach far, including certain inappropriate scribbles in the CMOD log book, tactfully maintaining foreign relations, fishing drunk after ring dance and becoming the first midshipmen to be fried for fishing during study hour. From Flugtag, Capitol City Brewery, Home Brew operations to the gold standard of Coors, beer will always be one of Tom's passions. The phrase "I need to tone it down" will survive as his mantra, becoming even more important as his wedding day approaches. Few have been able to exemplify the ideals of The Outlaw Josey Wales while locked away in Mother B as well as the flannel clad Young Tom, and for that we salute him...Holmes!

Stephen
Craney

Steve Craney is the dude. A member of the water polo team Steve loved to sport the Speedo for every occasion. Late night wondering, white works alpha, that crazy night in Pennsylvania, and touring DC at 3am are just a few reasons why Steve is a Renaissance man. Steve loved to travel... Italy, Hawaii, Cali were all in a weekend. He is also extremely fond of throwing on two wooden planks and jumping off cliffs into some sweet pow pow. Steve has found a way to get a career involving sitting on the beach in Florida soaking in the rays and going for a swim once in a while, just more opportunity to sport his beloved Speedo.

Amanda
Crites

"Friend, role model, mentor, admiral-in-waiting... Truly 'No better friend, no worse enemy' was written to describe the infamous Amanda. Whether striking fear into the hearts of plebes or serving as a shining beacon of professionalism in the dark depths of 18th Company, you will always be remembered as a model midshipman, fearless leader and best friend...So much rage, so little time... but it is all with love... have you seen my boyfriend?...finding your best friend's ex-boyfriend in a checkered Speedo-priceless...candy corn... those darn mislos...burning down the dog house...ice ice baby...mustang... an English phone booth...big spoon, little spoon..."

Thank you mom and dad for never doubting me, Shan for always making me better and Alli for always keeping me grounded. I couldn't be here or who I am if not for you. You are my best friends and role models; I love you with my whole heart. Thank you.

Lauryn
Dempsey

Born in the great state of New Jersey, Lauryn embodies all the qualities of a true Jersey Girl. Since the very beginning of her Naval Academy career, Lauryn has been working the system, having a good time but somehow never getting fried. Lauryn's love of travel has brought her all over the world. Not many can say that they have backpacked through Europe by themselves, partied with Australians in Germany at the World Cup, lived on an Alaskan glacier for a month, AND ran with the bulls in Pamplona, Spain. Lauryn doesn't need permission to get what she wants, whether its free drinks in DTA or a brand new Piaggio. If her power rings are any indication, Lauryn is going to be living the good life very soon. Though she will be sorely missed by Freddy, family, and friends, Lauryn is ready to move forward and bring the Dirty Jerz to California. MAKIN ISLAND won't know what hit it.

Jarod
Dicks

As the accomplished son of a Florida mayor from a town no one has heard of, everyone knew a promising future awaited Jarod. June 30, 2004, the young, 2nd squad plebe planned to major in aerospace engineering and become an astronaut. On the 1st, he learned he was colorblind and became a scientist (political). Dicks, Jarod Dicks was undaunted by this minor setback and went on to numerous achievements: a somehow-legitimate acceptance into the exclusive sigma chi fraternity, a striper holding a position titled by random letters, and earning the AF Organizational Excellence ribbon! Even after answering the call of the Corps (yut?) and learning to drink beer, Jarod harbors a fear of toilet paper and Mondays. UF, UF, USAFA, USAFA, UF, USAFA, USNA, GM, USNA, Romania, AACC, etc. Jarod is more idealistic than most people would give him credit for. He is consistently looking for ways to improve himself. He's a fun guy to be around but, more importantly, he's a loyal and forgiving friend.

Kerrie
Dimarino

"Now colleges from sea to sea - May sing of colors true, - But who has better right then we - To hoist a symbol hue? - For sailors brave in battle fair - Since fighting days of old, - Have proved a sailor's right to wear - The Navy Blue and Gold."

Daniel Foose

No one has the ability to lift morale and spirits like this nationalistic Texan. Mr. Foose's crazy lips and banana pistols over plebe summer made it impossible for cadre to discipline him. The result was a mid w/o a sense of urgency. No matter how late he was, he could always make up time with his T-1000 walk. After the crucible of plebe summer, the prep in cowboy boots became a wise old mentor for the company. What movie should I see? How should I vote? What state should I be from? Foose has all the answers. He even found time to coach his roommate on the sleepless nights of Hell Week. While his many achievements form a foundation for his reputation, it is Daniel's loyalty and dedication that make him an honored friend and inspiration. It is this same dedication to and interest in his friends that warrant the respectful recommendation of Whiskers as a fitting call sign for this future Top Gun. A friend for life, just don't give him your email unless you really like jellyfish stories.

Ty Fritz

Ty Fritz: Man, Myth, Frizzle. Sawwwwwrryyyyy Tyyyyyyyy!!! Performing backflips for incredulous cadre, harassing animal mother, launching water balloons at unsuspecting tools, the hippest midshipman this side of Philo McGiffen had an exceptional four years by the Severn. Late nights with Tru-2-tha-game, early mornings with Bonnie White, and a pie to Willy's unsuspecting face. Adventures in College Park, Virgin Fest, Croquet Matches and across the globe (probably the only graduating midshipman to vacation in Amsterdam). Twenty years from now when they read this at your Distinguished Grad ceremony, I hope the next-generation frizzle is sleeping sound in his rack. Byyeee Tyyyy, the academy will miss you.

James Henning

Four years with "THE MARINE"...what a ride. 3am floor waxing, rooster captures and a decapitated mouse pretty well define his Plebe year. Each year, the tenacious, motorcycle riding Midshipman broke a new bone in his pursuit of going "all-out" in life. From destroying the Brigade XO in handball Plebe year to running a double-black diamond his second day on the slopes, he knew no limit and showed no fear. He lived life free from the constraints of other Midshipmen and broke the rules while avoiding the consequences. However, the true mark of James' character is the passion, loyalty and love he holds for his country, the Marine Corps and God. You will not find a harder-working, more reliable person than him. He is skilled at separating the important from the meaningless and applies his efforts in an incredibly focused direction. James was a great Midshipman, is a great man and Christian and will be a great husband, father, and Marine Corps officer. Ooh-rah. Semper Fi. Devil Dog. Yut. YUT!

Matthew Humiston

"Hummy" came to the Academy from the greatest state in the Union, Texas. Whether he was lighting it up on the football field or making his friends double over in laughter, his presence is always felt. Always reaching "standard form" on the weekends, made possible by Eddie's card. Lack of filter making everyone around uncomfortable, Outworking everyone in Rickets, Only running the last gasser hard, making history at ND and then a memorable celebration afterwards, Army/Navy celebrations at Tir na Nog, Spring Break Inloviston, DTA arguments with "Skins" fans, Atlantic City winnings, Claiming not to know who pissed the couch in Bmore, Blackouts in DC after 45 min, Not making it out after Ring Dance, lectured by cops on New Years while on the curb, Two Stepping at Billy Bobs, Beach Day wrestling, Late night visit on SB, Hell Week in St. Thomas, Coming in Hot, trying to knock over the port a potty at the lax tailgater while someone was inside, good call on FHTM… twice, Never leaving a man behind, shirtless in the back of a truck in the rain at Foxfields, Always leaving his mark.

Christina Kastner

As a midshipman Christina Elizabeth Kastner, "Christie," had the priceless talent to intertwine fashion sense and yard patrol crafts, "oh my skivvies!!!." Let's be honest shipmate, having matching hands were the best thing that ever happened to us and the end of the bench. Founding mother of the inner circle. Dixon recommended to this denial squirrel to STUDY STUDY STUDY, but she was too distracted in her blue over khaki with that guy P-diddy Rey. She is truly in love with that momma's milk, but if you have seen her juice let her know. Chemistry is only fun the second time around AND in the summer. You look so pretty even though you swallowed a roach. To all you haters who didn't think she would make it, KLUWiCKY!!!!!

Christopher Koski

From the frozen arctic lands of the north, the son of an Inuit princess and King Neptune, this mountain man was trained from the womb to become a naval officer of superior intelligence and excellent instincts. With his booming voice and a command presence that would intimidate many, he rose to become the most respected drill instructor in all of JROTC. His superior performance and training was not limited to the drill field. He was also a champion track runner, exhibiting his exceptional physical conditioning. While at the Academy, he was challenged academically. He again rose to the occasion and went from an academic performance board at the end of Youngster year, to the Dant's list by the end of the next semester. Excelling in all aspects of life as a Midshipman, he has become a great example of leadership. Tested through adversity, Chris Koski has risen to the challenge and will no doubt surpass all of his contemporaries as a Naval Flight Officer.

Marek

Jimbo Slice. He slices it up with the best of them. Slice is the foremost authority on modern politics, especially those that can be defined through a systematic approach. Although he denies it, he will be side by side with Rodney T. on the Hill some day. This guy loves munchin' on eggs and he EFA w/ the best of them. Whether it's in the Keys or in Chicago, this guy is throwing it down nationwide. He appreciates a nice meal, and a nice drink…make your own 6 anyone? Stan n' Joes=S'Faced. From the shores of Lake Michigan to the shores of the Severn this WB can be found putting in work. This guy has distinguished grad written all over him. I have his grad present right here, and he has yours…A Marine by trade, a cash money millionaire by definition. Shawty wanna ride with him? I think so. Please don't stop the music. Cocktails? Pelirojo. Ok, ok baby. She love you long time. You're perfect! He fixes the cable? .... Delay this.

Ryan
McFeely

Best described as a roadway cowboy, that would be Ryan McFeely on his two-wheeled steed (all 5 of them). Never before, and maybe never again, has a male been so comfortable baking bread, counting calories, or gathering groceries. His Midshipman concerns included the San Jose Sharks score, the Mt. Hamilton Road Race, the release date of the next Sierra Nevada seasonal brew, the number of hours of riding left on the bike for the week, and the next Great Harvest bread flavor. Never forget rum-raisin ice cream in DE, gelato in CO, pumpkin cheesecake and porter, and beer die with the TomCatters sophomore summer. Based upon his need for speed his closest friends saw him as a future Jet-Jockey, but, based upon his recent domestication, I guess it makes sense that he wants to fly P-3's. If you're stuck on an island with Ryan, and need to start a long conversation consider: anything San Luis Obispo, San Jose Sharks, Homebrew, California, Beer, SRAM Red, Dura Ace Cranks, or The Trek Bike Store.

Ryan McGeough

Meatpopsicle, Goo, Meatboob Remember Eyock, Bruce Bruce Baby, Hank Hank Baby, Monkey Conversations (Doo-DOO-doo-doo!); Come-ooooonnnnnnnnnnnn! Manly men like us do manly things; Bah-bah-bah-beddy-bah-BAHHHHHH! "In the time of chimpanzees I was a monkey." A Nordic Irishman: God help us. College park viking rampage (beer meet window; window, beer). College park youngster here: a hot mess.

Daniel Mizelle

From "Officers of the Watch Are, Officers of the Watch is..." to "I can take on anyone in this room." 45 Days for a .01 BAC. 17 straight years beating Army with Mikey Low, Matty Wood, Kev Kys, Nelly, CJ, Niekras. Swimming in 60° water and coughing up your lungs. Diving knife accidents in the Dominican Republic. Andrew "Mrs. Mizelle your son is a pimp." "Standard bar scene sir, watch out for the cougars." Bar tender feeding you rum and cokes all before the 11 o'clock show. Machine Ramrod in Boston with "it". Rhabdo. Best of Luck to all.

Justin Moore

J-Mo the Tank. Known by his peers as quiet and soft spoken he is quite possibly the nicest guy in the Brigade. Plebe year "sparked" the desire for his love of Mechanical Engineering. Justin is the only Midshipmen in it's history to hotwire the USS Philo during a spirit mission, drive through T-Court, and get pulled over by the OOW. During Protramid he single handedly saved restriction/bodily harm to his fellow Mids earning him his proclaimed title as the voice of reason. Gave his heart and his knee for flag football, coached his way to the top in softball, and scored a hat trick on the hockey teams' goalie. Lives by the principles of 1. Drop the gloves 2. Catch the jersey. And 3. "Inglewood Jack." He drops loads, Holmes.

Christopher O'Brien

You've seen him in the gym, you've seen him on the shores of the Severn, and you've seen him at Boston Market and Baja Fresh eating a good meal...Tha Rippa, Rip Tide, Rip Current...he will be remembered for his comical approach to any situation and his smart remarks. VBSS inbound, Ensign Rip is on deck so please don't stop the music. Murr'll fix him dinna, and then he'll.... Oh god, oh please. Hittin' Yuts BG. Give him one, and one for the Schmann. Sloppy suckas all around(Goo, Tru, Rico) and Rip is just trying to make it outta this place. First ENS, next LT, then CEO of O'Brien Plumbing company doing work since 1985. He'll be the biggest, the strongest, the richest '08 has to offer, the most distinguished grad. While ya man gunz is asleep, Rip will be manning the .50 cal. Danger near? 'sup dude. Target neutralized by the only strozilla: Tide. He catches the fish, she makes him eat it. Cocktails? ILEA, ILEP. No one can see him.

Andrew Ortega

"Four years together by the Bay where Severn joins the tide, then by the Service called away, we've scattered far and wide; but still when two or three shall meet, and old tales be retold, from low to highest in the Fleet will pledge the Blue and Gold."

Nicole Ramos

From day one: Booty Suit in the Helo Dunker- it was love at first sight. Switched at birth? Maybe... Blue eyed redhead with a brunette/brown eyed mother... Brown/brown with a redheaded blue-eyed mom. We were born close enough together... 2 weeks (okay 1 week 6 days!) and we share enough things in common... hey nice PPC. Oh, you have yours too? Wait... but we're both going SWO? Ah.. bonding in Protramid. Narc'd in Downtown SD... La Jolla... Hostel...Yeah, saw that movie... this cannot end well! 3 pointers and the pool. We're well-rounded athletes! Air hockey, anyone? CLOWN-FACE cannot see because she wore colored contacts in the field. Living large in Dover, DE. Driving to Philly (Zanzibar). How do you wear those overalls? Nice ankle boots! From convicts to Bar mitzvahs, we've been through it all. Never a dull moment (or grammatical error). Foxfields: "I drink from the hose!" We're usually on the same page... just think Ship Selection night. 1 word: CRAIGSLIST ...BLD Ahhh! To Each, His Own!

Nicholas Schwob

Originating from Buffalo, NY, Nick knew he wanted to come to the Naval Academy at a young age, first visiting with his Grandfather in 1st Grade. Growing up in a hockey town "Schwober" scored his way to a 4 year starting spot on the Navy Hockey team which would eventually make him team co-captain while registering over 100 career points. With a rough start to his academic career w/ a CPR greater than or equal to 1.0, he would be a strong candidate for MIP in the academic arena finishing his 1/C year with a CPR of 3.4. A charismatic personality that is impossible to ignore earned him a spot on MTV's "Real World," which he graciously declined to continue his Naval Career and pursue his dream girl. CDN always a tradition. Tiger Woods challenges always accepted, road trips and gong shows never to be forgotten. Crazy SB's with all the right "night moves," Dazed gift shopping, and deep sea fishing. Pensacola is his next destination with new beginnings and new memories to be made.

Jonathan Seals

He is a shining beacon among men. The brightness of his Integrity illuminates the lighthouse of Truth to guide those poor desolate souls from the jagged and perilous shoals of dishonor. Always of stout heart and clear mind, Jonathan "Jay" Seals has been the literal "lee in the stone." Jonathan is the pinnacle of strength and selflessness, he would slay the Leviathan itself if it posed a threat to friend or family. Dependability, responsibility, sternness, dedication, and a light hearted, if not odd, sense of humor are the very foundation of his being. He will be there always to steer the course and take us safely to fair winds and following seas.

John Thomas

Hailing from the city of Ann Arbor, MI, this pilot still wonders why he turned down a full-ride scholarship to the University of Michigan. But for better or worse, the Academy has benefitted from his presence. This high-strung plebe grew to be much more relaxed with time. His personality encompasses a most impressive list of qualities: the nerdiness of Steve Irckle, the musical charisma of Ray Charles and the warrior instinct of Animal Mother. The Navy is blessed to have John as a pilot, a leader, a guide, and I've been blessed to have him as a friend. Keep rocking John.

This "baby-eater" didn't eat meat until I-day. If he wasn't picking up girls with classy tactics such as the drunken low crawl, "I'm vomiting" or "you're wearing sandals," the girls were trying to pick him up with equally classy tactics including "trip up the stairs," "crash my moped," and "your roommate just dumped me so lets make out under the table." Tim could usually be found working out twice a day, or three times if you count getting thrown in the air by your underwear. A true physical specimen, this meathead will excel in the Corps, leading from the front and converting platoons to Crossfit. Rah?

"I would rather put tape over the important buttons." Jumping off the footbridge seemed like a good idea at the time... But at least you have a promising career as a rap star... Roll Out. Chocolate buffets, sushi dates, and RANDOM YouTube videos (Aicha, anyone?). Didn't you pace at least a million PRT's? Spitting game in the SDB's made things interesting- especially with the Norwegian Navy SEAL... did he end up catching the BIV? Isn't that fatal? And just to set the record straight: it was Nic Jesse that cut your forehead open with his rifle.

Clouse

On the night of January 3 the Clouse's family received a robust baby and they named him Nick, who later on will decide to join the Navy and attended to Annapolis. He is going to Pensacola to make a dream come true, to be a Navy pilot and he accomplish this thanks to his hard work and dedication at USNA. Plebe year was not hard at all for him, at least not the physical part since Nick was always in great shape. Yungstar year came and he decided to major in mathematics with honors. Second class year brought the opportunity of a leadership position and Nick stood up and become training sergeant. As a training sergeant he was a fearing trainer and he was always concerned about the plebes doing a great job overall. The next year, firsty year, Nick would hold another leadership position he was the 4th Battalion Safety Officer and the last semester he also held another leadership position at battalion level. One more time he would accomplish a lot of things and it was an excellent experience for him and for the people that he worked with.

During his time at USNA he was part of the Power lifting team and a great intramural warrior, becoming coach many times for many teams like the basketball team on our firsty year. His favorite activities in the USS Bancroft were golf, Mario kart, working out and of course watching the cubs and the bears like a truly Chicago fan. Nick's friends will always remember him as a good, loyal and smart friend. He always brought new ideas and solutions to our group's problems. He was always there when we needed him, in the bad moments and also when it was time to party, travel or to participate in the Debutante Ball and other activities. We know that he will accomplish great things in the future. BZ Nick!

Gerlach

Born the illegitimate love child of Jerry Garcia and the Muppet Gonzo, Jake has demonstrated a tenacious zeal for tie-die, Birkenstocks, and wool socks in Birkenstocks. Mr. Gerlach hails from the great state of Wisconsin and, unbeknownst to his desi girlfriend, is secretly torn between two mistresses: Brett Favre and computers. A miracle of modern medicine, Jake has successfully retained his eyesight despite spending half the day at his computer and the other half outside in a sailboat. When Jake isn't downloading programs to organize his computer desktop, he's cooking delicious Thai food for friends or thinking about how he was volun-told to go submarines. No worries, $15k will fund a lot of commutes to Towson from future duty stations. Expect great things from Jake Gerlach: he will surely make Admiral some day. He'll be easy to spot, with his tie-die v-neck under shirt, volun-telling some nerdy kid to go subs. Hoo-yah.

Ashton
Goldman

From affluent beginnings in Richmond, VA, he came to USNA to be a Pilot. Then, he realized that he was dumb enough to be smart in Chemistry. Undeterred by "SWO choosing him," he begged and pleaded with enough people to let him into the Medical Corps. Though he had no problem telling everyone how cool and tough he was back home, he took every opportunity to take Mids home to meet his friends and party at real colleges. Quick to help others, and always fun in a bar, we'll be seeing him around the Navy as a Doc for a long, long ... long time. From partying like a rockstar with Bon Jovi, getting splinters on the tennis team, or "doing the right thing on honor staff" this mid has shown to be versatile and the loyalest of friends. Finally, Let me first take a moment to thank everyone for the wonderful four years we spent together. While it sucked I am sure we can all say that we got a lot out of it. I will miss everyone dearly and hope to see you all in the fleet.

William
Griffin

Billy "Bobby" Griffin: A true legend in Naval Academy lore. For only being able to utter "Mully, Mully, Mully" during his first three weeks at the Academy, Billy has come a long way. San Francisco, plebe year. Who could forget that one? Billy possessed the most unique sleeping habits known to man his Youngster and 2/C years eventually transferring them to his roommate and developing normal sleep patterns his 1/C year in a successful effort to acquire financial genius. Listening to countless hours of corporations' annual meetings became Billy's new passion as he set a world record for the most hours of business meetings listened to without falling asleep to accompany his record for the most Skittles eaten in 24 hours. In the Spring of 1/C year came "Bill and Ted's Excellent Adventure," a random President's Day weekend trip to London. Six days and 100 pints of real ale later: mission success. "Come on, Charlton!" Fiercely loyal and a friend 'til the end. I like your style, Dude.

Be careful to obey all the law my servant Moses gave you; do not turn from it to the right or to the left, that you may be successful wherever you go. 8 Do not let this Book of the Law depart from your mouth; meditate on it day and night, so that you may be careful to do everything written in it. Then you will be prosperous and successful. 9 Have I not commanded you? Be strong and courageous. Do not be terrified; do not be discouraged, for the LORD your God will be with you wherever you go.'

"Who wants a drink?" From Sloatsburg, NY, though now a resident of Jersey (Exit 18), comes the bartending Blockbuster of 19th Company. "I am NOT a stereotype!" he yells, but no one can understand what he is saying - they are still snickering at his Firebird, Italian good looks, and (blue & gold) jogging suit. With his 200 words-a-minute typing abilities, Shawn and his "ugly twin brother" made the company run. This man has come a long way in four years: two shoulder surgeries, multiple demonstrations of his athletic prowess, one "serious" girlfriend and one Mid (Who knew dark-siding could be so much fun?). His generosity is unparalleled. Descended from a Jewish (ironic) and Asian background (but not where it counts), he was not afraid to give hundreds of movies out every year or give a girl what she wanted because she felt "obligated" to thank him. Being in the military does have its rewards.

Darray Hunt

Mama Rayray can't keep a roommate... are you listening to Tiffany?? "I brought you a fudge brownie from dinner... but I ate it." Remember your adventures to 7-2 while Kip was in the bathroom? Oh wait, no you don't... And big girls don't cry... 8,000 times in a row? "This seat doesn't work for me Coach; it doesn't give me O's." A lesson in Marine Corps communication: open the top of your window during exam week. All of your late night phone calls leave hearts breaking around the country. Stolen pillows, missing cereal, ripped homework... Darrayray's seen it all.

Thomas Jenkins

To the most loyal friend I've ever had: Tommy, not a week has gone by through our 3 years as roommates that you haven't made me shake my head in amazement and/or disbelief. It wasn't until you smashed Mike's phone with the butt of your rifle that I knew we would be great friends. We don't call you Tourette's Tom Jenkins for nothing. I remember your reaction to losing your physics book like it was yesterday. Stories of your incredible skills at long-distance waterballoon launching and mooning a certain company-mate from our hotel room in San Diego will live on for centuries. From your periodic purgings, to doing your laundry once a semester, to your famous inability to make up your mind on service selection, to deciding to go to London with me on a 3 day weekend, rooming with you has been nothing if not exciting. This is a toast to many more nights dropping your last $130 at Ruth's Chris. Thanks for everything buddy. I'll never forget it.

James Kerrigan

When he wasn't washing his face, James could usually be found... well, no one was quite sure. If he wasn't on the road between Annapolis and Pittsburgh, he was either running around in his Easter bunny suit or "Jamesing" elsewhere. One of the hairiest mids around, his man coat was comfortable and luxurious except on his face where it necessitated 15 minute shaving sessions at 1230 before bed. He'll do great in the Corps, but watch out, we heard Groundskeeper Willie wants his abs back. And we know Kat won't let him forget: "real women don't have hot flashes, they have power surges"

Christopher Legere

The third time is a charm, as Chris found when the Academy finally let him in. Lucky for us he was '10's training sergeant and not ours! Everyone's favorite yenta, champion of long road trips, he's the only person I've ever met who regularly takes his shirt off to answer nature's call. Beer pong tables in College Park still show this Sooner's feelings about Texas - feelings always made stronger by a double Jameson on the rocks. Hopefully by the time this is read, his quest will be over and he won't need to drive two hours at one in the morning for a session "in the window." Truly a servant leader, his Marines will be well led and well served. Just don't ask if you see him in tighty-whities, black leathers, and motivated socks.

Luis

Meza

Mi scuuusi!! Luis was always one of the cheeriest people in the 19th Company from day one. Luis came a long way through his time at the Naval Academy- from "But I do not understand, sir…" on day one to a nearly full-fledged Peruvian American. Football games (Notre Dame?), Debutante Ball weeks, LASC and Foreign Midshipmen Club, limo ride and birthday nights, Latin Palace, Spring Break 08, visits with Latinos and Spaniards, Shakira, Intramural Futbol, and of course- Navy Field mastery. Peruvian officer his entire last semester in Annapolis, Luis struggled a lot less with schoolwork (never, it seemed) than most American students taking the same courses. Luis Meza will find his calling and is surely destined for greatness. Naval Attaché, Peruvian Chief of Naval Operations, Presidente, Dictator of Peru? Only time will tell… Luis will be missed, but he will always have a home back in the United States.

David Pagan

From the rainy Pacific Northwest comes the boy who was destined to be a sailor. Some say that saltwater runs in his veins and that he's on a first name basis with King Neptune. All we know is… he's called "The Shoe." Drafted? By the NFOs? Say it ain't so. You never know when life is going to throw you a curve or three. All you can do is take it one earth-shattering crisis at a time. Here's to the Fantastic FO's of "The Hangar," to the SWOs of the Squadron, and to 18 brave souls who took the Tow Tank Plunge. There's nothing wrong with going to sleep earlier every night than a grandfather. I would never have made it without Elysia, Shawn, Christina and Manny. "Well, all I'm saying is that I want to look back and say that I did the best I could while I was stuck in this place. Had as much fun as I could while I was stuck in this place. Played as hard as I could while I was stuck in this place." Goodbye USNA…I will see you again…

Khalia Peters

What's your favorite color Peters? "I fell out…" Wait, where did you fall? What a painful transition from Khalia to KP to Kip… "Send it on! Forward it to someone else!!"… "No way, I'm not going to perpetuate the ridiculousness"… "See, that's how you and I are different." Remember the commitment to good style. One of the founding members of the Velocal Raptor Appreciation Society. He's your best boy right? Your BEST boy. Chocolate Buffet 'til we puke… "Do you need me to get black on them for you?" The nothing fight… "I don't even like jelly... What even is jelly...?" Oh- and by the way, if Linda wants a party, we can certainly arrange a party for her.

Rodolfo Rodriquez

Rudmeyer Hoffer. Pure charisma: 7' tall when he stands on his wallet. Bold adventurer: from the icy cliffs of Alaska to tequila sunrises in Spain, with a few solos to Paris and London, Randy conquered the world. Glorious football trips and Michigan chicks; Claire was a good choice; the V-Vault lived up to its name. Mysterious disappearances from 1 to 2 every night. Can you imagine, can you conceive? Epic racquetball battles and long, long runs. Faithful patron of the night shift; no one liked whipped cream more: what a finale! Check Engine Light on but it's only 1,000 miles to Florida; love those oil cans! But we were the masters of free drinks; I lost count at a hundred. Bon Jovi groupies and a Ritz-Carlton penthouse party. Deb Balls and Kennedys and dirty hotel rooms; I-Balls and Germans: it was all classy. It has always broken hearts, but Rudy doesn't play favorites. Randomness and everywhere: no one did it better.

Michael Scott

What's a Marine's favorite hotel? The Hy-UTTTTT! Mikey, it's been 4 years now, minus the semester when Busta took your place. From nailing Koski not once or twice, but 3 times with waterballoons, to critiquing the spelling of Rudy "threw" Rodriguez, we've enjoyed some great times. Where to begin though? I mean, you were the only one of us who had a "real firstie year." After all, you got paid to go cool places, meet cool people, and party like a rockstar! But really, someday you'll have to teach us how you somehow always ended up being in the right place at the right time and meeting the craziest of people, from Bon Jovi to Ross Perot. Me, I think it was that same debonair smile and faux innocence that drove all the ladies crazy. Remember, as you go off into the world, if you're ever in doubt, just ask yourself WWTTJD. Love you buddy.

Rachel Tarbox

From her harried entrance to our room only 5 minutes before the Oath of Office Ceremony on I-Day, Rachel's time at the Academy has been whirl-wind. "Work hard, play harder," has been "Civilian Tarbox's" motto, as she impressed everyone by working her way onto the Varsity soccer team and on into a varsity sweater and then celebrated with a memorable plebe year Bucknell MO, youngster shenanigans at The Latrine (free the restrictees!), a little too much fun 2/c summer (?), barhopping in DTA, and, of course, Mangia's pizza. As long as we didn't talk to her before first period, Rachel always had a smile, a ready laugh, and a reason to party. A good teammate, a great friend, and an even greater roommate, Rachel is sure to fit in in the Aviation community, where she will be sure to take her carousing to soaring heights. Love you, don't forget to give us a call now and then! - Kari and Mal

"So hoist our colors, hoist them high, and vow allegiance true, so long as sunset gilds the sky above the ocean blue, unlowered shall those colors be whatever fate they meet, so glorious in victory, triumphant in defeat."

Kari Marie Weniger

Oh, Kari. What do you say about the girl that's got it all? From her all-star moves on the soccer field (becoming Captain firstie year), to her 4.0 semesters, to her friendly and engaging personality (resulting in many free drinks and pictures with strangers), Kari was always quite the role model - whether for girls on the soccer team, the Riffle kids, Kilo Company plebes, or even her own roommates. No matter how many awards she won on the soccer field or in the classroom, though, she always knew how to cut back and have a good time, hosting a raucous Deb ball in her sunny Florida home, a 21st Birthday Decathlon with party bus, and, ever the organizer, leading fun trips to bowl games and around Annapolis. We hope Mayport realizes how lucky they are to get our most caring and thoughtful best friend and roommate, although somehow we think if we asked Kari what she really wants to do next, she'd say, "I'm going to Disney World!" Love you! – Mal and Rach

Gene Wentz

Mike aka "The Hampster" began his Naval career as a proud member of the plebe summer 1-9-4 and then spent 2 years with a trio of outlaws in 4305 with the late MAD DAWG. Room motto: "Let it Ride!" Ridiculous late night genetics/MD vs Ohio vs Texas arguments. Cover battles with Gerlach; "You're ruining it!" Who can forget getting Cinco'd for 5 at Brockport. Connoisseur of McDoogs and always working the nightshift (champagne room). Veteran member of the MO team from JMU to Ohio. Played Brian Fantana on the infamous speeding ticket riddled OU MO. Logged many hours becoming a master PUA in Annapolis. "2 cool dudes?" Late night wardroom runs, pillaged and plundered. 21st birthday 3 wiseman shots. Retro shiny shirts at Sugars will get them every time, JT's conquest may still be framed at the whiskey for years to come. To sum up the endless memories, Corey Smith says it the best: "If I could do it again, I'd do it the same" –PCB '08. STAY THE COURSE.

Mallory Wright

Mal Dog! Malibator! MalMal! malORY! Who can forget the random dance moves, nights on the town, and the love pineapple! After 4 years of searching and the avoidance of numerous online "boos," she finally found a "Mr. Wright." If only Wickersham would have known the extent of his joke. She has excelled at everything she has done, dabbling in women's lax, dominating the academic rigors, enriching the Writing Center, enlivening her "nerd" class, and becoming the #1 NWS fan! Her studious persona is delicately balanced with a carefree attitude that allows her to "go with the flow" and survive a demanding 4 years by the Bay. Her idiosyncratic thoughts always enlightened those around her with a different point of view. An optimist, Mallory brightened room 4360 (the penthouse). A true friend, in every meaning of the word. Late night convos about boys, different annoyances, and the meaning of life will never be forgotten. She truly embodies an officer and a lady. My lady! Love, Rach and Kari

Battle

Michael Kevin Battle arrived at Navy ready to be transformed into an officer. Instead Navy simply reinforced the attributes he brought with him. He spent more time in Mac-D than in class, more time off than in Mac-D and every other spare moment fine tuning his cuisine and upping his tolerance. Despite his membership at the Fleet Reserve, Mike made sure everyone knew the importance of healthy eating and through various army weeks and kind-natured pranks (on Mike) we all learned the true nature of retaliation–Mike's complete and total lack of sense of equal response. Our fearless CC never minced words, but went to bat for us every time we needed him all the while finding time to sharpen his bright and shining smile (often used on questionable targets). Fiercely loyal and always ridiculous--in spite of some, but most notably because of these qualities, Battle will undoubtedly go forth, excel and serve his country and Corps with honor. -CHR

Benbow

Part of the five year plan, Mark 2, Mod 0 Benbow quickly found a way to make the Academy only last two years. Three part level four painkiller, one part argument with the girlfriend, and a headbutt to the ladderwell seemed to do the trick. Highlighted by being part of the King's Bay 11, visits to the Moose's Tooth, and almost going to war against Chile during an epic 6 man adventure, Benbow's academy tour was less than ordinary. A proud supporter of the entire sailing team, frozen hot dogs, and guitar hero, he can now play Kansas acoustic. Mile high club I think not, but hey… don't forget the 20th Co. wardroom.

Jodi Biermann

Whether it is a midnight raid of the fridge, or a night at the fleet reserve club you can be sure that Jodi will bring good times, lots of laughs, and a touch of drama to the party. She is "most def" one of the cool kids with more friends than she can keep track of (most of them good-looking gentlemen). Yet, she somehow managed to pull a ton of stripes for both semesters and plebe summer. They never even had to relieve her of her duty.

Brett Copare

Hailing from dirty jersey DonVito will always be remembered as the legend. A vital part of soccer team but was always cutting it close with the coaches. His one career goal was an instant youtube classic. B Nasty. No matter where he went he was sure to dominate whether it be a packed acme or an empty dock street he could always be found on the dance floor grindin. If he wasn't downtown he probably snuck home for the weekend to change his oil or to see one of his Rutgers girls. Always could mack it. If you couldn't find him in a crowd all you had to do was listen because he frequently lost the ability to talk and would just scream. Threw up in the CDOs room as a plebe. Jumpin. Dominate Conman on Zero Block YP's. Jersey/Tattoo night downtown. Summer cruise hook up in San Diego. Best 21st birthday performance ever. "Is it leather or pleather?" Of course the tipping covers night which led to his delayed departure.

Phillip Foster

Hailing from the unknown part of the South; complaining of the cold even though its 50 degrees out; constantly needing surgery; having the unfortunate luck of being able to find every pothole, car, or rail to impede his PRT, yet overcame and passed; requiring more surgeries in a year than most need their whole lives; constantly needing liquor to get drunk, since no amount of beer will do the job; wearing Crocs with almost anything and thinking it's fashionable; meeting German Au Pairs in Mangia's; being a Mech E major and coming out on top; backwards thinking for choosing subs since aviation was too hard.

Jason Geddes

"Four years together by the Bay where Severn joins the tide, then by the Service called away, we've scattered far and wide; but still when two or three shall meet, and old tales be retold, from low to highest in the Fleet will pledge the Blue and Gold."

Brian Gleason

"Now colleges from sea to sea - May sing of colors true, - But who has better right then we - To hoist a symbol hue? - For sailors brave in battle fair - Since fighting days of old, - Have proved a sailor's right to wear - The Navy Blue and Gold."

Elizabeth Hall

If you asked lizhall what her finest character traits were, she would probably respond with her trademark shrug. In fact, that might be the response to a lot of questions you posed to this fun-loving, easy-going Penn Stater at heart (the Corps wants you bleeding Red and Gold, not Blue and White now, Liz!) Liz's ability to roll with the punches and keep fighting–literally in some cases, with the semi-regular end of week wrestling "de-stress" sessions 2/C year–is unrivaled, but her trademark shrug covers deep convictions about what is right, a sense of duty (most remarkable in her tenure as 2nd Reg adjutant and the race back to the wedge from the middle of the parade deck at "Guides, Post!"), and a character of gold. She has taught me much about friendship, what the word "relax" means, life, and Guinness (although Liz will tell you that the last two are synonymous.) Semper Fi- see you in the woods. CET

Lee
Haney

Lee Haney came to Navy to be a Marine and left a commissioned 2nd Lt. Along the way, we all came to know well the Man, the Myth, the Megamouth. Once we found a way to see past his extraordinarily large head, we saw a loud, smart, incredibly personable character with a smile that could melt any girl (or metrosexual). Yes--Haney's grooming standards were introduced to us all with the 5:45 am 30 minute showers, endless hair care and skin products, and non-stop body shaving. His wardrobe impeccable, his unannounced trips to NYC always ended well despite the room never knowing he left. From Lee's corner of the room he could be heard impersonating The Todd Time or blaring Snoop Dogg and Tupac (w/ singing). The ruckus always ended by 8:15 pm because the man needs his beauty rest. Hobbies include recounting USC days of old, quote-books, intelligent discourse, Thucydides and Siddhartha, the USMC Field Manual, and reminding us just how great he is. Good luck, go forth and do great things- 4402

Anders
Holmstrom

Anders, the Ders, the Doctor of Journalism, Bjorn: The Holmstrom began the walk through his forefathers' footsteps here four short years ago but undoubtedly has left his own path to be followed. All who know him take forward the marks he has made in various ways: unquestionably new and increased musical tastes, better understanding of 'good' movies and books, more appreciation for (but most likely increased animosity towards) New England teams, chess, pitch-playing (5-5-5 included), late-night critical thinking and forming all beliefs simply from the search for truth. Ders has managed to leave these marks with few words, many drinks, and always with the help of his guitar. As he battled EE right to graduation, he has still managed time for the lighter sides of writing, photo shoots, Indian videos, burning bands and defining the finer points of intelligent discourse. His future paths are sure to be as influential as those he leaves on the Severn--CHR

Reed
Mackenzie

Did they get your picture right this time around? Whether you called him Reedo in a Speedo, Giggles or Sise, odds are you had the pleasure of knowing this guy. We went from stealing armbands to sneak into the I-Ball to traveling cross country to see the Texans. How about your 21st birthday in NYC when you found a new "roommate" and almost had the old one sleep on the street. Or the following year when you got "seasick" during your Boats Exam. Then there was the time you went to Moe's to get a burrito and woke up hung over on your floor (Insert: Pussers Shot Challenge, getting kicked out of Griffins and salsa dancing in the Chesapeake Room). Ah yes, and the ladies... Mrs. Hawaii, your love for water sports, Halloween in DC with your Trophy Wife, backflippin' Cheerleaders from Montana, Canadians in the Bahamas, the overlap at GWU, your Christmas present in Ohio, breaking that poor girl's table at Princeton and staying in shape for the SEALs by getting chased by all the midshipwomen.

Chelsea Metheny

Chelso Chelso... So sleepy... well in the morning at least. Known for being quiet, but always seemed to say worthwhile things. Seemed to be always proactive instead of procrastinating till the last minute like the rest of us. Could work hard but still make time for friends and good times...Croquet Match. If you needed to someone to talk to, she was always there, and ready to give wanted advice.

Victoria Moore

Victoria Elizabeth Moore keeps it real...If peace corps was a service selection, Vicki would jump on that ship in a second. She is a product of the Navy/Marine Corps team- SWAH!! Down to earth, a true friend, and a nerd at heart, Vicki epitomizes what it means to be both modest and successful. Good thing she studies as much as she watches Sex and the City! Running around in circles in skimpy clothing, she has captured our hearts. Nerding out on the third deck of Michelson many a late night, she always impressed us with her javascipt skills. Too bad she can't march in step. Big Vic is also a top notch snuggler! She hopes to one day live on Porter Rd and change her name to Moorehouse. Saint T, yea! For a good time, poor decision making is a must and if it's not fun, why do it? You earned it Vicki, take on the world!

Sarah Newport

"Now colleges from sea to sea - May sing of colors true, - But who has better right then we - To hoist a symbol hue? - For sailors brave in battle fair - Since fighting days of old, - Have proved a sailor's right to wear - The Navy Blue and Gold."

Carey Owens

For most people there is that line of propriety that they will not cross...Carey is that guy standing way on the other side waving back at you with a huge smile on his face. A person could not ask for a better roomate, or a better friend. Good luck in the future Carey!

Andrew Penman

Andy Penman - friend of gerbils everywhere. The loudest quiet person ever. This boy from the heartland became the greatest football player on the crew team, ever. He might be going spec war but his true passion is sleuthing. Got a mustard stain on your shirt? Andy probably knows more about the sandwich you ate than you do. He can also cut a rug as depicted above. It seems that woman's glasses have a transforming power on him or at least they did at ring dance. Above all Andy is a philosopher and so we close with some of his great words of wisdom. At 6:00am before the Harvard race he prophetically said: "Man, we better beat these guys--- I really wanna drink some beers tonight." And at 5:00 am before the Princeton race: "I can think of seven reasons why we need to beat these guys--- seven and seven reasons!" Yeah we won both those.

Christopher

Renninger

CRen, the notorious golfer and MacD-baller from the Capitol City is loud, athletic, immediately charismatic, and way smarter than you. Steel traps wish they had minds like Chris. No one would guess the 4.0-Trident, Med Corps-select and captain of the golf team arrived as a no-name walk-on barely slipping by admissions. As his numerous friends will tell you, an admirable disgust for both nonsense and ignorance drives his straightforward and humorous character. With a hearty and contagious laugh he tells it like it is, especially when he treats rum like oxygen. This is why he's great with the ladies. Hobbies (other than golf and b-ball) include shouting, underwear workouts, kid movies, gin-buckets, vaporizing food, high-fives, quote-booking, eggiweggs, biographies, banana fights, eye-straightening experimentation, beirut/ flip-cup taunting, working the belly, fighting and loving the Tommy, burning 4420, and being the man. And let's not forget, he's a vampire ya'll. -Ders

Andrew Tucker

Andrew Tucker: the twentieth company mystery. He had a tendency to bend the rules, but only get caught for the stupid ones. No one knows what actually happened in that physics lab, and that CMOD may be permanently emotionally scarred, but Andrew's shocking personality was usually enough to escape any sort of permanent harm. He spent more time doing youngsters' physics than doing his own during firstie year, but still found time to pick up friends from the middle of nowhere at odd hours of the morning. Somewhat shady, but loyal to the end.

Matthew Wiggins

Matty Wigg, known for his awkward humor and addicting personality, he could make any situation a laughing affair. So serious on the job but a jokester at heart. Plebes of 20 could never figure him out... bipolar... Patrick Bateman? Not necessarily the most tactful person but he always made sure everyone was taken care of... including John Owens.

Miranda Wisherd

So hoist our colors, hoist them high, and vow allegiance true, so long as sunset gilds the sky above the ocean blue, unlowered shall those colors be whatever fate they meet, so glorious in victory, triumphant in defeat.

Elizabeth Wrona

Elizabeth! I liked you ever since you gave me that left-handed salute over plebe summer! Hanging out with you is so much fun because we agree on so many things. The ridiculousness of "cut it into fourths," or "Yay!! Repeat hills!" At least we are finally done with the excuse – "I can't, I have track." I am glad we could finally figure out the Salisbury conference together – even if we were lost for a while. Invites to parties over spring break, only to discover you are in the photo shoot for Dateline NBC! KART scandals, jumping high, finishing a bottle of Baileys isn't possible for just one person??? Double bagging your groceries is very important! The secret society of belly buttons... Get ready for Pensacola, it's going to be a blast. Speaking of blasts, watch those chem. beakers! Never forget what you have engraved in your ring. Liz, what we always liked about you is that everyone always knows where they stand with you – and you have been a steadfast friend for the last four years!

Douglas Andrade

Doug. Doog. Douglet. Built Ford Tough. He's got 10 shirts, but only wears one. Lobster thief. Doug's favorite past time, swimming across the Severn in the middle of winter "for fun." Doug- "Let's do a shot!" Everyone else- "Of what?" Doug- "Jim Beam, what else?!" A man of patience. Texas Pete. A man that when everyone is scared to do it, will do it. How big was she, Doug? Bear hunter. I'm drunk, I need to run an outer. UUHHH... Mini-Buds Screener = Laughing = Extra logs. Constant upside-down door-plate. Thinks a sink is a washing machine. Doug is a man that gets the job done. He will make a great Naval Officer and will always be there for his men, the same way he has always been there for us in 21st Company.

Carl Beierl

Carl Crites, the Marine Pilot from New Hampshire (but really from Virginia) who by the grace of the AcBoard became an engineer - generally speaking, of course. "Hey Carl, where are you going to retire?", "Somewhere near the water", "Nope, you're retiring in Ohio, according to CINCHOME." Can't say as I've ever met someone who could out insomniac me and then proceed to sleep all day on a Tuesday. Think of all of those quarters formations skipped - thanks to Starbucks at night. "Carl, it's time for breakfast; I mean lunch." And who could forget the all-nighters for Prof. Deng's papers? "Hey Roomie, did you start Deng's paper yet?", "Nah, not yet...", "Yeah, I think I'm going to start it at 11pm". I never met someone nearly as accident-prone, between gung fu, adventure racing, rock climbing, wake boarding, and life in general there was always some quirky injury. Best of luck Roomie! You and Amanda are gonna to be great, but never forget, I'm still in the bullpen!

Samuel Chase

"Now colleges from sea to sea - May sing of colors true, - But who has better right then we - To hoist a symbol hue? - For sailors brave in battle fair - Since fighting days of old, - Have proved a sailor's right to wear - The Navy Blue and Gold."

Showing up to Charlie company Plebe Summer because you though it went by last names. Love.doc. What do you mean I have to screw the gas cap back on.. I'm from Jersey. Pasties in the shower. Congrats. 50 yr old man. She's definitely nutty and more then just a little bit elusive but we love her more everyday. Good luck and soar high, just take a friend with you when you go out please! Tomorrow's going to be tots.

Kristen Connor

The first word on page 152 of reef points. Where are my socks? "I hate Chinese Food... why do we have to go to Chinatown." What's with all the Canadians? First one fried in the company. " The cops are coming...this is what we train for!" Talking during parade = company restriction. Abc.com. Living in your stuff. Talking on the phone to your mother. Emailing the Commandant. From Ac-Boards to 4.0. Writing papers the night before. Sleeping to showered to dressed in less than 2 min. You're never late but you're never on time. Throwing stuff at Emily to get her attention. Drunk Camping. 30 minutes from 4-0 to 6-0. Dominican husband. You are going to be a great SWO... Scorpions with Jackie. Shanequa don't live here no more. The firstie chair. Her hard work and dedication really paid off in the end, and we will surely miss her. Kristen is a great roommate and friend who can always provide a laugh, a hug, or a knowing look. Remember, tomorrow's going to be tots.

Emily Cormack

Sonic the Hedgehog. rifle range on fire. Self Sufficient Monkey. Semester of Silence. Dueling Banjos in Goat Court. Greenport. Company restriction thanks to Kristen. Living in Kristen's stuff. Catchphrase. Grease car.. my balls. There is no theory of evolution. Just a list of animals Don Nelson allows to live. "Oh for Pete's sake." Brushing teeth by the numbers. I have overactive saliva glands! Freezing M&M's. She always had something to say, good and sarcastic, and we will miss that. She was an awesome roommate and an even better friend. As we always say: "Tomorrow's going to be tots."

Bradley Correa

YELDARB, Bard-Tard, Tripod among so many... Started his time off as a blower not a beater, at B&G with the announcement "Shipmates, I was caught looking at..." Two beers and 21 days of restriction later, always setting the perfect example. Picked up smoking the Cowboy Killers, a rebel to the end. Coming out with "The hardest thing in the world is telling your parents..." Hibernated most of Firstie year between Aero and attempting English while forever damning Chinese. The ultimate wingman, he'll throw himself on ANY grenade. Meeting his stalker the big bad Upchurch, never made it to that prom. Snuffuloffagous and L.G., rocking out at the Ring Dance. Never can stop smiling. Tom Kazanski has nothing on you. You're going to be the best Pilot ever and always a brother to the end.
-SAJ

Little Italy love notes. Emily finding hidden treasure. "Love you the mostest and I win." San Fran Love. Running in the rain. Feeding the ducks. You may have studied a lot but you were still always ready for a good time and lots of laughs. We won't wish you good luck because you don't need it, but keep having fun and don't forget everything 4030 taught you. Tomorrow's going to be tots so make the most of it!

Andrew Dobson

"So hoist our colors, hoist them high, and vow allegiance true, so long as sunset gilds the sky above the ocean blue, unlowered shall those colors be whatever fate they meet, so glorious in victory, triumphant in defeat."

Denny East

Do you know who I am? I am Denny East, Brigade Boxing Champ! Plebe Summer Madam. Jim Beam. I'm a changed a man. 1st Quarter Company Commander. Search and Rescue Swimmer that can't swim. I'm gotta be a Blue Angle pilot for that old lady at the beach. Damn Yankees. I'm not a redneck, just a country boy. God Bless Chris LeDoux! D-E-N-I. Golfing = turtle stalking. There are good and bad examples of leadership, let me be your bad example! Our own salty Senior Chief and dirty prior. Shot down in a Blaze of Glory. You only live once. A hard worker, great friend, good to his Candice, and a proud patriot who will make his family and friends proud serving our country as a Naval Aviator. O God, give us grace to accept with serenity the things that cannot be changed, courage to change the things which should be changed, and the wisdom to distinguish the one from the other -Serenity Prayer

John Fahy

On this one...From Phoenix to Annapolis, and back again at every chance; Over 8000 miles, 300 erg hours, and 1200 showers; sonic death monkey, 3V (straight 4), RV, 2V; Fahey, who started that?; grand finals and thE finals; RD 007; Spring breaks on the snowy Severn, Welcome to Miami; sinking boats and seeing a coke machine; early mornings after late nights. Did you know this is flammable?; clothing optional; what is a formation?; nice sideburns, shipmate; you won't believe what I just dreamt. Lots of friends, even more memories, no regrets. Aught Eight, Reestablishing Dominance, on and off the water. Goodbye, Hyman. One more... way enough.

Michael Fernandez

It all started during Plebe Summer. Sitting in your chair, not moving, for 30 min. during personal time progressed into hours of playing video games every night during the Ac year. There are too many memories: Not getting enough to eat during Plebe Summer, Cannon Ball run, "Big Fish", high fiving cops in New Orleans, Emerald Bowl, South Padre, "I'm going to Iraq soon...", Brock's graduation party, Topher and Thomas J as roommates, Donde esta el mate?, the "bomb", crapberries on Jack's floor, road rage, the Big Fish challenge, YP's in Philly, Protraparty, Tours de Franzia, Crab Pretzels at Davis Pub, Notre Dame, Intramural flag football champs, Danno's sponsors, visits from St. Emilio & Maria, Tourette's Guy, Ronnie Millsap, and being the proudest member of the Comma Club. The list could go on and on. You've had a great four years and the great times aren't ending here.

Daniel Gibbons

Danno, Shipmate Gibbons, Mosaicos, Reflejos. Who is that new guy in our company? Oh I heard he got in trouble. I'm a corpsman, I can help. I'll tell you what I'm not going to do... The freshman. Youngster year parties, hair gel, California, and linen pants. Sierra Mike and the near trifecta. Mike Charlie and Mike Hotel. One of you should go dance with her. Rock, Paper, Selena. DJ Gibbo and kevbrod in 4038. Post PRT races. Good morning techno music. Dan, would you please turn down your bass? Dan you must have a lot of work this week because you are dipping again. Western Caribbean Cruise. St. Thomas had to be the one of the best weeks of our lives, especially with those blue drinks. We will definitely make it down there again. Good luck with your career and Semper Fidelis.

Tebin Glebus

THTRG took the journey across the bay from the eastern shore, and the Academy was never the same again. After a year of serving his country as a proud member of the Phi Delta Theta 'frat'ernity (No , I wouldn't call my country that), the schlag-dog made the jump to the big leagues. Uncertainty marked his entrance, but after a brief flirtation with Tango and surviving daily editions of the Glebus Game, Tebin (still covered in Tomato Soup) and his lil' chub charged into the AcYear. The Hash, blessed the whole company with his best dance moves at the Dining Out. "Thank you for fornicating with the floor". The ACLU card, saluting in Dahlgren and the Army week swirly all became relics of Plebe year. Tebin quickly found his calling in the honor world, where he dove in head first and came to the surface a four striper (just like the 10 meter jump). No one will ever forget Birthday ball, the walk of shame in the middle of C-town and the unforgettable JK. With 15GB to keep him company, Glebus, became the most recognized name in the Brigade. His commitment to his friends is second to none, and all who know him will always speak of his tremendous commitment to personal integrity and unyielding friendship.

Tyler Grell

MAH CORN! Couldn't hold it in during the Plebe summer PRT. "Is there an IC2 Dicks here?" Listening to Breaking Benjamin every day and falling asleep to Taylor Swift. Using bowling alley wax on the floor Plebe year and watching Tebin nearly kill himself trying to come in the room. You would rather look at airplanes than Playboy. Pitchers at the Fleet. Grandpa Grell, Squirrel Grell. Don't tell me my business, Devil Woman. Shirlena! Nice Price!

Brian Hamilton

I believe in taking care of myself and a balanced diet and rigorous exercise routine. Patrick Bateman. From the Midwest, via Simsbury and the USS Bancroft, to the decks of the mighty USS John S. McCain, ENS select Hamilton has trained vigorously for strategic nuclear missile defense. First to the aviators, then to the legal surface warfare officers. Year one: Papa Johns Pro Quiz Sundays. Homecoming Dance. ChowCall Coin Toss. Libo in the church. "Beautiful city." Youngstar: Destruction of DC RC Bathroom. Goatcourt play. Abandoned by Steve. Hailing from the great mountains of New Hampshire, Steve Janco quickly became the resident meathead of 21st company. He looks back fondly to his time at the academy- JANCO, JANCO, JANCO, Ben & Jerry's, playing with mousetraps, Kelly's Wife, Sleeping in the DC Closet, Cell in the pool, Exploding desk, Doug and the Mini-BUD/S Log, Blue Falcon, Air Force Commendation Medals, and his amazing CC speaking (T_He). Astonishingly, he recovered from a semester at Air Force to become the 21st company commander. Steve was a part of the 2% club with Kelly all the way through, actually becoming engaged to her on seven different occasions at formation since youngster year. His love of beach runs in boots and UDT shorts led him to service select SEALS. Good luck buddy, it's been an amazing 4 years.

From Tennessee, Texas and Jersey Alan began his illustrious career from the get go with devious plans for our summer cadre WC. His time at the Academy was spent compiling new members to his infamous "list" from the shack. 2/3 of his second loan was spent at the Fleet Reserve, Chipotle, and replacing his iPods and phone chargers. His desire of being a Navy SEAL was unfortunately cut short and in turn Subs is where he decided to call home. He might be the first Sub officer to venture to "Paris" since WWII. A womanizer at heart often using the pick up line "Chief Crazy Eyes", Alan never discriminated in his choices, welcoming all including "the Claw." His squad selection continued this trend with SH and AM, promoting professionalism in all aspects. Alan also became a frequent visitor of the CDC due to his general cleanliness. Long Islands, Bacardi 151 in Iceland, NYC and Philadelphia visits, "No No you're hurting me" "He's just a boy, you shouldn't have done that!" Bish-Baw!

Andrew Stoner

The scent of lemon pledge marked the arrival of the Stone Bone along the shores of the Severn. Plebe summer brought forth days with the Stud and meal times with Bennie. "Stoner, did you shower?!" A mack truck and a few hundred bottles of milk later, Plebe year was nothing more than a memory. As the 6 year journey towards graduation moved forward, Stoner managed to continue his pursuit of hygienic perfection. "It was the cleanest I've ever seen." 24/7 alpha ready closets really brought the ladies in youngster year. Snowballs will get you punched in the face. 24 hour sleep-a-thons in the cave at 16 Polo Ct. and card games with the neighborhood dads was just a small part of sponsor life. The 4 mode transportation adventure to Baltimore, Goldschlager, 30 rack of Miller Lite and Johns Hopkins will never be the same. Birthday ball, and the infamous funnel incident, complete with pictures and a ruined game of Wolfenstein. The bathroom of choice will always be on 6-0, just not where most would think. Two words: sub draft. The aviation community is blessed to have the finest leader I have ever met and most dedicated friend and roommate in the fleet. You will achieve all you set your one track mind to!

Aaron Stroble

The pride of the Dahran oil fields, Shipmate Stroble truly invented the DoD's version of the reverse commute. It's said that submariners are statistically more likely to come from broken homes, so it was fitting when this future undersea warrior was orphaned by his sponsor at the tender and vulnerable age of a Youngstar–and a Young-Star he was! A future leader in engineering and savior of the endangered black duck, Aaron found compassion in a cruel world on the magnet–he made mission every time. Contrast: Army Navy 2004 v. New Year's 2007 Looking Back: "Don't listen…keep your heart rate down." Set condition dog zebra! A pro quiz and a pizza. Deployments on the American Dream. "Good Night Brian…" Zone inspection tears. ENS worshipers. FB wars. "One on deck...ALL on deck." Mental defense mode. Battle of the wits. "Not on ENS pay." "What a beautiful cover." Looking forward: Man v. the Sea… Good luck and HUNT DEEP! PS about never failing a room inspection, "Bravo, Sir!" PPS Nice Hair!

John Vine

Hails from the Floridian city of Tampa. Skipper of plebe summer Coast Guard Cutter. Transfer to Florida? Could usually be found chatting via AIM with a plethora of members of the opposite sex while lounging naked in either 4031, 6031, 6014 or 6013. Washington College and Birthday Ball, John Hopkins and PJ's. Carnival Triumph 2006. Block party in Edgewater. NAFAC Director. Aspiring politician. There was a 75% chance that an article of his uniform belonged to the Bone. Enjoyed alpha'ing the room in the buff. Nearly completed the iron triangle. Loves the breeders. Sierra Hotel and the basement. Intramural football all star. Morning quarters? Reveille at 0800. The Court. Trips to Newport. EOL was whenever he got back. Most forgiving person I have ever known. Jack, whenever our paths cross I recommend not trying to keep pace. Best of luck in aviation and keep giving them hell.

Lydia VonGohren

Where do we start with Lydia? "Let's just say that the boys from the county were wrong." You could always link Lydia with two things. D&B and Chem. You could always find Lydia somewhere in the pit at football games and everything else. And who could forget as everyone in company was getting brutalized by Plebe Chem that Lydia was loving life. "How was your day today, Lydia?", "Great! I had Chem Lab today!". Lydia was also always vertically challenged - many times during Plebe year you could find her standing on anything she could (including Colleen) to get that extra boost. And every time Lydia would talk smack, it was necessary to point out that she should get a box so that she was at least at chest level. Best of luck out there Lydia! -Tebin & Rocky

Todd
Barriger

Taddley B-Michigan's hairless boy-wonder came to the Naval Academy a storied athlete looking for greatness on the biggest, little-guy football program in the nation. What he found was southern discomfort, web cams, cocoons, 'hey baby' talks, facebook magic and ticking biological clocks. Made the grades despite a nude roomie, a wombat companion, summer filled with nights at the cabin, fishing, frog hunting with shotguns, one good leg and phantom police encounters. Spring break, 24 obsessions, Prison Break, Pisco sours and stolen fingernails were cured with Peruvian IV's, and grilled cheese. Turns out football receivers double as tangerine quarterbacks, ice-tea pitchers and blowgun sharpshooters. Through the sleepless nights and sleepful days, you've been a loyal friend and an understanding roommate. You have always kept us guessing, and you've managed to make even the most menial of tasks fun. You're the best friend anyone could ask for, and we're grateful to know you.

Andrew
Bock

Discovered on I-day that he was not in Kansas anymore, Andrew finished plebe summer as a member of the infamous Bock-Bach-Miller All-stars, after Mom had and Dad gave him another brother; Tommy. Blessed with sponsors who liked to fish, Andrew relaxed by fishing and shooting pistol. After 2 frustrating years, said "Screw this, I'm moving to Canada!" and proceeded to take a semester off on exchange to RMC, where he majored in Rugby, beer-ups, and correct usage of "eh?" Returned in culture shock to become "That guy" wearing medals AND ribbons. Would be rich if he got a nickel for each 'Yes Senior, I rate these. Here are the regulations.' Scrambled to catch up on all the classes and fun he had missed while in Canada. Captain of the pistol team, attended the Olympic Trials for Air pistol, and led the USNA Team to Undefeated National Champions. Having hit nearly every target in his Academy stay, Andrew is bound for the Marine Corps, to shoot more than just paper targets.

Taylor
Brashear

TBizzle- the Combat Wombat took USNA by force with an Ewok punch and the wag of the Cheshire cat's tail. Though initially off-put by naked and hairless roomies, a high demand for cuddly performances, accusations of asthma and a strict no-food sprint diet, he overcame adversity, diversified himself at the Point, and returned to dominate life as captain of the little guys. Don't be fooled, this coffee-powered King of Grey can out-bench a walrus and run a 4.5 according to Stanford. Backyard shooting ranges, 'Make me some grilled cheese' phone calls, bronsons at Manu's, guitar lessons, and 2AM life-discussions compensated for a rodent-sized bladder, the propensity for having things 'stolen', and being involuntarily used for tangerine target practice. Rarely worried, you're always there to help, hang out, listen, and laugh. You've put up with a lot, and we are lucky to have you as a friend. All in all, you are indeed a grown-man.

Zachary
Buzzatto

What better way to sum to the total parts, traits, and characteristics of one man than to call him simply, The Zak. Summoned by ancient tribes when the world was still young for the soul purpose of inebriation this man has conquered all and remembers little of it. From Peru v.1 and neglecting a key shuffle, to Peru v.2 and being drowned by the natives. We now know the robot is still in style. Xterra's were made for road beers. 360, PS3, and Wii… in one room. Zero privacy. Winters in Snowshoe and Whitetail. Mangia's the morning after. What happened that night at Mrs. Kennedy's? Plans to execute the girl in between us. Apparently everyone is DTF. It's spiderman! One Rainbow lost to a bucket of wax. At least 6 cards lost to the world. San Juan, Chicago, Pittsburg, Lima, Southbend, Manchester, and unfortunately Annapolis to name but a few. Self proclaimed c. diesel. So many memories we will never forget but for some reason cannot remember; 6111, 6145, Chach, The Cut, and THE ZAK forever.

Adrianna Cantu

"So hoist our colors, hoist them high, and vow allegiance true, so long as sunset gilds the sky above the ocean blue, unlowered shall those colors be whatever fate they meet, so glorious in victory, triumphant in defeat."

Alexander Cutno

When young Alex first arrived he remained in relative anonymity until Peru. From there The Cut was born. Wednesday night parties. Bottles and bathrooms. Asian conquests. Partying with the attaché. Never making it to the club but meeting the entire McDonalds staff. Puerto Rico spring break. The snail that wouldn't die. Climbing down the palm tree. The polo sport bikini that got away. Trips to UConn with no brakes. Adventures at UMD. AP dance parties. Halo Tournaments. Gamer room. Nightly guests. The taps wall. The "fourth roomate" wishing us goodnight. Weekly flip cup and beer pong with a little tailgate mixed in. Manning the grill. The Murano taxi. Snowshoe. Board tricks and girls that cleaned up. Balcony jumps. H2O and Suge Knight. Lax tailgates and flannel. Peru and the Canadian. Trying to run up a mountain at 9,000 feet. Keg stands and our last stand. Although you started as Alex you will be remembered as The Cut.

Daniel Decker

Daniel "naked boy" Decker was always most comfortable wearing what he came into this world with- only a smile. Although he attended the boat school for 4 years, most of his sailing took place without leaving the room. When not showing others how to "tack a sailboat," his interest in birdbaths, trampolines and hamburgers showed. His carefree nature sometimes made us wonder if the college across the street wouldn't have been a better fit. Despite always following his own set of rules and rarely making formations, he somehow still ranked first in military OOM. You'd think that his love for shooting and outdoor excursions would make for an accomplished deer hunter, but although he was often in the woods, he was never willing to partake in the hunt. You're the nicest/best friend and roommate that anyone could ever ask for and everyone's dream brother-in-law. Whether needing advice, a comforting hug, help soliciting a massage, or a demonstration of new "tricks," we always know where to look.

Jeffrey Deliz

Michael Denoyer

As we have not yet reached the federal statute of limitations, I will refrain from describing Mike's plebe year extra-curricular activities in full. That said, suffice it to say that without this man's tireless and dedicated efforts, the Chapel dome would have sat unmolested, the 7-Eleven may have gone bankrupt, Herndon would never have had a badly needed 'refurbishment,' and every parade that season would have gone off flawlessly. Given his impressive curriculum vitae, you might find it interesting to know that Mike's true contribution to the Academy lay not in pranks however, but in simply being Mike. Universally known as a humble, loyal, capable friend to all, Mike was the 'go to' man for his friends, plebes, and even his officers. But even his closest friends took a back seat when senior year he met the true love of his life: a white Dodge Ram 2,500. The future has bright things in store for this man, and regardless of his severe shellfish allergy, the world is truly his oyster.

Eyler

Michael "Is Mike there?" Eyler was lucky enough to be part of '08. After delaying his plebe year long enough to witness the thrashing of the Irish during firstie year, he wound up in Sparta - lucky for us, as no one would have graduated without his help in physics, EE, and calc. There was no better roommate - he single-handedly packed and cleaned to prepare for myriad room inspections by Growlin' Fallon during Block 0 (as his grateful roommates jumped ship to evade the scythe of Senior's salty wrath). Magnificent! Doc White's wisdom will always be remembered. It's a shame that for all his physics wizardry, the Grinch just couldn't keep Christmas from coming. During his marathon firstie year, the Trident Scholar defeated both quasars and candidate weekends in one fell swoop. A dear friend to all in the company, he will be missed. The phone is ringing - it's probably for you, Mike. I think it's Monterey and undersea warfare giving you a call. Go on down, the hunting's good!

Ervin

Mercado

Imported from the Far East, Erv Mercado descended upon the shores of the Severn with a vengeance. Although he had never been to a Burger King and had developing English language skills, Erv -gotti, the son of a salty master chief, came to the Academy with a stack of ribbons larger than a South American Dictator. Working on an average of 3 hours of sleep per night, fueled by coffee and Red Bull, this man embodied the work hard play hard philosophy. Although an IT major, Erv had limited computer skills but made up for it by being the best dancer in 22nd company. Backed up by a shadow who talked big and a white dude with no rhythm, this SWO daddy spent 4 years bumping and grinding through YPs, Intramural basketball and countless nights in DC. Tag team Verv finally made it after all this time despite "khakis for cadres" and "Schaefer NOO." After many long nights slaving over computer code, this future distinguished graduate will be the best SWO in the fleet.

Charles

Miller

It's still a mystery what led Charlie to leave the Promised Land of NC to join the Navy, but he came, and on day 1 stood beltless and clueless facing a bald howling maniac. The clear-haired wonder has come a long way, though much time lately has seen his head buried in a sailboat in Mt. Rickover. Some days as a Group 1 were tough, but 4 years of J.R. Cash saw him through. He leaves memories: hamster nest rack, Chuck vs. the Grinch, the Naked Mole Rat, Dr. Evil, 3-eyed fish on Hospital Point, and making Burt Reynolds proud dodging Smokey to keep the room stash full. And when life was getting too stressful, there was no remedy like a good conservative rant. Hippies! Endless laps swum in the Dungeon, ridiculous P-R-T!s, and screeners with abrasions and mud had everyone thinking he would try for SPECWAR, or at least settle for coffee and SWOnuts. After much wavering, though, he surprised us all by joining the aviators. Best wishes for softer landings than the first one at jump school.

Stephanie

Motsay

Once upon a time in a village not so far, a girl with big dreams wished on a star. To fly through the air that was her dream, the Academy was the way or so it did seem. Through hard work and determination she made it through, to flight school where there was more work to do. With a smile and a giggle she can do anything, with confidence and skill she'll get her wings.So here is to the laughter, the drinks and the beers; the tests and homework, the boys and the tears. Four years of memories, four years of fun, finally at and end, a new adventure has begun. Stronger than you think you are, don't ever lose faith. Your sisters are never too far, their time you'll never waste.

Christina

Partridge

Been, left sunny Palo Alto, California and it's been dark and stormy there ever since. She made her mark almost immediately when she showed up to I-day wearing a shirt with the phrase "Naked Life" all over it. She shamelessly removed modesty from the lives of others, singlehandedly made USNA and the surrounding East Coast a cuter and more fun place to be. She's known for being many things to include Russian spy, finger-painter, artist, Nemo (after drinking SoCo), a triathlete, incredible masseuse, singer, ~~movie-watcher~~, honorary member of the Spanish Navy, math genius, my shoulder, bug saver and a yut-yut; Rocking out to anything from rap, classic rock or Broadway, 4-to-a-rack spooning, hugs, Bar-b-q sauce, plaid, having a wife all 4 yrs at USNA, Brooks; Great Floridian, Vegas, Cruises, Camping (e-course etc...), New Orleans; the short third; "Let's google/wiki it.," serenading, Thriller! They won't kick us out of the Corps for being silly and happy, right?

Eric

Regnier

Eric "Reggie" Regnier is the first guy you call when you want to get a beer and the only guy you will let date your sister. This isn't supposed to be a love letter, but this guy got a scholarship to Cambridge and he did it while maintaining an impressive social life. "Always a good time" and all the while putting up with the loudest mid at the Academy sleeping just 2 feet away. The only mistake Eric ever made was not going Aviation, but 30 years from now Eric will be the Admiral, who knows where the rest of us will be. We love you man, you're a huge reason we'll miss our time by the bay.

Lets remember some memories...Monday Night Basketball Parties-How does he shoot like that?, Everyone knows the onion is the heaviest fruit, Food under candlelight looks weird, Did he just pull out and swing that thing in your face?, She was crying Manu?-"Yeah, my medallion kept hitting her head", Anteaters are dirty, What happened to that girl Manu?-"I didn't do it...6 months later...ok I did!", The Voices that no one hears, Waking up in the shower on your 21st, 30+ knock out in 2 years, waiting nearly 6 months for a pilot contract, Chilling on the roof with a few cubes and few awesome guys...So many good times with the Flying Triangle, one of the best men I'll ever know, and certainly one of the best friends any of us will ever encounter.

Victor

Schaefer

Vic aspired to be in the Navy since he was 7. He came a long way since Plebe Summer. He was a vital member of the "I" Platoon. Through hard work and some "responsible drinking" he came from being called the "God Father" of Long Island to being called "ShaefDawg" of the Academy. He loves listening/watching classic rock, Saved by the Bell, and Law & Order. He has grown and developed to become the "Man" he is today. If it wasn't for his trusted companion/best roommate in the world, Erv, he would not have survived 4 yrs by the bay. The dynamic duo were referred to in 22 as the"VERV." ShaefDawg was the most reliable source for helping out others with editing and making their papers sound Legit. Sometimes he does papers for others. Ask "Dirty/Ardvark." He would say that he would not have passed Truckers English w/o Shaefdawg's impeccable editing talent. Victor "SchaefDawg" Schaefer, was an indispensable asset to the Naval Academy and will be successful for years to come.

Here's to grandpa/crazy uncle/2nd cousin twice removed nap dreams, mobos, San Diego, and The ID Night Extravaganza, Football and LAX tailgators, The Fleet's impossible $10 minimum, Pusser's Painkillers and McGarvey's SSBNs, Weekends in College Park . . . Hope this all fits in the Lucky Bag (TWSS). So far, SWO good. It's been a long and hard journey the last 4 years (TWSS) . . . To all my friends I leave behind, I wish you the best of luck. M-Burg Grads- I love you all. Matt and Jeff- Best roomates I could ever have had . . . "Little too friendly" girls of 22- I will miss you all. I will be strong and courageous. I will not be terrified or discouraged; for the Lord my God is with me wherever I go. Joshua 1:9

Sears

Within 4 years of his academy career, Clayton released the deadliest epidemic ever to hit the Naval Academy...The Sears. This loud mouthed Mama's boy went from following the Cowboy code of gentlemanly conduct to become one of the most obnoxiously foul mouthed individuals to grace the Academy. Never one for commitment, Sears has yet to find his one true love... for this week. Although, the same cannot be said for his aunt and cousin who have both found solace in the ample arms of Vagley. You can thank the good Lord above that your sleeping bag isn't shot to hell...we all still regret that. For the love of God, please shoot straighter than you throw. And if you can't, don't worry, we will all be there to help you raise your little TBS babies. Navy Rugby: "you won't", "would you rather", "stop feeling sorry for yourself", "die", "15 as 1 for 80"

Thomas

Seland

Thomas Seland hailed from Orlando, Florida. As a former student at the University of Florida, he came to Annapolis a true Gator fan. Despite this deficiency, he proved to be a loyal and admirable friend to everyone he knew. He saw snow for the first time in his life as a plebe. Those closest to him would sometimes call him "Monotom." Tom was usually a lad back individual whose facial expressions and voice level rarely changed; however, when he did get mad it was easily seen by all. As a roommate of Tom's all four years, including Plebe Summer, I believe his sleeping patterns are one of the most unusual traits he possesses. In order to fall asleep he would have to slide his legs back with his knees making a tent under his blue sheet and pull the top end over his face. Tom was also known for the Peruvian allergic reaction, hiding his nameplate in the hall when unwanted visitors came in from the rain, and standing up to Florida bouncers and commenting about their weight. Tom was the type of guy you would go to for advice of any kind. He was the type of guy who would be much better than you in basketball, but would still let you win every once and a while. He was the type of guy who remained cool under pressure. Most importantly, Tom was the type of guy you could count on. You could not have a better friend or roommate to go through these four years with.

Michael

Stanley

Michael King Stanley began his Academy career at Boys State. Coming in on I Day as a legendary select Sigma Chi at Ole Miss, Michael quickly sought out other sorts of fraternities amongst his new brothers. From parties at Pickwick all the way to roadtrips to Richmond, Michael was so college. A music lover and avid fan of Almost Famous, Michael quickly turned his frat life to hippy life. A true friend to all, Michael was still quite the ladies man, whether it be facebook relationships or trips to the burg, also he was a client of the famous Doctor. An enfamous survivor of two trips to Peru, a punch to the face, and disentary, Michael always was looking for a challenge. Michael took great pride in staying out of trouble with the law all four years while all his high school friends managed to do the opposite. But who could forget freshman year in Memphis at the Peabody, or should we say, the back of the tahoe. Some say people go all four years and don't find a soulmate, however, Michael found his in a man by the name of Marty. Michael will forever be remembered as a man who always brought his share to the table.

Amanda Stewart

What Boston really meant to say: Well 4 years have come and gone away. Now once more she has to basic train. This time's the 4th of it's kind, so she won't fall behind... another thing she's just gotta get through. Her career, it seems to never end. And she's older than most of her friends. But her truck is so tight, a great place to escape to at night. She's already planned to make it a tattoo. Her tailgates take you by surprise. By the end you realize, you're hammered. And what this yut-yut has to say makes boys blush and look away. Amanda! We all wanna be your man, cause there's no other better than... Amanda! We love you!

Patricia Stolle

While it should have been obvious from her family history that she would eventually end up at the Academy, it took Tricia three whole years at Virginia Tech to figure it out. This slight detour left the first female midshipmen of two midshipmen ('81) older than most of her upperclass and saluting her younger brother. While at the Academy, Tricia could be found at sailing practice or singing in the Glee club or Catholic choir. This "good" little Catholic girl eventually gave up those beloved activities to join the big leagues and become an active member of the EAAA. While the group's main activities consisted of Apple Pie shooters, Irish Car bombs and "I bet you won't"s, the group's secondary activities included cackling, "cougaring", and of course, Equestrian Archery. Favorite quote to sum up her Academy years: "As long as I'm with you."

Jeffrey Turner

I still love you both despite your age; Tara: we need to have more cake; Leslie: my wife of 4 years, squadmates the 1st/final semesters, future (Mrs.?) Supe, TAPS visits, 1st companymate I met–at least one of us remembered, FL visits, and the only New Year's resolution I've kept–and I'm glad. Tina/Burmy/Becca/Lindsay: I'm going to miss our adventures. The rest of 22, Brooks, ESE people, B Hockey, anyone I forgot: wish I had more room, thanks for making USNA not suck as much.

Justin Waskey

Justin Waskey entered the Academy from Louisville, Kentucky where he was a raised as an avid Kentucky Wildcat fan. Justin quickly became known in the 22nd Company for his "fury". Mentioning a Wildcat loss would not only make his day a bad one, but it would make it unbearable for the one who mentions the loss. Justin's competitive spirit, possibly created from his four year varsity soccer status, was intensely noticeable in all that he did. A simple, friendly basketball or beach soccer game would immediately turn into a fierce competition once "The Fury" stepped onto the court or field. He would dribble full speed intro traffic with his elbow aimed at anyone attempting to guard him. Justin was also known for his hard work, mostly seen from his Chinese class When entering his room he would most likely be practicing his Chinese speaking. Those who know him know at least two words from Justin, "Ni hao" or "bipole". As an Economics major he proved to everyone that he has learned money management. When going out to eat with 6 or more friends Justin would always manage the money after the meal and make out with 5 more dollars than he had started with. He was also the only midshipmen to earn a profit off of a PSD that he had taken from King Hall. Some would say that borrowing a sheet of paper from him would cost an arm and a leg. However, those that know Justin really well know that he is a loyal friend that will always keep his promises. Justin is the type of person that will get done whatever he sets his mind to. Once his roommate asked him to grab him lunch on a day they were serving Buffalo Chicken Sandwiches. These days were the hardest to get someone lunch and Justin came up with a sandwich with two chicken patties, which is unheard of. Once soccer season ended his firstie year, the fury inside of Justin subsided. After a trip to Daytona Beach he was no longer called "The Fury," but now "Buffy"

Who could envision this small-town quarter horse graduating with a degree in (elementary school) mathematics? A true friend, ward is a blessing to everyone he is around. His value for friendship and brotherhood is second to none. Ward will best be known as a close friend, late slayer, and born leader. ## Nathan ## Davey

Nate "Big Cat" Davey. One of the most gorgeous men i have ever laid eyes on. He's one of those guys that can make a person feel like everything is going to work itself out no matter what kind of pickle they are in. Without a doubt, Nate is single handedly responsible for many of us sticking it out at the Academy. He is a friend to many of us and more like a brother to some. Whether he's sitting at his computer listening to music straight from the projects or having one of his famous "college nights", he could always bring a smile to your face. No doubt he will rise quickly through the pilot community and probably be the lead actor in Top Gun 2. Rooming with him for four years felt more like four months, but after all of the empty beer cans and awkward, painful mornings in McDonalds, we made it. He is a true friend and life might be a little hard to get used to without him for awhile. -mears marina, phillips appetizers, motivation station plebe year, cleanest firstie room in history- V. ## Mark
Dress

This Navy Football fan hails all the way from Dhahran, Saudi Arabia. During his four years by the Bay, Mark participated in numerous activities including the Combat Arms Team, Brigade Boxing, and the weekly RCIA class. When he wasn't out getting buff, you could almost always find him at the 4-1/6-1 heaters. Between LtCol Boxwell, Prof Matthews, and LCDR Segredo, classes were almost never boring. We will never forget New Years at Cocoa Beach, Cheep Cheep Chicken, Foster's Australian for Beer, Hooray Beer, the Penguin noise, Chomper, and the Mail Room. After four years in Bancroft, 500 calls to Golden Dragon, 47 Navy Football games, and 4 Graduations, Mark is headed to Mayport, FL aboard the USS GETTYSBURG. Mark's amazing sense of humor, quick wit, and Southern charm will take him far. Good Luck Mark! We will always have our four years by the Bay!

Patrick Gahan

Hailing from the deserts of Arizona, Patrick became Legendary for his Great Americanism. Nearly frozen to death in West Virginia and out Marathoning for kicks. Let the army teach him to fall from a plane only to have the navy teach him to fly one. Pat, a stellar athlete and scholar, MechE major (but no engineer), and Capstone team mate (Team Bill), with a will to be the best he can. A real wisenheimer, his sly and mysterious demeanor and cool confidence coupled with his witty and clever comments and his love of chili cook-offs (for free) and rock music all combine to form what his accomplice's know him as, PT: Physical Trainer, Professional Talker, and overall, master of his domain. He is a true friend always willing to help out no matter what - a midshipman's midshipman.

Joshua Kratt

Attending the Naval Academy after a year at the University of Iowa proved to be a tough transition for Josh. House parties and bar crawls turned into TAPS parties and the occasional muddy low crawl. Favorite memories: Plebe year: "Sometimes you just get boned," and a weekend at Maryland ("Where's the saline solution?"). Youngster year: a ridiculous submarine cruise (sleeping and watching movies), turning 21 at Outback Steak House and Armadillos (followed by a shaving cream assassination), civvies downtown (uh oh! Blackout!), and being part of the "cancer of the brigade." Second Class year: 2 for 7 (although 11 is closer), a little plebe training (very little), and the unlikely job of training sergeant (oh so many lessons learned). Firstie year: Josh gets a squad and then a platoon, service selecting naval aviation, and a Spring Break cruise never to be topped (Syracuse University!?). Final words of advice: If you can't say something nice, at least have the decency to be vague.

Tripp North - a legend of Mear's Marina. Drink of choice - Colt 45 (shaken not stirred). But don't let his high-priced lifestyle fool you. Deep down he is as redneck as they come. A proud southerner, Tripp has been known to be one of the only ones on the yard to chase squirrels on his way to class. He is a croquet All-American and one of the guilty parties involved in the royal rumble at Kingsmill. Even though he is a cocky private-school kid and skis like a woman, Tripp is a blessing to everyone he is around. He is one of those guys that can make you laugh at just about anything. Four years with him has been a blast and we've all been lucky to spend them with him.

Margaret Reynolds

Maggie – hailing from the land of "we don't pump our own gas" – 1 not-so-enjoyable stint as a NARC, 1 episode of restriction, <5 parades, and numerous sailing trips later… still dancing on chairs to Trans-Siberian Orch. "summer camp" talks until 2 am. Go Yankees!, and secret aim conversations. The amazing feat of getting in the shower at 0550 and still making it to formation. Alias, anyone? How about Grey's? The Office? Lost got too lost… Bruises, tan lines, and sun burns… the life of a sailor. Jimmy Buffet and Pirate Looks at Forty. Trips to Pusser's with Mojito's, Dark and Stormy's and Winter Lager. Someday we'll be pirates… through the years there were many others, but in the end just us two. Booty bumps down the p-way to taps and a few threatened tackles here and there, but believe me: "I will pummel you and throw you down the stairs if you steal my chair!"

Edward Ritter

Teddy is going Marines, and one thing that will definitely help him is his sense of humor. Many great memories leaving peeps on people's beds, tricking friends into buying kegs, and cramming people into a room to watch a movie. Don't forget your education in center city apartments, swimming in Tuckerton, ski trips, Vieques, the cruise, and conquering the Great Wall(s). This Poly Sci major got extra practice in debate while he defended South Jersey from the constant barrage of insults, never forgetting to add a Gunny Ritter snap after winning the argument. More memories are soon to come, Brother.

John Robie

Plebe summer roommates- we had fun until an unfortunate 'bondage' comment incited Willet's rage. After 44s and Ogden, he snatched some extra leave to Alsina's chagrin, but of course that didn't stop him. His love for Elisha Cuthbert bordered on the extreme, but he never apologized (for that or anything else). Keeping people waiting, and skating through everything by the skin of his teeth. With the exception of aviation, of course- he always had pilot's blood pumping through his veins, but even this failed to motivate his academic performance. (You majored in Aero?!) Still, service selection turned out okay, despite his inability to stop crying. As 1st Sergeant, his most notable achievement was motor-boating at Show and Tell. After being passed over for CC (twice), he coped by playing Flight Simulator more than any man ever should, and indulging in an affair of forbidden love. (Hey Maggie!) Still, this one is a natural leader and a true friend. Oh yeah- and didn't he puke in the tent?

David Ryan

As a brainy student, Dave Ryan came to the Naval Academy and immediately established his leadership abilities with his peers by proudly displaying his SAT results (1590) on a big banner. He gained the respect of his peers and cadre immediately. After his great start, Dave continued to climb the ladder of success. For a noble reason, Dave spent his first semester of his 2/C year at the U.S. Coast Guard Academy. There, he spent a week on the sea worthy EAGLE, the Coast Guard sailing vessel. After daring death by climbing to the Royals, he coined the famous phrase "Ease the sheet m'boy." Just after this, he actually spotted a mermaid off the port bow. These occurances helped make Dave famous within the Brigade and the legendary Team X. While back at USNA, Dave continued to earn fame by starting grad school early and doing some shady stuff in the hall. All in all, the Marine Corps will find great use out of this brainy and witty person; and even though he is always caught sniffing his finger, he will always make a good, lasting impression.

Kai Sabrowsky

"Now colleges from sea to sea - May sing of colors true, - But who has better right then we - To hoist a symbol hue? - For sailors brave in battle fair - Since fighting days of old, - Have proved a sailor's right to wear - The Navy Blue and Gold."

Taylor Searcy

"So hoist our colors, hoist them high, and vow allegiance true, so long as sunset gilds the sky above the ocean blue, unlowered shall those colors be whatever fate they meet, so glorious in victory, triumphant in defeat."

Shane Vigil

From Home Depot, to NAPS, from YPs, to CAT, from Airborne, to Leatherneck, Shane represented SoCal. From Philadelphia, to Dubai, from Adams Morgan, to the Azores, from Newport, to Santa Barbara, from Cape Canaveral, to Mount Ranier, Shane saw the world. From Assault and Battery, to Amphibious Assaults, from drowning Dive Screener, to frozen Airborne Screener, from restriction, to Supe's List, Shane experienced USNA. From blanket plebe pranks, to secret recons, from HFStival, to DC United, from striking a pose, to surround sound, Shane had fun. From Army, to MJ, from plebes, to officers, from The Man, to The System, Shane got mad. From honoring a Medal of Honor Recipient (Staton), to completing the Iron Triangle, from W3ADO, to Semper Fi, from FEX Organizer, to Training Sergeant, from Company Commander, to Squad Leader, Shane made USNA a better place. Besides a head scar, he got a lot from USNA. If his time in the Navy is like his future in the USMC, he will be a high speed Marine.

Edward Watters

From the streets of Woodlawn to the beautiful town Annapolis...Edward, Ted, or just T-Dubs has lived his days as a midshipman as a true fighter. "Chosen" submarines he will surely serve with the utmost honor and courage. Faithful platoon commander, outstanding squad leader. Spontaneous flights to Germany and Portugal for $24 after injury, Ted will strive through obstacle after obstacle. Opened his home and heart to many thankful sponsor siblings. Late night SMTs without life jackets, memorable gangster raps, HFS, DC101, W3ADO, SEAL screener, late night cramming, going with the flow and White Russians; T-Dubs you've done it all but leave that poor chair alone: we don't want to send you to the hot seat again. True friend, athlete and student. Don't forget, this mid took on Arabic in addition to Mech E during his years by the bay. Grab the adiabatic thinking cap, and let's do some leading, just like Forrest Gump. But hey, Beat Army! Good luck Edward Charles Watters IV, make Staton proud!

Kathleen Williams

Kate, Roomie, SWOtivator, Dude: Wow, I remember when we started as roommates during plebe summer in July of 2004. All I can say is I couldn't have asked for a better friend to end my time at the Academy with. From belting Little Mermaid songs, setting and shutting off alarms at O'Dark hours, talking about loose cheese, describing taste of "original," weaning off 8 pumps of cream in your coffee, to the Facebook wall war, you made the back half of the room a lot of fun. By the way...where is your iPod? LT-Where were you at 6:30 this morning? VGepping...OK. You really taught me a lot this year and it was good to have someone I could talk with professionally and as a friend. I know that someone of your character and determination will make a tremendous contribution to the Navy and our country. You'll be on a carrier soon enough and making Captain Chaos proud I am sure. I guess I better let you get to that Dentist appointment ;). Enjoy your time in Japan. I'll miss you! Sayonara!

Marion Young

Roomies for four years!! If you push me down the stairs, I'll hide your chair so you can't get out of your rack in the morning. You should be a pineapple for Halloween. Captain Jack Sparrow is the only man for us. Do they make swords small enough for you or do we need to get you a butter knife? The m&m counter. Cocoa Krispies! Honorary Jersey resident. "I want to thank all the little people who made me the big person I am today" - Kana, you are still little. "But it bit my duck!" Poor mongoose. Spontaneous dance parties. Grey's Anatomy study breaks. Screaming at the Yanks game on the computer and scaring everyone else.

Plebe summer squad, navy cheer, tommy carron was your cleaning buddy, snowboarding for training, your favorite future flight attendant, spring break in a truck, doing jump splits, tour of texas by yourself, sort of. Navy cheer, belligerent matt shows up, weekly parties in 6218, changing your shoes, squad outing all star, boxing with your brother, spring break in daytona, handcuffs and cops, taking shots with zach. No navy cheer, blue and golds with a flack jacket, toyota cobra, riordans, cincy trip, nuke money, all the bmore trips, meeting "the one", real big things in FLA, fresh 35th floor air, PRIVE, ring dance, you shouldn't be in camis, YPs, "i locked my wallet in this room sir". Living in bmore, going to EOL, bill the goat?, watching tv, doing zero work, settling down with "the one", we own notre dame, shotguns, cluck u as always, but seriously doing zero work, hardcore fishing, fin is crazy, croquet done right. Commissioning week is over?, we're officers?, uh oh, good luck, run silent run deep - love, blockhead/topdog

William Bullen

In the beginning there was darkness... and then, there was Bullen. If holding hands with his future roommate through plebe summer was not his way of making friends, then relieving himself on said roommate's leg the first day was a done deal. From soccer stud to football stud to I like to kick game winning field goals to I like to kick the ground and tear my groin. This stud dreamed of soaring with the eagles but crashed with Iceman's grandmother and many more. Many, many more. At least he likes skoal mint. From any conversation, you would assume Joey to be a complete retard, well, he is. Nothing better for intelligence, but a farewell to a "rock".

Thomas Carron

Thomas Carron. "Beaker" during Plebe Summer, his classmates recalled such quotes as "Beaker, give me one", "Sir, one Sir," and "Carron, how many Pancakes are left on my table." "Sir, three Sir." During the Ac-Year he was a hard-working procrastinator. He always claims to be "busy," but we all know he is dozing off while studying or perhaps watching a movie. No one is more courteous or willing to lend a helping hand than Thomas - and he always seems to be in a cheerful mood. Living life the positive way, that's for sure. Utah Mormon - NO, just from Utah. His mom never fails to send a box of a gazillion delicious cookies or treats, and he always shares them. Creepy? Well, no one has been poisoned by them yet! And while hanging out with friends other memorable quotes were made, including, "For goodness, sake it's a vacuum" and "Why is there no level I Painkiller?" But when this place got a little rough, he was there to lean on. "When this place really got me down, you were the one that always came along with a smile that cheered me up!" Keep the smile, Tom!

Jennifer Christie

Mah tummy hurts - dh- I'll be sending a room representative - if everything is important, nothing is important - do I have to go to school today? - can this boat tip over? No...okay, yes. - sing to me one more time and I'm taking the safety locks off the windows - look Katie, you new window home...I'll help you get your things - trailer park Christmas - Harold, the pygmy - waterfront property - the nudist colony - ring wearers vs. non-ring wearers - the Zimbabwe - I couldn't bring myself to wake you... you were smiling in your sleep - retarded baby squirrel - oh yeah, I put your plant under the sink - hammy - squishy squishy - my sweatpants of yours - I blame the room -

William Cicchillo

Bill is a simple man: all he needs are random youtube vids and internet specials. Those worked out well, right? At least you hit the jackpot with Kristina in Jamaica! How ya like your women Bill? Tall. Non-Amazons need not apply. JAMDET 08 will live in infamy. One word sums him up: resourceful. Who else can disappear for a day in a foreign country with total strangers, no money, no phone, no clue, and still show up at the house in time for our flight? A promising young man until life outside the walls (beer) found him. Rams Head, McGarveys, & many blurry memories later, you may finally call yourself a man. Who can forget dance parties at OBriens followed by painful mornings at Grumps? We haven't forgotten, but things are a bit fuzzy. Bill and Matt's Excellent Adventure (random college edition)! Way to suck it up for 4 years on the right coast. Laugh loud, live hard, and ride that pony until she bucks you! Congrats on following your dreams-do big things at BUD/S!

Joanna Clark

Joanimal!! How would I have made it through four years of track without you? I think the answer is simple - I probably wouldn't have. Thanks for being a reliable seat buddy, lifting buddy, roomie and lifting partner. Don't forget the 15 Girls, KART, and the J-team. Halloween and SDB Sexy. Someday together we'll redesign the female uniforms. My bad luck with directions and Aquarium Place?? Do you want any cookies?? You're getting your piercing done where?? The place beside Papa John's?? Does your knee actually hurt? One thing I always admired about you is that when you set your mind to something, you go after it with all your heart - which helps to account for that stubborn streak as well! I am glad we could be best friends during our time here - you have been so much fun. Pensacola will be a blast and I can't wait! JessO

Halloweens at Towson, Bucknell House Parties, and the Poconos to ring in the New Year. OC-MD Labor Day weekend '07 and ND facebook girls - hot chocolate and Rudy. 12 Drinks of Christmas and Baseball Bar Crawl, Griffins nachos, and can't forget Castlebay 'Two Burger Tuesdays'. Should I study for the physics final or... Youngster year outer with backpacks means getting lost in Georgetown. NMS training trip: New Years morning + hitchhiking + Holiday Inn = picture perfect sunrise. YP's firsite summer - Club One? enough said... JMU? Delaware? West Street Walker? And can't forget Spring Break '08 - 2000+ miles of 'Pura Vida' - blond bombshell and Boston chicks. Thumper anyone?

John Dubiel

Hailing from the great state of Hawaii, John regularly greeted everyone with a laid back, "Aloha!" Although most of his time was spent reading Harry Potter fan fiction and watching Japanese anime; he still managed to get the best grades in his room, through his patented 'no- work-study-system.' His quirky personality, anti-communist sentiment, belief in The Flash and unique sense of humor will make him a great bubble head. And if not, he'll always just get by on his good looks and charm. John's favorite holiday is the night before Thanksgiving, because staying alive for the morning of Thanksgiving is a success unto itself. It's a good thing Innuyasha did not stop Lauren from seeing the true love her life, but then again ... John never really had good taste in anything outside of women and ice cream anyways. Then again, when we looked over at John's desk at saw scantily clad red head anime toys, and pictures of Lauren... we all know the real reasons why John loves her so. Watch out for the Ninja pandas!

Kurt Fallon

Blockhead came straight from the streets of "the Lou" looking for home, immediately he knew that Quantico would be as good of a home as ever. Rolling in mud, cutting his hair, trying to swim to become "covert Kurt," all led to becoming a 2nd LT. during your years as a jarhead there are some things that you can yearn for. Just remember spear guns are shot IN the water. Sleeping in the truck, Zach and his "shots", no need to study lets order some Cluck-U and watch a movie. Breaking your streak 2nd class year, Im'ing all of your "friends", spending our loans, club Prive w/ ADP, breathing better air, sleeping through road trips, Cinci, Chicago, Baltimore, watching Navy beat Notre Dame, South Carolina, shooting your first deer, Texas, all great times with great friends. Best of luck and duck your head. -MB

Mark Foris

Can always be heard yelling at the Giants from anywhere in 6th wing, beware of flying trashcans during Mets games (blowing like the wind). Overhand pitcher turned submarine turned intramural warrior (company b-ball and football organizer) turned tennis player turned scuba diver turned skier turned runner, all before the knee and ankle injuries. Great times with ND facebook girls (Dodge Caliber), tubing on the water, grilling with twigs, Poconos, OBX (ABSOLUTE-ly a good time), Phillips (Operation Happy Hr), Ram's Head (Red Red Wine), McGarvey's (bachlorette party), Castle Bay (guitar players and cougars), 'Griffins' (nachos), Acme (enough said), Twelve Drinks of X-mas, baseball crawl. Outer with backpacks means Italian food in Georgetown, who knows where we are? Da Vinci at 2am, whose baby is crying? Easter Sunday, I should've went to mass instead... grand slam (that landed in China). So much for Ring Dance. One last question... can you name that tune?

Katherine Gideon

KT...the smart one or the serious one? You get the best of both worlds. Never without that cheesy smile we all love! You can take the girl out of Oklahoma but even cowboy boots can't keep her dancin feet still. Oh Sherrie, Friday night laundry dates in Smoke Hall. Gotta love those Midori Sours, prolonged birthdays, ice cream partays, bumming on the beach (Or cruise ship. Or sailboat). Do you have a spoon? House is on tonight, can the groupies watch? Maybe a concert or MLS game would be better?? Kicking soccer balls and watching people fall into the Severn with WCS, building sets and being dramatic in a burlap sack – "two out of three" ain't bad! The Ops Queen would never have gotten through without Kelly and Scotty, little sis Sarah, Smax, and Grandma brownies! Thanks for a great four years!

Daniel Golden

Good old Southern boy Danny Lee. Soft spoken until you seriously tick him off. Brilliant mind. He'll never forget Mary Washington, a duty weekend with a certain TV show, Florida: "Where did all the Rum go?" roommate's daily dramas, weekends in DTA and the aftermath but, most of all, Thursday Roommate Night, the most sacred of nights. Daniel's genuine, smart, the best listener I have met, a man of God, incredibly Southern, incredibly German (though he doesn't know it) and the best friend a person can ask for. He is the reason why I am a graduate.
It's 0530 and what's that annoying sound? Oh yeah, that would be Dan's alarm clock. Fast forward an hour and you will still hear it every 5 minutes until MQF. Firstie year and that Trident project. "Hey Wayne, does this make sense?" Service Selection..."What, I have to go SUBS, no wait, someone likes me, I do get to go Marine Corps." You are now off to GA Tech, don't sleep all day, you might miss your chance to meet a Southern Belle.

Eric Gordon

Wow, I can't believe you were able to make it four years out of Florida and away from your boat. Orlando has been pretty good to us all. Between getting kicked out of your sister's place, apology not accepted, and kurt locking himself in the car, it is amazing we made it out of Florida in one piece. But out you go into the flight community with a Mech E degree (thanks Harper) all while dropping water bombs on everyone (and a EE project). Going downtown, Riordans, your 21st and sleeping the whole next day. Mrs. V's and countless pong games. Soccer, even though the games weren't all won the nights after made up for it. Fishing through spring break, shot gunning everything in sight. Endless comments that always brightened peoples days. SC w/ Kurt, Philly for A/N, Camille conveniently showing up on Spring Break, scoring a goal on the Sunday of S. weekend. Away from 6359 and 6222 we had some great memories, and some things we don't remember. Good luck and fly safe. -MB

The Beatles – In My Life

There are places i'll remember
All my life though some have changed
Some forever not for better
Some have gone and some remain
All these places have their moments
With lovers and friends i still can recall
Some are dead and some are living
In my life i've loved them all

But of all these friends and lovers
There is no one compares with you
And these memories lose their meaning
When i think of love as something new
Though i know i'll never lose affection
For people and things that went before
I know i'll often stop and think about them
In my life i love you more

Though i know i'll never lose affection
For people and things that went before
I know i'll often stop and think about them
In my life i love you more
In my life i love you more

Katie Griffin

It all started with the infamous war cry over plebe summer, which four years later people still tried to make Katie do. Finding a home on the swimming and diving team led to BC3 and who could forget mystery shot pong? A shot at love in Puerto Rico or maybe just jellyfish? Then the roomie, aka: snuggle buddy, called it first by stating that boy Kyle is trouble and kept our leaky 6343 room afloat. A youngster year with firstie privileges. Later to find a second home with the flying squirrels, only to start having dreams of NAFAC and being told it was all her fault that people were wearing their shirts inside out and who really needs shoes to walk through gate one? Are you serious we have a physics final in the morning? In attempt to find a bar with less mids we found a hang out at LIME with wonderful bird baths, and boys please still look out for those CHEETAHS!

Matthew Hoffman

Having been my roommate for four years, Matt's nearby home was always open for me, turning him into a surrogate brother. When not at the EE lab he could be found defending his home state, which he will always claim as the best in the nation, or in the ladderwell on 6-3 securing his spot in the 2% club with late night phone calls. He had exquisite tastes in German foods and beer, and spoke enough French and German to not get us killed during our Eurotrip. Matt was an ex-standing roommate. And I will always remember that you DON'T HASSLE THE HOFF...When most people choose to go to the Naval Academy they realize how truly detached from their old home life they will be, but this was not so for Matt. Even though he selected submarines, I will always remember him as the yut-yut reading yut-yut books, then he saw the light (or didn't see the light depends how you look at it) and started reading submarine books. He realized that in a fight the reactor core would always win over the Marine Corps.

Nathan Houle

Guys...I don't feel like going out tonight... I've just spent so much money...and the Patriots are playing...and I looove Tom Brady (we know you would have his babies). Ok Look! A DANCING POLAR BEAR! HAHAHA! To one of the coolest, smartest dudes ever, we love you man. Good luck in the Corps. Rah!

Kara Kamuda

"Umm, is Kara in? I have a weird bump on my arm..." Hippie, healer, and New Englander by way of Bethesda Naval Hospital (her claim to fame-keeper of the POTUS' skivvies), Kara provided comprehensive medical care to all Rockstars looking to avoid BMC. An example to us mere mortals, she persevered through four (NAPS- five?) years of such trials as plebe chem, thermo and the relentless peer pressure to join facebook and aim. Beastie Boy cadence. "Where's he going? NOWHERE!" USS Rushmore. Pacific vs. kayak- OMG where's the jellyfish? sushi dates, 5:30 wake-up= crew season, celebrating late night DTA- a dead sprint from Ram's Head to 6-3, secret scrapbook aficionado, the boys next door- are they ready yet?? nope Mark's just getting in the shower, weekly battles for the wardroom TV- but The OC's on!, matching underarm moles, battle racks- goggles on for safety, soulja boy dance lessons. ## Bryan Martin

Only in states that no one can actually find on a map do guys have a middle name consisting of a single letter plus a "period". Hailing from the little (really little) town of Lisbon, Iowa, Bryan was the kind of guy that was a pleasure to call a friend. First thing you had to remember about him was his love for comics, whether it be talking with the comic book store guy in Annapolis or telling the mail room to stop bending his comics. He has an extreme interest in television that extended into his academic life when did his capstone project on the mathematics of television scheduling. When not drooling over the stars of Firefly, he used his impressive math skills to memorize his friend's credit card numbers. From our unforgettable Eurotrip, I'll always remember visiting an Irish pub in Paris, drinking French beer, and listening to a French band sing "We're the Kids in America".It will be hard to forget Bryan even though he lives in a town that no one can find on a map.

Ryan McMorrow

Dude...I wish I was back in So Cal...bro, I gotta pay my second phone bill...Thanks a lot Brigade Optometry...SCHEIZER! Vut aure you schtoopidt?! Glad we could drag you away from the west coast for four years. Enjoy the Whale's V...we'll miss you brah.

Tyler Olvey

Tyler "Jitters" Olvey who wanted to be human more than any other animal, was always up for a good joke, and there was also his blank stare and his greeting for Dane. Tyler was always the resident computer expert, and he set up one great Halo venue. Another great pastime was the hours spent telling Yo-Yo how much better the American planes are compared to the French. Then there is the Swede that he met at the i-ball and his several trips to Sweden which helped fuel his obsession with candy and chocolate. There is also his wedding that Bryan intends to crash. Tyler will be living his dream of being a Naval Aviator.

Laura Pattawi

La-oorah! Bubbly, cheerful, dedicated, and motivated are how she will be remembered. Everything she does reminds others that living by your faith is possible. From the day she walked through the gates of the academy with her lively spirit and very short hair, she has been an inspiration to everyone she crossed paths with. Dressing up as a panda bear, hiding in her con-locker to scare people (because only very small people are capable of doing that!), posing with her tongue sticking out for every picture at football games, and spending countless hours writing novels of papers in Nimitz, she truly let herself be a midshipman. She reminded others that only three tours was a slap on the wrist, and that life is what you make of it. She is a strong Catholic and a great leader; let's hope the Marine Corps is ready for this motivator!

Stefanie Peskosky

"So hoist our colors, hoist them high, and vow allegiance true, so long as sunset gilds the sky above the ocean blue, unlowered shall those colors be whatever fate they meet, so glorious in victory, triumphant in defeat."

Wayne Pitzen

Waynesworth was a prior enlisted sailor that happened to live with two other children whom were completely opposite people. Room wherever it was...the 6-2 back shaft 2/C year and Room 6338 1/C year had a tall Southern Boy who liked to read, an extremely hot tempered Italian kid from New York who liked to be loud and play hockey, and a Minnesota boy whose past days as a prior slowly came back to him as the years go on. Not a day went by where he revealed a "when I was enlisted" story. Wayne had a family in his roommates and brothers away from home. When he wasn't at football, his roommates and his friend next door always wondered: "Where's Wayne?" Wayne will never forget Florida with the roommates and getting close with his roommate's cousin, the Pittsburg vs. Philly game where 10 was oh so far away from 12...and he let everyone know it. His relationships were based on how well the girl can make cookies, and that was determined and either supported or not by his roommates. You never know where the heck Wayne was but always had a story to tell when he came back.

Jacob Rozich

Need more work! Need more work! Need more work! Need more work! Ryaan, RYAAAN! I only ran 10 miles today. After lunch desk naps.and seizures. So how did you get on restriction? What's the story on how you broke your hand? Heir Bube. Keep practicing the Arabic. To the smartest guy we'll ever know, we'll miss you! Hooyah!

Ashley Rushing

"Now colleges from sea to sea - May sing of colors true, - But who has better right then we - To hoist a symbol hue? - For sailors brave in battle fair - Since fighting days of old, - Have proved a sailor's right to wear - The Navy Blue and Gold."

Dane Sagerholm

Navy Rugby:It all started with Maher, Spirit Fingers, Lots of laughs. After that, we knew we would be alright. What followed consisted of Rugby, Chicks, Drinking, Late night conversations, busted neck, chicks, hunting, Kristin, helping Bill over the fence, and some schoolwork in between. Seeing Dane in action was quite an experience, I know, I was there (right next to him) the first time. The second time I observed Dane's prowess was not as entertaining though considering my sister was the one involved. However, the third time (on the fifty) Dane redeemed himself with the LORD. Things Dane learned: FMB, EAFD, Never play cards with male cheerleaders from Ole Miss, A big green potty mouth, the sickest humor ever known to man...and Kristin to complement him fully.

Thomas Stringer

Yo, I'm TR, capische!? Cars, cars, girls, surfing, girls, sharks, cars. Pura Vida! The shark isn't smiling! If there is one piece of advice we can give, lay off the Axe. But seriously, you are probably one of the coolest guys from Jersey that we know. Maybe the only cool guy from Jersey we know. Good luck in the future. Rah!

Logan Swogger

Logan's cunning personality allowed him to emulate the characteristics of his favorite animal, the fox. His mountain man personality drew him to many outdoor adventures including the occasional weekend rock climbing excursion. His obsession with the color orange kept him safe during his holiday hunting trips and his short time on the Naval Academy High Powered Rifle Team. However, his "great" hats also allowed him to stand out in a crowd. He found daily happiness during the academic year by playing as many time consuming games as possible. Logan will be assuming the proud ranks of the Navy Pilot community.

Matthew Talibon

Matt:Roomies for four years...longer than most of your crushes...most. The ultimate odd couple; you made me watch the girliest shows. A heart like none other. I don't care what you say, the south will rise again. "What to do: a paper due tomorrow or NHL '06?" Mary Washington... need I say more? You had more civvies than any one, but only wore shorts and tees. Are you gonna learn to do laundry? You worked hard for five years; you made it and no one can take that from you. My brother, you will make a great leader of Marines. Running. Running. Running. After 4 years, I think Matt has covered the yard more times than anyone else at school. Street Hockey and other intramurals. No one hated to lose more than he. When it came to girls, Matt knew how to become friends with them one day, and then the next make them mad where they hated him. Only him. Matt we love you.

Matthew Wiegand

Matt Wiegand. Legendary...shooot it! That is how we get elegant. Mini Holland Stands, upside-down Jacky Ds, gargoyles, Ram's Head's 100 brews of the world, the wicket, tiki Tuesdays before the blindside of firstie year, boardwalk 40s strolling, the works. Here's to crazy Ivan, leather face, giant alligator head, clueless hunter, lady liberty, free soup golfer, batman, star patrol, emo kids, and all the characters of the Wiegand family (basement) table. First to confirm the party and first for an optimistic viewpoint Wiegs is equally at home hauling a ruck or a kegerator. Most well known for dressing for success(croquet, etc) and exceptional party planning abilities, we shouldn't have been surprised with the MC choice because he's got enough energy to put Dio to shame. The Corps is apparently still looking for a few good men and they're lucky to have him. From Montego Bay to DTA, a more loyal friend can not be found. As your boss might say: "May your hats fly...as high as your dreams." And no, I don't want a reggae CD.

Keide

Akinola

Kerrick Akinola is the best friend anyone could ever want to have. He would go out of his way to make sure you were ok. Even when you told him you were fine he would still keep going. He could always make the best out of any situation and he loved life to the fullest. I consider him as part of my family and would do anything for him. He made my time at the academy much more enjoyable and there is no way I could have made it through without him. I just hope he remembers me when he is famous.

Michelle

Akins

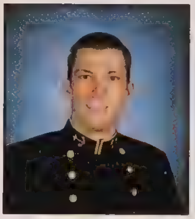
My dearest ROOMIE!, as I so fondly called her is one of the coolest cats I've ever met. Not only is she a beast on the rugby field, but she's smart too. I will never know how she was able to master her math major all while watching tv and movies while doing homework. Even though she lived in her cave, and was often on a rugby field in another state, and even though we lost Pesce and had SRob off and on, since youngster year she's been a great roommate. I always knew she was nearby with her distinct laugh and knew that if I ever wanted a margarita, she would happily escort me to El Toro Bravo; her libation station of choice. Michelle's a great lady and one I am privileged to know.



Samuel

Albert

"Now colleges from sea to sea - May sing of colors true, - But who has better right then we - To hoist a symbol hue? - For sailors brave in battle fair - Since fighting days of old, - Have proved a sailor's right to wear - The Navy Blue and Gold."

Joshua

Albright

"So hoist our colors, hoist them high, and vow allegiance true, so long as sunset gilds the sky above the ocean blue, unlowered shall those colors be whatever fate they meet, so glorious in victory, triumphant in defeat."

Guillermo Arguello

Guillermo Arguello...the man, the myth, the legend. Guillermo could be seen around the yard daily; either on a run, or lifting heavy objects training to be a navy SEAL. But Guillermo could most often be found in front of a mirror. He has been through many adventures through the years. Whether swimming the Severn, passing the screener, or surviving Fun Ship 2007. He was loved by older women, envied by younger men, and missed by all his classmates.

Collin Chesley

"Died Tragically Rescuing His Family From The Wreckage Of A Destroyed Sinking Battleship." -from The Royal Tenenbaum's

Douglas Columbus

Doug you've had many nicknames. "the rumor mill", "blue team intel", most notably "DC the CC". But hey you've been through a lot man, ridicule for rubix cubes, the bear trap incident of winter 06, the brick, 4 different roommates, your car being an accessory to a DUI, a youngster, and yes even a semester alone. Doug thanks for locking up all your food from care packages so we could only smell it until the lock pick kit arrived and turning off every light and opening every locker door before you went to bed and 10 o'clock. At least it wasn't your fault Funship '07 didn't go exactly how you wanted it (goodnight Steve). Have fun in Quantico and don't cut your hair too short. Everyone will miss that goofy kid named Doug and the time the CC bought us all shots. Have fun and be safe bro. skeet skeet skeet.

Beth-Ann Dick

The girl that is always cheerful, it is almost impossible to mess up her day. Yea, I still say that even though you have spent the last 4 years at the Academy and three of them with me as a roommate. I think it may be because of your glorious fetish for Sponge Bob. The shirt, pants, socks, chair, mouse pad, mouse, desktop background, stuffed animal, key chain, tooth brush, earrings, backpack, belt buckle..... that is it, right? No.. sorry, I forgot about Halloween. The girl that has 17 piercings who woke up on the floor plebe year with a black eye, who rid her horrid back brace, and will not stop dancing until the rooster crows. I must say, that I will definitely miss you. RRROOOOMMMIIIIEEEEE!!!

Jordan Dinola

To the '08 Ballers: Teague, Higgs, Cementbrain, Guishel, Rabbit, Mik, Burl, Deck, Nast, Weils and Mike Waters - You guys are my closest friends and the reason why I made it through here, I couldn't have asked for a better group of dudes to spend my four years with. (7 for Boyle) The memories I have of my time here are something I will cherish forever: Dallas Debauchery, my short stint as commander of the USS Philo, the ND roadtrips, beating ND, freakness, Canada, and PUNTA CANA. To the young guns: its your time, don't take your time together for granted, ball out and don't ever lose to Army again. To my fam: I love you guys and I wouldn't have made it anywhere without you. Special thanks to ACME you provided a sacred ground for Navy Laxers to go buck wild and share the brotherhood. My greatest pride resides in the fact I got the chance to play with the best group of guys I have ever met over a span of four years and that I am a Navy Lacrosse player.

James Fischer

"Now colleges from sea to sea - May sing of colors true, - But who has better right then we - To hoist a symbol hue? - For sailors brave in battle fair - Since fighting days of old, - Have proved a sailor's right to wear - The Navy Blue and Gold."

Dyanna

Frye

DyAnna - A beautiful name for a beautiful person. Dedicated, loyal, smart and fun - You have not wavered in your devotion to service and have made the most of every situation. When anyone reminds me that we don't get through the Naval Academy alone - I think of you. How would I have gotten through the labs, classes and our four years here? We think so alike and yet I have learned so much from you. Late night studying, study breaks, laughing at stupid videos, pictures, guy talk. Ocean internships in Hawaii and playing with dolphins. "Oh, just draw a hippo" - Hey, it worked! Hairless professors, crooked hands and scratchy throats that drove us nuts. Sir, do you know that you are not wearing any insignia?? Ma'am, is there any way we can move this quiz?? DyAnna - that stuff is going to kill you - "No! I need to get through this day first!" The OBX Marathon with the mentorship and friendship that resulted will always be special just as I treasure the friendship I have with you.

Travis

Geletzke

"Now colleges from sea to sea - May sing of colors true, - But who has better right then we - To hoist a symbol hue? - For sailors brave in battle fair - Since fighting days of old, - Have proved a sailor's right to wear - The Navy Blue and Gold."

Antron Harper

One look at Antron and several thoughts come to mind: "bear of a man," "grind my bones to make his bread," "guys get that big?" etc. Although all of those statements are true, I know the real deal. Antron L. Harper is one of the best people I know. Period. On the exterior is an intimidating, domineering figure. Internally, he is a man full of grace, poise and charm. AND I MEAN LOTS OF CHARM. Remember the bet? Not one, not two, but THREE. Remarkable. He can do it all: make you laugh out loud, buy you a beer, beat you in arm-wrestling, provide words of wisdom, pay you a compliment, talk to you intelligently about politics or science and cheer you up all in the same night. He is a proper southern gentleman of the highest caliber and quality. And to top it off, HE BEAT NOTRE DAME!! Navy football will scarcely be the same without him. I will make sure to tell my grandchildren and all those within sight or hearing about the legend of Antron Harper.

Adam Hesch

One word comes to mind when thinking of Adam Hesch and that is Perseverance. He persevered through plebe summer and plebe year. He persevered through troubles with the PRT. He even persevered being best friends with someone he loved. And He succeeded all of these goals and troubles. I will always remember all the other funny and great stuff about Adam. The nickname of "The Big Bald Boss Man", some of the ridiculous stories he would tell, and the most outrageous taste in TV shows are just a few of the fond memories. The impact that Adam has left on the company and his classmates will always be his perseverance. He is a great example of what it takes to be a great midshipmen and an officer. Adam, Thanks for always being there for us when we needed some advice from someone who knew what he was talking about and for showing us true determination and perseverance. You are a great example to all that know you.

Carolynn Hine

When she's not shopping at Kate Spade or Coach, Carolynn "Cheese Biscuit" Hine can be found up on 6-4, eating Chinese food and watching Sex and the City. Though her shoe collection isn't quite as extensive as Carrie Bradshaw's, Carolynn is still always the best-dressed on the local bar scene. She's a loyal spring break travel buddy, diligently pointing out every Kohl's and outlet mall between Annapolis and Disney World. Carolynn is a talented discus thrower for the Navy women's track and field team, and is very adept at making fun of her goofy coach. Her laid-back personality and bright cheerful smile make her great fun to be around, whether it's by initiating an impromptu dance party or suggesting a round of "Flying Nun." A great drinking companion, she takes care of drunken friends and then doesn't let them forget it the next day. All in all, Carolynn's a great friend, loyal to the last. Yaaaaay, Carolynn!!

David Jach

"It is not the critic who counts; not the man who points out how the strong man stumbles, or where the doer of deeds could have done them better. The credit belongs to the man who is actually in the arena, whose face is marred by dust and sweat and blood; who strives valiantly; who errs, who comes short again and again, because there is no effort without error and shortcoming; but who does actually strive to do the deeds; who knows great enthusiasms, the great devotions; who spends himself in a worthy cause; who at the best knows in the end the triumph of high achievement, and who at the worst, if he fails, at least fails while daring greatly, so that his place shall never be with those cold and timid souls who neither know victory nor defeat."

Joel Katz

Smeagol!! The rock and pool, is nice and cool...THERE'S A FIRE! THERE'S A FIRE!...Joel, the feet thing! The feet thing!...What's the difference between Joel Katz and a canoe?...hit your head on the table. Wait, did you just throw a lemon at me?...Dude, you just threw up on my blanket...Three championships huh? What happened to the fourth? You must suck at fencing then...Three criteria: blonde, huge rack, and rich - don't settle for anything less...Peace easy, my Jewish friend. Watch your cornhole. -JEL

JMK! When it comes to loyalty, penny-pinching, or changing that flight at the last minute to get an extra hour at home no one tops Joel. Dude, your sister is hot! A genuine gentleman that relished a good nap as much as a delectable meal (and he does like good food), but what is that hacking noise in your sleep? The submariner turned marine pilot! Joel's a prayer warrior that stops everything to lend a listening ear. No better friend than Joel. -RDV

John Kress

Terrible Tuesdays. Cantello's fishing charters. Many will never forget the infamous TBS concert of Youngster year, the events of a certain track meet in Mass., and Army Navy football 05'. High mileage in Costa Rica. Memories of a lifetime from Boone, Phoenicia, Limano. He carried on the swordfish tradition better than any in recent memory. Always down for a little new boot goofin'. Sinatra. The first one to be reformed. The zoo-keeper. Rat Pack forever.

Jasen Lee

Jasen Erik Lee or should we say Jufi (inside joke - but truth be told he was anything but as he graduated in the top 106). Jufi is one of the most committed individuals in '08. Loyal to his friends, he will bend over backwards to help you. It has been an interesting 4 years by the bay with this kid and looking back we can't help but smile though the good and the bad. Witty sarcasm and good laughs followed Jasen wherever he went and we never experienced a dull moment or Jasen would chime in with one of his many politically incorrect statements, even quotes about Mozart. He's a straight shooter who never broke the rules or found himself in trouble. Jasen made friends with everyone, including the express office guy! Did you ever get Joel to that club? No man wants to be a Marine more than Jasen. A very tough nut to crack and open up and we give kudos to anyone who has. He's a great guy who will do well in the fleet because of his drive and determination to excel. Suns out, guns out!

James Manderino

"Now colleges from sea to sea - May sing of colors true, - But who has better right then we - To hoist a symbol hue? - For sailors brave in battle fair - Since fighting days of old, - Have proved a sailor's right to wear - The Navy Blue and Gold."

Ross Matheny

"So hoist our colors, hoist them high, and vow allegiance true, so long as sunset gilds the sky above the ocean blue, unlowered shall those colors be whatever fate they meet, so glorious in victory, triumphant in defeat."

Stephen

Mindek

Always trying to get a laugh, Steve spent his time at the academy driving to Ohio, looking forward to flying for Southwest, counting down from 3 in Spanish and all in all sticking his foot in his mouth. His dinner with the Supe resulted in a Senator and 4 star Admiral having to get a shot before Steve was put in quarantine for having the Mumps. His loyal, but bitter roommate delivered food 2-3 times a day until he was released 8 days later. Leaving the academy, we put Steve in the hands of his 'much loved' fiancée and look forward to another open bar.

Jessica

Orr

Jess - I never fully understood what a life long friend was until I became friends with you. Very seldom in life is anyone fortunate enough to meet a friend as compassionate, caring, funny and devoted. I will remember your first Monster and staying up for three days afterwards. Dancing with Master Chief Quibilan, profs and facial hair. Awkward conversations with ex-boyfriends and a sprint player #69... whats that mean again?? Jess-O! NWT would never have been the same without you. A valid member of the J-team and the 15 girls. Getting lost to Aquarium St., 1 beer at the bowl game, or, rather, a half. KART- what does that stand for? Remember a 1/4 bagel is a meal and sharing your funnel cake with 6 of your friends means 0 calories. Long Islands on YPs. USS Germantown: our sole reason to be aviators. You have worked so hard for everything, and it is impossible to dislike you. You know who your friends are and always take care of them. I don't think I would have made it through without you.

Andrew

Pace

First class to Boston, Haikus, Hopkins and rental cars, Monster truck rallies, Baltimore, and Beam Black. FLUGTAG!!! Ram's Head on Tuesdays, Price is Right, and the magic of 0.08. Starting the beer club and ending at 1. Chasing Hurricanes and cheering on Tigers. The Ogden and the Mighty J. Come arounds with Drewiske and the CDO freaking out. Staying after lunch until kicked out. Mid of the Month? Really? From 29th to 6th. 72 hours straight CDO. 48 hours of BOOW. 3 section duty, now 4, now 8. The last real any year. Talks with Major J. Pace Pilzner.

Sarah

Roberts

There once was a little girl named Sarah whose coordination was something to behold. She decided the Academy was the best place for her, and good thing she did. Though she experimented with different companies, a Bearshark she eventually became. Crew started as something to do after school, and quickly became something much, much more. Commanding a battalion didn't get in the way of her finding her love, getting good grades, or making the 1V (on both sides); although D-Lo may have felt otherwise. Because "rah" is an appropriate answer to everything and because she truly has no "dimmer," we know Sarah will excel in the USMC.

David

Schmitt

David J Schmitt. A true ghost midshipmen. Trapped far away in 6322 spent many nights tutoring your friendly/somewhat retarded roommate, and toss the ball in the cubby. Stalking the creepy army kid then moving on to superman tights and Mexican masks as scare tactics. When the tall and round fought through your defenses you became the rightful owner of THE BRICK holding that honor longer than anyone in 25th. Soon you blossomed into a full party animal. Thanksgiving on Strong Island 10-0 beerpong champs! Flugtog and your 21st in sin city where you formed new habits. Then spring break cruise with the other Dave the other Mexican and of course Frank. It only took a combination of Fisher and Atlantic City once to drain your wallet. To negate this gambling/parting debt you invested money in stock known to many as Rams Head. When that failed you turned to a lone shark. Now you'll room with the fish and go to flight school. Good luck with both though you'll only need help with the first.

Carlin

Song

"Four years together by the Bay where Severn joins the tide, then by the Service called away, we've scattered far and wide: but still when two or three shall meet, and old tales be retold, from low to highest in the Fleet will pledge the Blue and Gold."

Robert Spalding

"Now colleges from sea to sea - May sing of colors true, - But who has better right then we - To hoist a symbol hue? - For sailors brave in battle fair - Since fighting days of old, - Have proved a sailor's right to wear - The Navy Blue and Gold."

Benjamin Storozum

Some decided to invest their student loans in stocks, bonds, or mutual funds. But not Ben, he decided to invest his 30K in a Toyota truck, Trek road bike, Orbea time trial bike, Zipp wheels, and two Cyclops PowerTaps. After joining the cycling team he quickly rose to the position of Grand Master Puba in charge of excessive expenditures and European Cycling Rules. Although failing to comply with many rules, he always maintained a proper shave and socks of the right length and positioning. I will never forget Ben for his abrasive sense of humor, uncanny knowledge of the happenings of the European Pro Peloton, and his ridiculously old age. Always concerned with ounces and grams on the bicycle, Ben never seemed to try and remove pounds from his body. Never achieving a truly cyclist's body will probably go down as Ben's single biggest academy failure. Titles aside, and looking past his sometimes rash comments, we will always remember him as who he really was, simply Ben.

Ryan Van Loo

WHAT?! JACKPOT! YAHTZEE! Dude, you've got a chin. Naptime? Mozart! What an air raid siren of an alarm clock. Where's Ryan? Um, Glee Club? Ho Chi Minh a week before graduation. Don't forget who introduced you to Strongbow. Dutch and awesome...Ryan's one of the best there is. He could get anything done last minute, which was a good thing because he spent the rest of his time solving his friend's problems and listening to their vents. He entertained the youngsters and nurtured the plebes. Constantly sang both on and off stage. Phantom of the Opera. It is well with my soul. Oklahoma! Damn Yankees. Rule Brittannia! Olaf Trygvason! You were there, don't you? Pass me the Framboise Lambic! Then buy hundreds of dollars of BluRay DVD's. The quintessential gentleman and a scholar, not to mention a leader and a standout in the classroom, musical activities, and intramural sports. Ryan's spirit, dedication, and magnificent first tenor voice endeared him to all who had the honor of knowing him.

Mikelis Visgauss

"So hoist our colors, hoist them high, and vow allegiance true, so long as sunset gilds the sky above the ocean blue, unlowered shall those colors be whatever fate they meet, so glorious in victory, triumphant in defeat."

James Woods

"Four years together by the Bay where Severn joins the tide, then by the Service called away, we've scattered far and wide: but still when two or three shall meet, and old tales be retold, from low to highest in the Fleet will pledge the Blue and Gold."

Gregory Zerr

Greg, or GT, is a simple country boy from the promised-land of South Dakota. Wilderness areas watch out when this Great American has a machete in hand, and brigade stripers watch out when this two-time PMO has something to say. Hopefully no more fat kids eyeballing cupcakes, but if so, you'll always have your extensive MCMA knowledge to keep them in line. And there's nothing like a spin at 0530 to clear the mind. It's certainly been a pleasure. Good things and straight chill. Rah!

Bostic

You once said to me, "I'm extraordinarily patient provided that I get my own way in the end." Well, maybe that was Margaret Thatcher. Now that I've mentioned her, I must say that you two share quite a few qualities, minus the whole uptight and British thing. She was the first female Prime Minister of the UK, and you are the first person I've ever been absolutely terrified to get in a car with. She is older than dirt and, let's face it, at your core so are you. I know it's just killing you that you won't be a Marine, but James Bond has got NOTHING on you. I would also like to thank you for upping my street cred - being friends with a spy is legit (so is being friends with an illustrious member of "the list"). Michelle, I will miss you more than words can say. I will miss your shining face, your brilliance, your wisdom (me: "How do you stay so slim?" you: "I'm ANGRY all the time and I don't eat.") and your wit. As you climb the ladder of success, don't let the boys look up your skirt.

Charles

Breaux

I'll always remember: N-26, "Just chillin out with your Gatorade, Breaux", lost bets, "and the rest we send off to the glue factory…", crazy times in New Orleans, relaxing in D.C., too many people to whom I owe too much, too many good times to mention, and Major's final piece of advice. Semper Fi.

Rachel

Florea

Rachel Florea is an amazing woman, I tell you what. If something needs to get done, she'll get it done, and if something needs shot, she'll do that too. An ace with a pistol and a knockout in a skirt, she fulfills "classiest mid" role in my book. But, not only is she both sexy and a good shot, she's also crazy smart, and one of those people who get upset about anything less than an A. She's blunt, she's straight forward, she's smart, and she's witty. She's a lady worth knowing.

Matthew Gieszl

Matt made his mark plebe year by spraining his ankle the first day of plebe summer. But it's ok, those shellfish muffins were the perfect medicine. Continuing on through the years, da Geez had some interesting bouts with 26th company.... Rocky Point ghetto primo anyone? Protramid West sobriety club? And who can forget Punta Cana '08! Best of luck, see you out there! Fini.

William Gifford

To the best friends a guy could have: M.S. for following me across the country, J.W. and S.M. for putting up with me for four years (and maybe more), B.M. and J.S. for putting me up for four years; the rest of the roughrider gang; the volleyball players, the Frisbee players; summer training: leatherneck, sub cruise, what was I thinking? skating through Systems with B.M. and J.S.; spirit spots on the weekends; all the concerts; trips to VT/Canada (thanks Chief); nights in J.S.'s basement with his crazy gf; Shanton's basement once and never again (sorry about the shirt, mom); Mo Bay; Ring Dance (and Ring Dance night); my 21st (you're welcome J); Service Selection night (dodged a bullet); DC 26.2; ND and 'Hey there Christina'; bowl game in San Diego and The Hyatt gingerbread house; SB in Punta Cana with the guys; driving up to PA with M.G. (empathy for life); Carmel, home forever; love always to my parents; four great years that I wouldn't trade for anything. See you in Pensacola!

Lauren Griebel

From the moment Lauren stepped into T-Court for the I Day ceremony, she has had a smile on her face. Waving to the parents with her short "Snoop Dogg" hair cut, she was determined to make the best of her 4 years at USNA. Lauren was always up for a good time which made her many friends. She perfected the shin trap with Navy Women's Soccer and she even donned a Superman ensemble to keep the team's spirits high during a tough season. Some of her best memories include crazy nights on her friends' birthdays, two out of four Thanksgivings in the Hall, and mysterious damages to her sponsor's house. Even drastic jaw surgery couldn't keep her down! She became the best Navy Women's Swim team manager and enjoyed long walks around the Academy to keep in shape. Joining the Surface Warfare community after graduation, Lauren is proud of her SWO-momma future. Lucky for the JPJ, they are getting one of the most fun-loving officers you could ever imagine! Love, Kari

Janel Hansen

"Janet" started off her Academy career with a bang! She nursed a fractured pelvis all of plebe year. Having recovered from that horrible debacle, she attacked Youngster year and Second Class year with fierce, new dedication and stamina. Her healthy addiction to coffee made her a new woman! Partying like a "RockStar", she dragged her roommate to DMB concerts and WWE performances. She took long weekends in Washington State, Vegas, NYC, and anywhere else there were convenient flights to. All the while, she somehow managed to stay on top of work and school (with no little help from coffee). A month backpacking through the Himalayan Mtns. helped "the Hippie" finally came into her own Firstie year. She worked out like a fiend, making up for all of plebe year and those countless times dodging intramurals, and served as first semester Protocol Officer and second semester 1st Platoon XO. Finally! Found that balance between work and play!

Daniel Harris

"Now colleges from sea to sea - May sing of colors true, - But who has better right then we - To hoist a symbol hue? - For sailors brave in battle fair - Since fighting days of old, - Have proved a sailor's right to wear - The Navy Blue and Gold."

John Hartsog

Nobody could ask for a better friend than JJ Hartsog. In four years, he has always looked for ways to help others, culminating in a semester of sleepless nights as company commander. While the rest of us worked on Capstones and enjoyed firstie year, he constantly tackled the problems of 140 Rough Riders. Rarely one to raise his voice, he succeeded as CC through the trust and respect we all held for him. Despite these demands on his time, as well as those of the notorious Mech E department, JJ always managed to have fun. Whether he was leading wild excursions through College Park or just keeping the rest of us out of trouble in the Caribbean, he is the buddy everybody needs when going out. JJ's future in the submarine force is bright, and I wish him all the best in Charleston and wherever else life takes him.

Justin Howell

"So hoist our colors, hoist them high, and vow allegiance true, so long as sunset gilds the sky above the ocean blue, unlowered shall those colors be whatever fate they meet, so glorious in victory, triumphant in defeat."

Joseph Hubley

Joe will definitely go far in the Navy and in life. He has shown hard work and dedication at the Academy. This is evident in his achievements including a full scholarship to MIT for Nuclear Engineering. Even though he works hard in school, Joe still finds time to relax and hangout with the guys. From tequila spring breaks in the Caribbean to chasing girls every weekend at the University of Maryland, Joe definitely knows how to have a good time. Joe always has a good story or joke to cheer anyone up. "Tailor your butt or tailor your trou." Some of these revolve around Gordie or Felipe and their various escapades together. He is also an extremely loyal friend, and goes out of his way for others all the time. Joe likes to make friends anywhere, like the people he met at the CP bars and shared late night pizza with. Joe is someone everyone should get to know because he's an amazing guy and great friend.

Reyn Kaupiko

From the Halls of Kamehameha to the rocks of China Walls, "Mister Aloha" embodied Hawaii wherever he would go. Whether it was with the Mexico Border Patrol, 'mixing' with others with that famous orange bucket, or PTing at West Point, Reyn did it all while pretending to shake dem' dreads. He had a knack for giving nicknames such as 'Captain Crunch', a talent for creating words such as 'C-Rats', and invented the party favorite Li Hing Mui Tequila. While always the bridge-builder, he constantly played 'firefighter' after many bridges expectantly caught fire. Reyn is a Napster, Navy Football player, 'shirt off his back' (literally) type of friend and above all, the super hero older brother to his siblings. This Ambassador of Aloha will be welcomed wherever he goes. Move over Dr. Chun!

Leone

Some things that I'll always remember: 4/C mini-me, bonfires, "the sun is so hot", shotguns and clays, goat herding, electric fences, "relationship contracts", trying to find nonexistent cows, cigars on every rooftop on the yard, saran wrap, bubbly fountains, moving torpedoes, USAFA jump - push it, turtling out, battleship pong, broken snowboards (twice), early rounds of drinks, maple taffy, Notre Dame exploring, Officer Mulligan, Gieszl and the cougar den, random Irish house party, $20 on black, immediately cashing out, bad beats at the Trop, penny slots, Urbano Antillon and his newly found "East Coast representation", direct to you in 20 minutes or less, Danny Gans, "Who's the big winner?", switching to a service selection of Marine Corps and never looking back.

Marshall

MIDN Marshall, or simply Buddy, was a naturally brilliant student, flashy handballer, lofty ultimate Frisbee-er, and high flying volleyball player. His interests include cars (BMW's), girls, sleeping, and indie music. Rarely at his desk, he was most at home on the athletic fields or restriction musters of the academy. He led the company's handball team to multiple brigade championships. His ESP like connection to his charming and handsome roommate on the Ultimate Frisbee pitch was legendary. Nicknamed "Teflon" Buddy, problems were quick to slide away, from independent research to morning quarters formation to haircuts, Buddy knew how to choose what was really important in life. His skills (volleyball) will serve him well at Pensacola where he will become a Naval Aviator. Good luck Buddy, never cut that hair, and never let them get you down. Too close for missiles, I'm switching to guns.

Friends, do they last longer than diamonds?Because I know if you smashed two diamonds together, you'd get Steve and I. The studying binges followed by Friday afternoon, and Saturday, comas will never match any partying nights. The craziest times Steve ever had were unplanned.Steve is also a human polygraph. Like a judge staring down an accused man, he could get the truth out of anyone. But he only did such if he cared about a person, because the other people could go on being phonies. He was known to take a bullet or two for his true friends in the trenches.It's hard to live up to the character people build. I don't think that he had to try. A more impressive human being I have yet to find. A more tolerant roommate or friend I don't believe exists, though I tried to press his buttons with my antics. He is one of the few to truly leave his mark on a place and its people, not to mention a few on me after some disagreements. But in the end, Steve will never let you down.

Shanton

I'll always remember: shooting clays, electric fences, goat herding, bonfires and "The sun is so hot"; floor stripper rides while cleaning, bubbly fountains, and cigars on every building roof; maple taffy, broken snowboards, early drinks, and Canadian fights; trips to Notre Dame, Air Force, and various colleges; bad beats at the Trop, $20 on black, Danny Gans, 20 minutes or less, winning once at roulette and cashing out immediately, and "Who's the big winner?"; saran wrapping Chief's car, Shamrockfest shenanigans, late night/early morning poker games, a VIP room in our Ring Dance limo, switching from Navy to Marine Corps and never looking back... ## Jason Sutton

Couldn't ask for a better roommate, he had a fast car, a sharp wardrobe, and speakers loud enough to blow women's clothes off. Mo bay, park city sunburn-that cougar's yours bro, punta cana breakfasts, coco locos and waterfront Frisbee. Summers at vfest, trapshooting, talking heads, Mario tennis, sno cone stand, J&Ps, san diego bonfires, the big cheese, chick and ruth's PRT, service selection night, soft serve and d-gren. ND 46 to 44, the backer. Arctic ultimate, facebook stalking, biggest stereo in Bancroft, didn't get killed by his roommate. Interpol, the national, dave, buffet, paul simon, LCD, killers, shins, belle & sebastian, daft punk, modest mouse. Slutton - ice cream girls, muse girls (what happened back there?), Amanda, Caitlin, Kathryn, Caylie, Taylor, Lauren (just Lauren), Dana and Mindy (don't need a million bucks after all), Sheryl, Meg, Allison, and Katie Budd.

Andrew Thorn

It's hard to believe that we did it, that we actually made it… does this mean I'm an adult now? From 6-0 dance parties, to study-hour volleyball, to laying out on the roof, and everything in between, the Academy really has been an adventure. I cannot thank enough and will never forget all the people who helped me grow and find myself over the last four years: Mom, Dad, Chris and Matt for ALWAYS being there when I needed them~ Justin, Mishka, Amelia and the rest of 2-6 for putting up with me and my sarcasm for four years and smiling (or replying in equal measure) all the way ~ the BC3, because they are who they are and I love them for it ~ Laura, the greatest Ginger there is (even if she doesn't have a soul) ~ Jay and 1718 for being a home away from home ~ and T, the Crew, the City, and my friends for keeping me sane and embracing me for who I am. I love you all. 4 down… 5 to go!!!

Roger Wieland

RFW=Quite possibly the greatest man that ever lived. When he wasn't missin the island, livin the life of a laxer or getting love on the field, you could find him at Acme buying everyone he knew shots, smacking balls with one of his 6 sets of golf clubs or simply taking a leisurely drive downtown in his S4 strolling for some St. Mary's females. No one will ever forget Coach Wheels, Mama Wheels and the debauchery that took place up at the LI pad. Gangsta parties, pig piles, love casket, robbing the cradle, Roger did it all. Whether it was lax, tossing the pig skin or bravo golf, Rog's athletic abilities boggled the minds of the multitudes. Nice toss, nice snag, nice abs, thanks. Throughout NAPS and four years of prison, Roger has always been a good friend to everyone and someone you can trust completely. A solid bro, a remarkable wingman, a stellar athlete and an overall great person. So chill.

Alexander Wilhelm

Alex "Da Vil" Wilhelm = brilliant man...or just really lucky? Not quite sure how he graduated actually. If he wasn't getting swol in Average Joe's or shredding the halls of mother-b, he could usually be found having a few drinks and relaxing while spitting his game to the female population (usually in the 7-10 range...but sometimes much lower) of the greater DTA/B-more area. Are you two brothers? Tall-Tee's, the Condor, Slam Pig, Jonathan of Love Casket, Abercrombie…so chill. Nice toss, nice snag, nice abs, thanks. College Park cops that look like The Rock. If there was something outrageous happening, he was there, and was always down for rockin out with the bros. Through his six year plan, he was a good friend, the person you could trust and a down-to-earth kid. More craziness seems to be in store for Al-Bro McChillhelm but who knows, maybe we'll see him settle down later in life by himself with some cats. Dude, it must suck to be ugly and not good at anything. BG

Acosta

Tina Bina, a.k.a. Chris, disproved accusations that she is a midget, in fact she proved that she clears this standard by a whopping inch! Do not let her shortness fool you though. You mess with her and she will take you down in one catlike motion with her brute strength and New York attitude. As a member of the power lifting team she placed 2nd at nationals. Not only would she beat you in a fight, she would undoubtedly destroy you on the dance floor. We tried to learn her ways from the many dance parties but could never master her skills. Besides dancing, Tina could be found watching movie trailer after movie trailer, looking at shoes on the internet, watching Hoops and Yoyo e-cards, buying useless random crap at the Midstore, attending Elf parties, or holding hands with HERBERT. She has always been there when we needed her and will be an amazing leader as a Marine.

Brooks

In the sultry nights of White Heat, this sea urchin hailing from Amityville, NY has been known to make one or two love confessions in his day. He also enjoys fighting fire with his useless lights in his suburban. As well as being a bumper sticker champion, he has remained throughout his 4 years at the academy, a superb confidant of the dark side.He will continue to feel sorry for himself until everyone can scream "SCRUMS IN!!" during his victory with his true love.

Lauren

Burmeister

You treat everyone as a friend and it is no overstatement to say that you are loved by everyone. We are so lucky to have been graced with you as a roommate. You might say that "you're glad we've realized how terrible our lives would be without you". We will always remember your seductive dance solos (accompanied with the sweaty shirts stains, of course), love for vegetables, cowies,and <high pitched voice> "de baby Corben" and we have faith that someday you will overcome your fear of butterflies and ladybugs. Your diligent work ethic both as a systems engineer and track captain were inspiring for all. We just have one question: What is that clothing item you wear when it's really cold outside? It rhymes with boat.

James

Christensen

Italian cars and Italian Women. James enjoys the finer things in life. Whether it is Notre Dame, Army Navy or just a random weekend in DTA we will always remember the good time. I couldn't ask for a better roommate and a better friend. Somehow he got through the entire firstie year with three stripes having only officially accumulated two. He is the only man I know that can leave for a week but make his room look like he's only stepped out for a few minutes leaving music blaring, lights on, and clothes everywhere. At one point, he owned more pairs of core frams than I think most women do shoes. Life is Drill when you're a Submariner. '...don't be like me...'

Dade

James Dade... also known by his shipmates as: Yard dog, Tadpole, Daderade, Dader, JD, and J-Dizzle... hails from Nashville, Tennessee. Originally planning to be a marine, Dader found his way into the Supply community after years of duck hunting finally caught up to him. Fond memories of James as a midshipman: Multiple appearances in the brigade boxing championship, tailgating longer and harder than anyone in Annapolis, and constantly leading from the front. The occupants of room 8161 will always be remembered for their exemplary room standards... and particularly for the visits they received from Gunny Trotter, Colonel Benson, and a random OOW that flipped out on Rob.

Kyle

Durrant

The only man I know who can take 22 credits and still have zero homework. Why go to Blockbuster when you can rip movies off of his Terabyte server where he spends more time loading new DVDs than he ever spent on his Capstone? My roommate, best friend, and highly misunderstood best man. Despite all efforts to the contrary, there are people that actually like him. A true man of God. He has the smoothest legs of any man I know, but its cool, he's a swimmer and looks good in a kilt. Unfortunately, the Sun really hates Kyle. No, its cool man, I will stop doing my homework so you can sleep. 700 movies and counting.

Lorelei

Gaus

My longest relationship ever. Four years. It's been an amazing journey. I-Day: "My name is Lorelei Gaus and I'm from Garland, TX," in the thickest Southern accent I have ever heard (you grew out of it). "GAUS, rhymes with HOUSE!" "What would you rather do, uniform races or read?" "I want to read!" Holding out Ships and Aircraft on a bulkhead...We've come a long way since 17 "arrogants" and the days when all you did was rave about Shiner Bock and Wingstop (or maybe that was just Sean and the rest of the posse). Calling me on cruise from New York. "You're like my sister!" Immediately followed by "homeless style" outside of a bar. Calling me on New Years, "Happy New Year!" "Uh, it's not even close to midnight yet." Bonding over shopping and crazy sponsor stories. I feel so blessed that we were thrown together on I-Day. I couldn't have asked for a better roommate and friend. Thanks for being there when I needed you and keeping me in check. And remember, we don't do "not cute!"

Jerrod

Hammes

Since plebe year Jerrod "Pipebomb" "Hammas" spent his days matching pastel outfits and practicing his taco eating, which by the way... He's amazing at it. As a member of the infamous team of false hope, many people were fooled into thinking he wasn't even real, but to those who doubted he asks them to "kindly leave." To others Jerrod is known as St. George, the dragon slayer, who ran through the countless ranks of the Naval Academy hordes, exacting his will on the masses, while his roomates lay quietly asleep. His hunt for the perfect breeder continues.

Hayashi

MIDN Hayashi looked out for his classmates and devoted himself to the academy. He worked hard to always get things right. (Just in case they need something for my future bio.) Smile for the Asian with the camera! Since the back ranks of plebe summer, it has been "hoorah, third squad!" 7 Eleven runs at 3 AM. 4 men with Maxims. Stealing every port-o-potty on the yard and TP from Bancroft before Herndon. Spring Breaks to FL, SoCal and the Cruise. 2 years of tennis with the guys, 1 year of tennis with the girls. A trainer at heart, but loved plebes more than anyone. "Patience is a virtue." Being cadre: I love this place, but sorry, you can't have those Pop Tarts. For everything else, reference the slideshow. Or Facebook me. Thank you to everyone who has touched my life. I am grateful for you all and could not have done it without you. Best of luck in the fleet. Just remember two things: don't play in the reactor, and if the enlisted piss you off, take their power cords.

Ring Dance, Man Vault and The Hole, Battle Dumps, House of Sin…that's all I got. Spending most of my time hiding in my room and wasting time in the gym, I took full advantage of USNA. Did I miss formation? Well…I wouldn't say I missed it. 27 treated me well, and I made some good buds along the way, but right now I am at TBS, and I don't know what to write. Clingman, I still have a bunch of your stiff if you're reading…. Milcovich, I hope if you're reading this you're married…Brooks, you're probably having a tourette's spasm and cussing out loud. ## Macewan

The Rocket man hails from the middle of no-where Wyoming. Who lives in Wyoming anyways! Oh wait...Good times at Sean D's, "Another Magners Please!" Semester after semester with no money to back it up. Still broke. YP's in Charleston and So Fla, fun with the Brits. Flying around the NE in a 172. Safety pilot? SCUBA trips with 6 mile surface swim's fog and current(Kujo and the Pagan knows). Getting lost in a Jeep full of stuff. And who can forget Terminus? Always an adventure with the Mace-Wan. Keep it real bro, your wingman, CMI.

Joshua Major

From the lumber fields of Bellingham, WA to civilization in Annapolis, MD, Josh is a nerdy meat-head if there ever was one: Trident scholar extraordinaire and Men's Powerlifting Team Captain. The adventures of Pablo y Paco in Peruvia; running through freshly untrodden snow; "It's my nature, you know." Having declared war upon all things sissy (to include parades and uniforms), no one is more dependable during the time for lifting of heavy things. Friends of Josh recall lifters proclaiming their victory cheer, "Strength and Honor!" While no more appropriate words may be found for our friend, the picture is incomplete without mention of Loyalty, Tenacity, or the Intellect necessary to conquer the academic regimen as this beast. As we all go forth to serve in our units, he goes to the medical corps, to heal our sick. Do your best, Josh—you always do—and when we meet again, let it never be over the operating table, but over toasts to jobs well done, friends well kept, and lives well lived.

Sean Papso

Sean came to the Academy from 30 miles north of the city of Atlanta, Georgia. Yet, that doesn't stop him from claiming "the ATL" as his home. For someone originally from Pittsburgh, he sure takes a lot of pride in what he calls "the epicenter of Southern culture." He has been there for it all; road trip to Notre Dame, spring break in Key West, the trips to Hoboken, and every bowl game. I have not seen someone take more advantage of his four years at USNA than Sean has. He has been an aerospace engineer, Sea Trials XO, training officer, and YP CO. Yet he still found time to live it up in DTA with all of us at Pusser's, Castlebay, Ram's Head, and of course, the Fed, every weekend. "Dirty P from the ATL" will undoubtedly find much success in the future and we look forward to him one day joining the ranks of the space program.

Lindsay Parker

What to say about Linds.... OK what isn't there to say! From the great nights downtown to the crazy dance parties in the room, we have always found a way to have fun. She has always had a knack to finding the weirdest, most disturbing video clips on the internet...do you love me? I'm little boy who loves berries and cream! Jackie! Why are you crying?! Don't ask her to hold your hand in public or save you from ladybugs. She has proven to have an amazing career at the Academy, as a member of the soccer team she went to NCAA's 2 years in a row, not to mention scoring the winning goal in the first round (Nice Form!). She also held the position of company commander and led 27 to yet another great semester. All of her success will follow her as she journeys on to flight school and beyond.

Adam Robbins

Adam hails from Reston, Virginia, but "grew up" in the Navy -- his father ('69) and brother ('99) are USNA alumni. Adam knew what he was getting into! Adam never ceased to amaze his roommates with his all-nighters -- somehow pulling through the toughest test. But Adam was a "Renaissance Man", spending much quality time writing music and performing with his band "Time Tells All". None of us understand how he managed to accomplish so much... but we are very proud of him! Memorable moments in Adam's Bancroft journey: Performing at the Army-Navy pep-rally, passing plebe chemistry, having the door removed from his room by a highly focused Gunnery Sergeant, and having his white leathers taken from him as he was signing his 2 for 7's (by the same Gunny!). 27th company will always remember Adam as the "most chill guy" in the Brigade, and the talented drummer for "Time Tells All." Adam is a great classmate and friend, who will surely succeed in life - starting out on the bridge of a warship!

Elan Rotklein

On January 11, 1985, another was born into the tribe. His name was Elan Jeffery Simon Abram "The Fear" Rotklein.When he wasn't studying diligently for an upcoming test or finishing up a homework assignment, Elan spent most of his nights.....and mornings.....and afternoons catching up on some much deserved rest. Upon the rare occasion that he would awaken from hibernation, you could catch him in his natural habitat searching for loose change under his bed or lounging with his feet up in his tighty whities and jogging suit top watching movies from his external hard drive. Perhaps Elan's greatest talent was his affinity for getting sick, especially when it came to manning up....it sure was a funny coincidence. Cleary there is much to learn from this wiseman from Alexandria.

Rebecca Tucker

You can always count on Becca for several things: 1. to have the most horse pictures of anyone we know, 2. perfectly placed, gorgeous blonde hair, 3. always the last one up, and 4. to always have the sarcastic comment to add into any conversation. The 4 years of track with Lauren made tons of great memories, can't forget beating ARMY 6 times with the help of her mad hops. Late night paper writing with Chris and staying till the last day of finals with Linds (hey you know that one song... YEAH, I love it too!!). You have always been there for everyone, especially your roommates. We couldn't have asked for a better roommate. You will do GREAT flying across the skies in your jet. --- Wow, finally over! Thanks to all who have been there for me. 27, you are all awesome! LB, CA, LP, CT, LH, MW, MI, JW, JC, GH, LW, KB(hj5!), and all the others, couldn't have asked for better friends. Until we meet again, God bless. ...and LY: dream on ;)

Jordan White

The northern California conservative; if you could take SWO and make it some kind of tangible object, he is it. "I'll take a Smirnoff Ice please. What? It has the same exact alcohol content as any beer if not more." "What do you mean this is a Brigade striper interview? I wanted to be a squad leader." Sing your sea shanties proud and don't forget to "roll the old chariot along." ~SAP

Ever since plebe summer Jordan has never been at a loss for words. It doesn't matter who it is Jordan always has something to say and could carry on a conversation with himself for hours. ~KED The only guy I know who can "be there in five minutes" and never show up. A true friend, yo. I can't wait to party at the Buchanon House when you are Sup. Jordan is a true irony who has no problem letting the ladies know "they look good." If I ever need a tattoo I will give you a call. He wasn't here to make friends but he ended up doing so anyway, though all the underclass hate him. Thumbs up for a job well done swotivator. Jordan's Grandma rocks. 6 beers. ~JKC

Ryan Yonkman

When asked to describe Ryan Yonkman, the primary manner in which any close friend would choose to illustrate him (besides, of course, "freakishly tall") would have to be "dependable". For instance, anyone knows that Ryan can be depended upon to never allow exams or term papers to distract from important affairs such as sleeping, ninja baseball batman, "funny stuff," or any opportunity to break out the classic bowties and body paint. Or, for example, Ryan can be counted upon to be dress appropriately for any occasion, as long as "appropriately" involves one of his innumerable pastel shirts and khaki pants, or the occasional flight suit. The Notre Dame Game, Club 8131, Big Lebowski bowling, weekends at U-Penn with the "crew", club lacrosse in exotic locales, Halloween costumes designed for four-year-olds, and the weeks spent at the hospital bedside of our comrade Henk; Ryan truly is the link between a tall stature and leadership ability. You will always be our company commander.

Laura Yoon

"Probably one of the least likely people you would expect to eagerly dive in to a huge plate of Corned Beef Hash at Chick-N-Ruth's deli, this is Laura Yoon. Four years of an unpredictable and sometimes rocky journey with the same roommate has developed into what I can only imagine sisterhood would be like. Throughout all the great memories and experiences of the Naval Academy, her friendship, kindness, and sense of humor remain a constant. As life is now pulling us in different directions, I will dearly miss having your companionship and an ear to vent to! And don't think that since I'll be far away that I won't be doing hand checks until you're 35! All joking aside, I wish you the best and brightest future; I can think of no one more deserving than you."-LG

27: I love you all. Tina, Burms, Linds: I'm going to miss you girls like crazy. LG: Thanks for putting up with me. RT: I'm better than you. To my family and God: I couldn't have done it without you. Remember, Enjoy the Ride!

Benjamin Almond

Gregory Benjamin Almond was a good-ole Southern boy; He loved his momma and threatened to sic his sisters on anyone that came near them. Trained in the arts of sniping in the jungles of Bancroft Hall by Satan herself, he left many a teammate facedown in the sand at the Atlantis beach while he frolicked in the water with his lovely prey. Not only is Greg a great warrior in the battle of cruise girlfriends, he is constantly vacuuming and reading cookbooks so that he may one day become the trophy housewife he is destined to be.

Travis Atkins

It started on I-Day, JUN 30, '04, straight from Allen High. It wasn't long before I started longing for Texas (a recurring theme). Plebe Summer. Steinpfad. Roth and Zasadny during Plebe Year. Herndon; done. The "fun" begins. 7 Mids on Louisiana with HMS Trafalgar sailors in Kings Bay. "The Storm" on CSNTS to Newport. 54 days of leave! Youngster yr, the "changes." Roommates I wanted. Comp games and best year (but worst grades) DTA on Friday nights in before 9PM in SDBs. Sumer: leave, 4 week waste of PROTRAMID, YPs (sucked) south (rocked!). 2nd Class year, well, at least I got in ridiculous shape. Goodbye Maj Wadle, hello LT Cox (and BUHYEAH! YNCS Johnson in there somewhere.) Repressed Bancroft memories. Awesome Plebes. Squad Challenge. Perfect pre-LN PFT. 3 dates for Ring Dance. Summer: Austin! (best time ever!), Leatherneck ("Rah"), YPs (681 again?, at least south, all balls with Will) Room improves then backwards. NFO, that was on my list? Never. Marine Corps for life. Peace and fun.

Andrea Bosch

After growing up fighting with and drinking with Pirates in Belize,Drea came to USNA as an intl student having to learn to speak English, and overcome Andrew Vagley. Her admirable spirit sent her forward, and she made lasting impressions with many people. Driving a car over a 2 story house, dressing up like Jessica Alba, and spotting bears many times in DTA were pastimes.Strict, quiet, and boring. Nonononono..this definitely does not describe Drea. Ohh, this is my favorite song..what are the words? Always ready for a good time and a free drink.Friendly, free loving, and flirtatious by nature, she was always the life of the party. Every room should have a crazy carefree Bzean to help them through the hard times. Always optimistic, she made the best of every situation she was in. Drea always offered a shoulder to cry on and an ear to listen, supporting her friends at all times.You better Bze it! She moved back to Bze and started a successful drug cartel with twin brother Javi also class08.

Jason Cammarata

How did we make it through it all...? Here's to falling in love and falling out of love too. To turkey dinners and campaign toasts. A bar named Nevins, the weekend getaway and Broadway stage. Baltimore gambles and all or nothing nights. There was an Austrian Princess, a Beauty Queen and I-Ball debauchery. A EE scandal and a court room victory. Here's to sticking it to the man. There were countless political debates and endless smoke pit nights. Through it all you were an unwavering loyal friend. Here's to Wiley Jay and another ride with his immortals.

Bryan Carlson

It's hard to believe that we are out of here. Bryan has been my roommate, classmate, and dear friend. He's had an unending dedication to the Men's Glee Club (always being on time to every event) and accomplishes whatever he has put to his mind. I will always remember those times with MGC (the good and the bad), those times we hung out, and those times we would poke fun at each other while studying. You have taught me three lessons I will hold very close: the importance of an easy attitude, understanding, and kind heart. As we move on to the Fleet remember those 4 years, 4 spring tours, and all the times in between. Thank you for your dedication, easy attitude, but most of all your friendship. Fair winds, following seas, and always follow rules 1, 2, 3, 4a, and 4b.

Jacob Clark

Jacob showed up from central Illinois with his country drawl and herd of cattle (according to London). "Shadow plebe" would be an understatement for young Jacob during Plebe Summer. Although, he did get some one-on-one time with the Academic center for his advanced math standing. Shouldn't you have at least a minor with five calculus classes? But, you did have your nights full taking care of other things from late Plebe year..."I'd find you!!!" However, the boys down at HM-15 helped to rectify the situation, and we all got hear about that cruise (What's in Pandora's box?). That was also the summer of Operation Big Red... thank you Klowd for that combat rescue of our buddy. After that we saw a whole other semester of single Jacob, and that led to The Bet...his roommates are looking forward to a nice trip. Then, he found that "Clark Charm," haha! Good luck in the future Jacob. We will all miss the laughs and great times we had with a best friend.

Jason Crane

Jason, with trusty bull whip and fedora, has always been on a last crusade for the perfect pint of Guinness. He is an expert in aerodynamics both real and imaginary. He will always be your friend, pal, but never your guy, buddy. As a master of bushido, Jason never fails to ponder the meaning of life. A strong independent mind, the man from Bethlehem has consistently navigated through the tides of change, particularly during the months of high ROFLCOPTER spawning-intensity. Also, tequila and octopus cheese balls don't mix well. In one word, Jason was a man. In two, he was a DRAGON-MAN.

Douglas DeVuono

Even though Doug was late to plebe summer ('08.5) we knew he was destined for great things. After his brother pulled him through the first two years of the Academy Doug was ready to tackle Annapolis. After making the varsity soccer team he found his new best buddy with a ridiculously low resting heart rate. Then on to new love, but maybe little Vinny still didn't have it. The 21st birthday celebration might have gone a touch overboard but hey, class was fun the next day. Who can forget talking the four words of Italian you and TR know. Ring Dance was quite an experience. Why hit on your own date when there are so many others to choose from? Finally Spring Break '08 the crowning achievement of Doug's career. Nothing like chow calls on the Carnival Triumph at 0800 with that certain special someone. We are going to miss you buddy and we know that you are going to be successful in everything you do. Thanks for all the great times.

Christopher Familetti

What is there to say about this guy that hasn't been threatened to be told to his company officer already? Yes, it's been a bumpy ride for Christopher John Familetti, as it has been for us all, but somehow he rose to the top and acquired 4 stripes first semester firstie year! And even though the man tried to scrap his stripes from the get go, he persevered; which allowed him to piece together and lead the greatest Team Awesome squad the Academy has yet to see! I will never forget the insanely awesome adventures of the Mexican, the Italian and the ridiculously good looking Ginger...it was great times! Golfing in San Diego with V-tech? Or how about golfing period for this kid??? An unwelcome roommate every night with a foam finger! The irony of the founding President of the Surface Navy Association service selecting NFO. His everlasting struggle to perfect his dad's spaghetti sauce which ended up in the spring break 08' group forfeiting their security deposit...."just go with it"

Bryan Fishman

Physics with Adam, Galaxies and Heat, CH050.. Locked out!? YPs: CF or FB? Nav-Table, Jupiter, Big Bang Theory, The Astro..sweet, Oversight Committee for the Bureaucratic Oversight of Bureaucracies and Committees, Castle Bay, Guinness, Kai and the color Green.. or was that Orange? Montreal, Four Gallons of Pinot, Tremendous summers, Sarah's Main St. Apartment, IFS-Squatting, Danielle: 2 for the Price of Zero, Evan and why NOT to drink Wild Turkey, Chris and his midget, Courtnie and Buddah with Glasses in the Water, Snowboarding, Spring Break from Hell (Sorry, Jake), D-D or D-D&D: Oops.., 33 to 9th, Battalion Slackademics, Vamping to Explore with Doug and James, what NOT to do on a D&B MO. A little push from the Major. Four years of learning so much more than I ever expected. Thank you Mom, Dad, Yamille, Tom, and all my classmates who came along for the ride: I will love each and every one of you till the end.

Sabrina Gambill

Plebe summer geekers wasn't a choice for her. She sported those contacts for dear life. Easily distracted from anything encompassing school, she made it through with crazy summers and wild spring breaks: who remembers Panama city, midnight video camaras and sneaking into hotel rooms? How about Sunday wine runs, and collecting wardroom money after. Freezing, and blowing out vapor in the room during the winter. Dinner and a movie at NAPS, and hot uniforms. Halloween costumes... pirates anyone? Youngster rebel year. Unusual pictures on random computers. Dressing up, heading to DTA. Road trips down the east coast. Selection night, the happiest day of her life, finally finding out she got USMC. JP at 0300 2/c year. Too much memories not enough time. Not ever going to miss the rules but all the fun we had breaking them. She was never one to forget friends and was always there when you needed her. Making many great friends along the way, we will never forget all of the crazy memories we have.

Collin Hedges

If you are reading this right now you are either reading the 2008 Lucky Bag, or you are sitting in Alumni Hall at the Distinguished Graduates Awards Ceremony and I apologize that you will have to listen to him speak. A master of all trades, but Jack of none, Collin is known to have great skill and endurance in all he does. Crazy with compassion, and as logical as a Rickover interview, there are few men I would trust more on a nuclear armed submarine. His work in advanced ROFLcopter mechanics will produce lulz for yearz to come. Like an escalator, he never breaks under pressure, he just becomes stairs. As witty as a fox, but with no tail, Collin has a great ability to think on his feet, as well as while sitting and lying down. His work ethic is greater than all the knowledge contained in his brain (Top 10% of his class) and he will never pass up a question on thermodynamics. We will never forget Gravebloom.

Jeffrey Jaglowicz

It is difficult to be in the same room with Jeff without noticing his positive influence on all those around him. He is full of energy and enthusiasm, and tries to include everyone in all of the activities he is involved in. His passion for music and leadership are what are most important to him. Active in the Men's Glee Club, he has traveled around the globe sharing his gift of music, while enjoying all those around him. He has dedicated a great deal of his time to help teach those around him about leadership and life lessons. As a future Naval Aviator he will take what he has learned from his Academy experiences and continue to mature into an outstanding officer and compassionate leader of men.

Barbara Klein

Plebe year–super plebe...on the outside. Trip to DE, dating Mr. Wrong, shoulder surgery, 4.0, and through it all she claims she never once listened to music in her room. 3/C year–it all started on the USS Peliliu, with the infamous ten. They served their time, but it wasn't long before she landed back at that muster. Then came the move, 28th to 12th, and she was all but forgotten except for him and his 4th period Thursday visits. Part of her heart will always belong to 12th company '09. 2/C year–the move back, new roommates turned out to be the best friends a girl could have. She pulled herself together and then the best news of her life, Baby Barbi had been accepted. Firstie Year–it wasn't easy being 28th CC, water polo manager, and a 'mother' of a plebe, but she did it. Trips to Starbucks, dinner deliveries, study dates, but most importantly the true companionship that only a sister can provide. Yeah, it had its ups and downs. But in the end it sure was worth the ride.

Sarah Kuehl

TK, because sometimes an S is just too hard to make, who brought her penguin passion all the way from Queens to USNA. She has gone after princes and kings, been whisked away on sailboats and cruise ships, and held many a birthday partay in her honor. Never without a purple pen of power and an endless supply of "walked into a bar..." jokes. Can't forget JK and Bon Bon marshmallow roasts and ice cream. Early on experienced a total skirt transformation, moondancing on Friday nights, only to run back for taps the next night. Anything sweet or coffee strikes her fancy and 6 bucks gets you ice cream. So it's just her and this duck in T-Court. Pssh, they didn't need a manager so I just tried out. Has taken spontaneous dips in the Severn and become a Broadway know-it-all. She also knows that movie soundtracks make the best karaoke songs. Sarah brightens your day with her smile, charm, sense of humor, and ample supply of blue hair ties. Thank you for the amazing four years!

James Lawsing

"Now colleges from sea to sea - May sing of colors true, - But who has better right then we - To hoist a symbol hue? - For sailors brave in battle fair - Since fighting days of old, - Have proved a sailor's right to wear - The Navy Blue and Gold."

Jonathan Ling

"So hoist our colors, hoist them high, and vow allegiance true, so long as sunset gilds the sky above the ocean blue, unlowered shall those colors be whatever fate they meet, so glorious in victory, triumphant in defeat."

Michael London

It was annoying how by-the-books he was. Company training sergeant, Plebe summer executive officer, and company commander... really and truly a JOE. Persistently irritating would be an understatement -- singing songs with no words or real melody to himself, yelling "Jack Bauer is the man" while I was sleeping, constantly patting me on the head and prodding me for random hugs. Although his wit was not the sharpest, he was unknowingly humorous. Don't get me wrong, he had many great qualities. He was honest and candid, I mean... how could you not be when you think out loud? Also, he was compassionate, or maybe more so sensitive. Despite all the annoyances, he became one of my best friends and part of my family. He will be great at whatever he ends up doing, even if it involves whistling (which he can't do). Here's to you, Mike London -- roommate, best friend, and brother (not literally). Cheers!

Kristin Lowd

Oh, you came to the academy so innocent. Wide-eyed and a little sheltered, but with the help of some trusty friends, the door was blown off quickly (and efficiently if I might add). I think the best way to recount the years would be to go through the crushes (using the term liberally) chronologically, but you'd probably kill me. I think we can say it started Army-Navy Plebe Year... that's all I'm saying. Then there was Spring Break Plebe year... Myrtle Beach, Panama City (good thing you didn't get that palm tree), and Africa. Not to forget the return from Africa and our downtown revelation. We'll always have Mexico as well, and our GNO's and BD's... well, at least I'll have the latter. I think the best part is that this is not the end. This is definitely a "to be continued"... What else can I say? I cherish & love you -- always. Kristin Ann Lowd yous da bomb.

Mark McClure

Remember the destroyed zodiac? An unfortunate and expensive mistake for the Navy, but more so for Mark, who had a hard time living that one down that summer. From that first disastrous moment on, Mark would become heavily involved in the Offshore Sailing Program, becoming one of the most dedicated members of the team. Mark seemed to attract disastrous weather, especially on trips from Annapolis to Newport (you don't need a wheel to steer). But through the storms Mark excelled and would eventually bring back some bling. There are lots of good memories from years spent on the team: mopeds in Bermuda (was that LT???), countless nights in Newport, dark and stormies in Hamilton Harbor, and two Januarys spent in Key West (who needs school when you've got teasers?). The ring dance house (SH + RF for ever!) on St. Michaels. Mark is not only a competitor and a sailor, but an entrepreneur. Spring break in Telluride, best skiing ever, if you like wrecking yourself on double blacks and filming it.

Nicholas Mirabito

Brab Rabbit Splinter, #40 star laxer never getting any credit. Academic all star who you could always go ask for a little help in pretty much anything. Lowest pick ever to get SD but so glad he did because PB will never be the same. Most clever one liner ever "oh yea im boobie". Youngest member of The Hole, senior member of Uptown. Never a doubt where you can find him on the weekends posting up at The Acme Bar and Grill, (the only bar in Annapolis) 6 pack natty bos. Always the first one to make it rain. Loved missing all the road trips. Worst mumbler/repeated story teller in Naval Academy history. Roomed with TM where you might remember him from all sorts of movies. Having the best hook up with KMs house and always enjoying a good cuddle with anyone who would share. Will never forget the "so underrated" equipment in rickets. Would rather sit and watch MTV realality tv then anything else. Mayor of goal city. Best friend a guy could ask for.

Jason Miyoshi

Adept in the art of stealth, Yoshi is very likely watching you read this right now...Yoshi's good nature and friendliness is matched by his dedication. He is a member of the 2% club. Yoshi contains a large portion of the nation's strategic awesomeness. A life long member of the nerd herd, and a master of the magical smoke inside capacitors, Haiku is the only form of writing that can justly describe Jason:Jason Miyoshi
Electrical Engineer not as emo as he seems

Christopher Montague

Chris showed up to the Academy ready to go after spending the last 17 years in training for the Academy and Flight School from his father and of course the youngest kid gets paired up with our only prior. Luckily his roommates were able to save him from becoming another Aero social outcast. Waiting until halfway through your firstie year to turn 21 is no fun but he made up for lost time on the Carnival Triumph... Wheelchair! Never before has a kid apologized so many times for having a bit too much to drink. We will miss you buddy, you were always there for us. Now take flight, it's where you belong.

Jacob Norgaard

Jake is an avid lover of wildlife and knee high socks. He enjoys taming the wild panda and bringing the beast into civilized areas for gregs fun. He is the best. he will never forget jims pigment or gregs jumping jacks. Helicopter, helicopter, helicopter. "Jim the shower isnt big enough for both of us." The nastiest sink of all time and the Irish spring that would never run out. He once threw a chair at jim for a completely logical reason. Knife toss game with greg...pain game with greg and fight club. road trip with Jim, who helped with all the driving he could. Worlds biggest big mac, worth it. Jims comment at the senior year dining out, hanging out at Shane11's house and mooching off everyone. I love the other 2 members of the tenacious trio. And yes Jim, Panda does want some Bambo.

Isaac Olson

"Now colleges from sea to sea - May sing of colors true, - But who has better right then we - To hoist a symbol hue? - For sailors brave in battle fair - Since fighting days of old, - Have proved a sailor's right to wear - The Navy Blue and Gold."

Jerson Peredo

Jerson, Most people can't pronounce his name so they call him Jason but I tell them it is like person but with a J and he has been my best friend for four years. We have gone from spending our Fridays nights dining in with Chinese on dirty Bancroft floors to sneaking out and doing the Superman in the car to DTA to Fado's. We have been through failures and tears on the couch to late night chats about boys. We are too much alike and spoil each other. Most people thought that through our four years we were a couple. We have shopped the entire East Coast and emptied our bank accounts. We have traveled all over North America missing only one Spring Break apart from each other. He is dark, I am light yet we make the perfect couple. I will always know that I have a shoulder to cry on no matter where in the world we both are and that I have a friend to laugh with when I do yet another dumb thing. Jerson you are my "person" and you always will be. Words will never be able to express the way I care about you and worry about you daily. Without you I wouldn't be able to set up my computer, take pictures, set up email accounts, watch movies, laugh, cry, shop, cook. So basically I couldn't live without you and never want to.

Amanda Reinert

Mama Reinert was a member of 28th Company Clubbers, and an oceanography major. She excelled in her major, having an internship at the Ice Center, going to an NCAR/UCAR conference, and being the CO of the Mighty Navy Warship USS YP-686 THE BEAST. Her hard work paid off, and she was selected for OceanOption. She service selected SWO-OceanO, and her first ship was USS FORREST SHERMAN DDG-98 out of Norfolk, VA. Her classmates claimed that she was nesting, and they were merely cocooning. She was like their mom away from mom. She loved to read (her desk didn't have text books on it, but rather stack upon stack of her "fun" books), dance, hunt, and scuba dive. She met her husband Jon Paiz in Chem II plebe year. They married two days after graduation.

James Terheyden

No matter how hard I try, I will never forget my time aboard the USS Bancroft Hall. This was 4 years of prison…Mr. Jengles, I hate Topher Bordo, Easiest plebe year ever…the starting of our happy family, the stonefaced father, the emotional mother, and the child in the middle, a ghost yougster, sharpening the sword…quitting crew, trip to texas, the hot tub incident, my favorite year…dark semester, team studs, the wedding with peanut, greeley's grinder, English was the right choice…The strongest steel is forged in the hottest furnace. I showed up a bright-eyed believer, and I left broken-spirited but not defeated. I won't forget the friend's I made (Who's runs Bartertown?), and I won't forget the times we had together.

Michael Ulmer

He is the face of America and a natural leader of men. He is known to some as 'Cha,' and to all others as the possessor of the largest eyebrows in North America. Frequently rocking a savage high and tight, this middie's motivation knew no bounds, even though he picked the wrong major. He escaped to lovely New London for a semester to hang with his identical (but better looking) twin bro, where I first saw his potential on the royals of Eagle. As he macked on the Cheer Squad honies, a bromance flourished between him and the shadiest crew of all time, Team X. (Happy Birthday Sergeant Lee!) Upon his return, he became embroiled in several illicit love affairs, but it seems that he finally got his act together at the end. (Hey Dre!) His battalion command and USMC leadership award will prepare him for the rigors of TBS, but not as much as the numerous weekends he spent in DTA, DC, Boston, and NY with his homeboys. We expect much from this one, and he won't disappoint. Ease the sheet, m'boy!

Andrew Vagley

The world shuttered a little when Andrew Carroll Vagley came into the world on July 22, 1984. Destined to kill everything that moves at home and abroad, Vagley trained in the hardwoods of Pennsylvania mowing down deer with his trusty assault rifle and shooting gloves. When he wasn't terrorizing wildlife, he was mowing down the town's women one at a time, or in Mexico...well... you know. Never one for feelings (perhaps even lacking a soul), Vags had his religious time once or twice a week in the company of a pair of 50 lb. dumbells...arm day. All jokes aside, Andrew is one of the most selfless, caring, compassionate, humble,warm-hearted souls ever to walk the halls of Bancroft where he kept his oath for 4 years....who am I kidding...Love you brother, Shoot straight.

Gregory Veteto

Greg grew up in the wonderful land of Texas, by way of conecticut. He has impeccable grace and is always considerate of others, specifically by allowing us all to join in the sunrise reading of the Bible at 0600 every morning. His taste in clothes can be described only as debonair, ranging from khaki shorts and 80s polos to khaki shorts and 80s polos, he truly is a man of the world. The General or Vetejoe, as many call him, will always be my brigade sergeant major. Even though his timing after rutgers games is right on to always catch the panda in her natural state. I love you bud and I'm sorry you had to see that.

Dianna Zempel

"Now colleges from sea to sea - May sing of colors true, - But who has better right then we - To hoist a symbol hue? - For sailors brave in battle fair - Since fighting days of old, - Have proved a sailor's right to wear - The Navy Blue and Gold."

Luz Alvarez

Lessons learned: Never try to keep up with a Mexican drinking margaritas. If Chief knocks on the door, jump in your rack and pretend to be asleep. Nick will never know it 2 vs. 1 in scrabble. Lucy loves Bobby–MLO. Dear Lucy Averez: I can't sleep.. are you asleep? Late nights in the room and tequila shots in Mexico–thanks for stealing everything in sight! I enjoyed watching you PT after nights in DTA–rah! Congrats on getting your eyes fixed so you can be my own little Blue Angel–SYC.

Arwyn Becker

From the moment she arrived at the Naval Academy, Arwyn hit the ground running: sometimes in circles around the track but mostly to EI in order to get "As" in classes she always "worried about failing." All the hard work paid off though- senior year Patriot League Champs NWXC, "The Hottest Team on the Yard;" a 3.59 GPA, who wears the Supt's Stars anyhow? And a strong performance at the track and field Patriot League championships to finish first in the league in the 3000m Steeple Chase. A model student and midshipman, Arwyn never broke any rules…? A chance meeting at the 8-2 mate's desk Weapons Detail, Summer 2006, hotel parties and awkward car rides. A natural leader in Plebe Summer Detail 2007… until she marched the platoon into a car. 4.0 and go senior year, hitting all the right notes with Sirens and the Women's GC (when she wasn't trying to strangle the "little one"), and outrunning the field- a great end to a great four years.

Schuyler Boone

A gentleman of punctilious courtesy and the nicest sense of personal honor – no words describe Schuyler better – except perhaps EPIC. Not only does this illustrious man of few, though complicated, words approach all of life with an energy that puts a flying squirrel to shame, but he also has a heart a mile wide. Skye has more pictures documenting life at the academy than any person in existence, as well as many videos of prodigious dunks and heroic lightsaber duels. A true intramural champion, he and his fellow twin tower from the inspiration station spent many hours dominating the less vertically fortunate on the basketball court. On the yard he could usually be found singing with his compatriots in the Men's Glee Club and the Protestant Choir or creating glorious music of his own on the chapel organ and the piano in Smoke Hall. Beyond the walls, he drove after sunsets and sought for the quiet countryside. Knowing Schuyler was always a life-changing experience. Keep it REGAL!

David Bundy

"Now colleges from sea to sea - May sing of colors true, - But who has better right then we - To hoist a symbol hue? - For sailors brave in battle fair - Since fighting days of old, - Have proved a sailor's right to wear - The Navy Blue and Gold."

Matthew Byington

Masterchief turned Midshipman, this grey bush has survived a long road of jaw surgeries and Vietnam. He excelled in school and earned the title Captain America. Older than his Company Officer, Plebe First Class Byington developed dynamic relationships with our trainers. Owing to his many reconstructive surgeries he's the oldest guy with the newest face in the Navy. Even with a bad back, Matt is always willing to bend over backwards for any of his friends. He served as a positive role model for many of his younger class mates and was always willing to serve as a mentor to those who he thought needed it. This is truly a man from the days when the ships were wood and the men were made of Iron. See ya out there Matty- B.

James

Cappabianca

CAPP "Aye, aye, Colonel B, Sir!" Not afraid to dominate his close friends, "Capp" enforced standards like it was the inquisition. A man of few words and many women, Capp truly took MidRegs to heart. Everybody loved this man who hailed from New Jersey's shining shores. Up at 0500, he washes his face and seizes the day, dominating every aspect of USNA's mission and serving as the model Marine-select midshipmen. Capp Strap is a sloppy mess of muscles, brains, and, most of all, sincerity. He cares about his friends and will do anything for them, including putting them on restriction. Semper Fi James, YUT!

Tyler

Coats

Ladies watch out, this is one book you shouldn't judge by its cover. Work hard play hard? But then how will I get my work done? Born with a silver spoon in his mouth, Tyler's excitement comes through at the blackjack table. Tyler was hardworking and diligent, but this never stopped him from having a good time. Quick to turn down women and compete against men, Tyler spent half his education in books and the other half on facebook. With superb intelligence and amazing athletic ability, there is nothing Tyler can't do (besides successfully converse with the opposite sex). Lucky for Tyler, most women loved him at first sight. "Was she worth it Tyler?"

Brandon

Cook

"So hoist our colors, hoist them high, and vow allegiance true, so long as sunset gilds the sky above the ocean blue, unlowered shall those colors be whatever fate they meet, so glorious in victory, triumphant in defeat."

Sara

Cousart

My little Marine: I will forever admire your OCD organizational skills and non pack rattiness. You and your sprained ankles– both of them! Remember to avoid getting hit by trees; avoid your weird sponsor brother, Easters and banana bread and ugly eggs. You will always be my cannoli buddy.--LMA

Ryan

Dozier

Lazy Dozier Boy… zzzzzz… Always hung out with his translucent friends second. Going submarines, Ryan had a keen interest in teaching his underclass in the many aspects of the MK- 48. An avid investor in X- Box games, big screen TV's, massive stereo equipment, and useless books. Dozier boy never actually invested in his text books or driving lessons. Let's be honest, he never needed text books anyway- even when giving EI to classmates. Dozier practices CPT when doing power points (he gotta get them grades). This sloth never let anything get in the way of sleep, even watch. Some may call him an angry black man, but we all know he is one of the most loving and truest of friends. Down periscope, Lazy Dozier Boy.

William DuBois

A Marine at this core; Bill idealized Colonel B. Every night, Bill tucks his undershirt into his underwear, climbs into bed, dons his spelunking gear, and dives into a fantasy novel. Bill stood for what he believed in and was never afraid to "axe" the tough questions before denying his platoon's chits. Slight in stature but high in moral fortitude, Bill has a penchant for librarians. A perfect day for Bill: 2 hours of PT starting at 5AM, at least two haircuts, three formations, some Zelda, some Matlab Simulink, and hopefully some drill. Besides his massive intellect, Bill was known for his combative prowess and athletic dominance. While playing baseball, most people assume that Bill is a switch hitter. He loves his friends and he loves his truck. Semper Fi Billy B, hoorah

Michael Enriquez

As a young boy, Michael emigrated from the distant shores of Virginia Beach, Virginia to join the ranks of the U.S. Navy. Despite the hardships of adapting to a new language and culture, Señor Enriquez excelled during Plebe Year, even going so far as to enforce shaving standards on upperclass standing watch. He has served in many leadership positions during his time at the Academy, not least of which were his tenure as personal chauffer and alarm clock to the chairman of ISITS. Mike also excelled in the arts, standing out as the tenor lead of the Rock Band Formerly Known as the Value Meals. However, he will be best remembered for his aunt's hospitality and for his remarking resemblance to his brother and father. Put the three in a room and it becomes clear to all who witness it that giggling is not simply an art form – it is a way of life.

Scott Felter

Sir, can I lead my classmates on the drill field? Request permission to fix my starboard shoe. Close your mouth Felter. But, but you're a youngster! This guy over here knows what I'm talking about. Check out this through-the-legs, 360, off-the-shot-clock dunk I just did with Vince Carter. Which nobody cannot deny... Nala. As the DEER! I like shoelaces, especially the multiple colored ones. You too. Fake! Hands! And the bucket! Quick, hide your food, Brian's coming. And go cultivate your wisdom. No but seriously folks, this guy here, he is GOOD. At school Scott dominated on the intramural basketball court (gorgeous move!) and amazed everyone with his unbelievable swing dance skills. Aside from being tall, and thereby awesome, Scott is a man of tremendous faith and intense passion. He loves the Lord, his family, his country, and his friends with all his heart; and his presence has been a continuous source of joy and inspiration to those blessed enough to share

Daniel Frary

Carl

Governale

From his fabled beginnings on the shores of Long Island, Carl came to USNA with a temper and legs three times bigger than yours. Irish? Italian? He was whatever the situation called for. A true renaissance man, Carl was an expert in the Conch, plastic flute, and underappreciated poetry. Never hesitating to find his own path, Carl even invented creative ways to conduct simple tasks, such as daily accountability, that were so efficient they landed him on restriction. In his free time, Carl enjoyed a variety of music while attending USNA that began with JC & the Sunshine Band before settling into finer Indian melodies. Although he possessed more "product" than any female in company, Carl was a Naval Academy tough guy who enjoyed competition and will always be remembered for his excursions. We'll all miss Carl for his great personality and endearing sense of humor.

John

Hesling

"Are those wings of Gold? I can't wait till I get mine." A true academic scholar, John was known for his diligent study habits and prominent chin. His two crowning accomplishments were becoming the King of the Nerds and Hollywood Shower Champion. John can do it all and seemed to walk on water at USNA. John was a true blue relationship man who never gave into the temptation of chin groupies. He's a great guy, a model midshipman, and a compassionate human being. But, like every hero, John has a weakness: his ankles. He never leaves home without his ankle braces. An avid picture taker, John helped friends remember those nights that they wish they didn't. In conclusion, "This is John and he is" ready for the fleet.

Sarah

Horn

Horny: We survived A/N week plebe year with our ingenious room alarm. I will never forget your John Kerry cookies, your mom's chili, or your dark and stormies. Our two category grading scale–lets confer with our list (perhaps CC is on it). You're always in my head!--LMA

Kimball

An avid collector of material goods, Adam never met an Ebay auction nor a high APR loan that he didn't like. It is obvious how much he cares for those whom he is close to and constantly demonstrates thoughtfulness and generosity. He would give you the shirt off his back, but he has ten I-Rod shirts he could offer you at a price. Full of ancient wisdom, he cultivated Gatorade bottle, webcam, and under the bleachers techniques. This internet playboy introduced the tent and black sock to the '08 and 007 scenes. Basically, he walked in straight from Oakland with the attention span of a goldfish and the ability to make everybody laugh.

Emily Knight

Emily Knight arrived on the scene ready to take charge and show the world what she was all about, especially when it comes to saying grace. Emily came to us from Smethport, PA, a wonderful town full of mules, garages and karaoke joints. Miss Kaniggit took no time meeting new people, like B and the other $^{2}/_{3}$ of the 3 Stooges. She soon took to traveling with her new friends and found herself riding in a limo from NYC to Canaan Valley with Louisa, Brigitta and many other great people including her Italian stallion. Upon arrival, Emily and her entourage watched many a great movie about epic battles and fairy tale creatures and then tried to see how many people could fit into one single bed. Her map knowledge was then tested and proved to be inadequate for the trip (hence the constant reliance on GPS) to the frozen tundra of the Captain's cul-de-sac. Emily will always be remembered for her indefatigable spirit, infallible wit and commitment to her friends, family, and values.

Anthony Kozycki

Between drinking and gambling Tony attended the Naval Academy. Tony can cook a mean burger and access hard to find videos like none other. W for winners to Quincy Markey to Googely eyes to AC to Vegas we had some amazing times. "John Anthony" - the million dollar man, with the million dollar plan! The Trinity, Black Label, Indian Hits, Taking every LSU on the table, our first Clemson 20, 20, 19, betting good songs, buy in for 400 at the LUXOR, Hard Rock Pent House, hitting the 26 and stacks of reds and hitting 1000 on the wheel but nothing can top Bottle service at a sold-out Pure with Paris Hilton VIP. After late night swimming in the shower, Tony managed to earn his degree. Tony was inspired by the Braves and Jimmy, but unfortunately they both sucked… "You're wrong." Tony is a walking party. He has the ability to bring a smile to anyone's face, even on the darkest of day of Dark Ages. He has always been a great friend and someone you can always count on to have your back. Thanks TK.

Kaitian Liu

An athletic specimen who spent four years on the JV random racquet sport team, Kevin absorbed his daily protein requirement by gnawing on leftover chicken bones ("I think there's still meat on those bones!"). What the hell's that smell from Kevin's fridge? It's spicy and it'll light his country music award on fire. As a natural diva, his plebe summer remix of the Marines' Hymn planted the seed that transformed him from a diehard submariner to a dieharder marine with 10-stripes and a religious Crossfit regimen. His roommates will never forget Kevin K's personal motivating High-n-Tights, especially the stray Asian hairs all over the shower. "Mongoria-fried-rice-BYE MA!-ping-pong-yin-yang." Who knows why this attempted-Rhodes Scholar turned down Oxford, but MIT is sure to be excited to have yet another Asian computer nerd. Here's a shot of Bailey's for you and your web-cam better half.

James Masterson

Here's to Jimbo, king of hibernation, and defender of overpriced denim. A patron of fine parlor games on the majestic banks of the Jersey shore, the seventeen times charismatic cruiser of the USS Victory Vader never missed a chance to ISITS. We have heard from far and wide of his impeccable taste in watches, but we wish he would stop showing them to us. He was always a classy dresser, but it would have done him well to wash the DUKE® once in a while instead of spending so much time getting ready to trick-or-treat. But, dude, how did he get his dinohead so Magically Smooth? Jim was someone you could always depend on to be at your side, passed out in the passenger seat or working out in MacD. He didn't really need protein, but he took it twice a day anyway. Or at least that's what she said...

Brian McKinney

Did you summon the warlock? Well, whatever suits your boat. Stacy's mom, anyone? False. Black bear. What's that from? 10:29 baby! Let me hear that war cry once more. Homework, what's that? I get a 4.0 in my sleep. King of the wardroom store, right here folks. Down with the unbreakable Trojans! Dude, Scott's stuff is everywhere! Loved the piano mornings in smoke hall, the Mansions of the Lord phone recording, and harmonizing to every song on the planet. A charter member of the inspiration station, Brian is a man of great intellect, profound dedication, and true faith. A veritable chemistry god, he went out of his way to help everyone he could, to share his knowledge, and to offer his wisdom. One of the elite few to be selected for the medical corps, Brian is excellence personified. For those whose lives he touched, Brian has continually shown his own personal integrity and genuine compassion.

Christopher Mozer

Mozer, Mozer, Mozer! The crowd goes wild, or maybe just Chris in the locker room. This beef cake was able to get out of anything without any concrete reason. In his free time, Chris decided to attend a few classes and enjoyed Hill climbing with Chris Tam. He equipped his ladies with squirt guns and walkers. Reaping the benefit of his girlfriend's social security checks, Chris hit the bars with authority. Finally, he was a prop for his fellow meat holes (here you go Matt!) on the Rugby team. No matter who it was, Chris was always willing to give his classmates a hand or a well placed pat on the back. A tough guy you wanted on your side, we valued Chris' friendship and down-to-earth attitude that kept everybody in prospective.

Courtney Natter

Listen... No, snort, snort, oink, oink, and a host of other unique noises filled the air anywhere within 10 nautical miles of Courtney. Courtney was affectionately considered "one of the boys," a title she never seemed to fully appreciate. A true Academy legacy, Courtney really knew how to shake it up. Courtney's immaturity knew no bounds and challenging her to any sort of food-fight or similar contest meant certain defeat owing to her massive retaliation and escalation policies. Her terror was not limited to USNA, driving through downtown Annapolis without regard for pedestrians or other vehicles, this Trick's offensive driving style and vocal decibels raised the terror alert to Amber. We'll never figure out how she never got kicked out of class because she wrote more on her classmate's arms than her own note sheets. Courtney's dynamic presence and caring friendship will always be valued and missed. Luckily, our sister will never be more than an ear shot away.

Erik Neidlinger

Hello, and welcome to Erikland where the windows are always open, regardless of blizzard temperatures. Do not disappoint, because he will remember it, and write it down. On the weekends when he can't party with Paris, the room becomes Club eRock, where he plays the best dance, pop, and techno (sadly the smoke machine never made an appearance). The Naval Academy's parking rules never seemed to apply to him–the same with making formations on time towards the end of firstie year. Erik always made the most money and yet somehow always had the most debt. On to favorite pastimes: Vegas, Belvedere, Breitlings, Black Label, Trinity, $36000, ACE, VIP... says it all. If only we could go back to the days when our refrigerator was covered with 100 dollar bills. Next time you see him, be sure to ask him to pull up his collage of "memories"... Always the team player, his efforts were tireless in trying to get his roommates out of the room and out in DTA.

Morgan Otto

Dear sister: We conquered the 10 m and San Antonio together! For your own good... please. My mussels and mimosa buddy, thank you for introducing me to avocados and minute rice. We made a dynamic detective duo firstie year! Don't forget to pump it and move along.--LMA

Egle Paskeviciute

P-A-S-K-E-V-I-C-I-U-T-E! "I'm from LITHAAANIA" "Hmm, sounds exotic, never heard of it. Where is that?!" "MUST MAKE BEEEDDD!" Eagle: so full of many lasting memories. You and those crutches! Crutching faster than everyone could chop, you are a complete disaster. "Scream, Scream, Scream, yell, yell, yell!!" "Umm- hey what did she just say?" "I don't know, just go faster." "Big explosion- Turkministan. Many dead- bad for war." "Hey, Morgan- is that what we read this morning!?" "No, just go with it, you know she has no idea what she's talking about." You definitely learned quickly, even if we had to force you to order out on the phone. Thanks for the many in room El sessions; I would absolutely have flunked out without you. We love you Eagle, even though you are one crazy Lithuanian.

LITTLE MISS SUNSHINE

James Price

"Now colleges from sea to sea - May sing of colors true, - But who has better right then we - To hoist a symbol hue? - For sailors brave in battle fair - Since fighting days of old, - Have proved a sailor's right to wear - The Navy Blue and Gold."

Jared Rodriguez

This thought to be Hawaiian native and surfer guy never forgot his real roots in the streets of Detroit–his true homeland. Jared is one of the truly culturally diverse people in 29th company. Even though he grew up in the hard streets of the 8 mile, Jared still has that laid-back aloha attitude while sporting an extreme bronze and idealizing the legend Bob Marley and Spicolli from Fast Times at Ridgemont High. What is there not to like about Jared? He is always there to give you a sarcastic and cynical response to anything you say; he truly is someone who puts a smile on your face though. Nicknamed "flower" and "thumper" for his extremely manly ways, Jared will truly be an inseparable part of the military. In all seriousness, besides him always being right, Jared is a true friend who will do anything for those he loves. He is always fun to be with and a great addition to a social setting. This boy was born for the water–in Detroit, and has SWO in his blood. SWO FO SHO shipmate.

Kent Solomonson

"So hoist our colors, hoist them high, and vow allegiance true, so long as sunset gilds the sky above the ocean blue, unlowered shall those colors be whatever fate they meet, so glorious in victory, triumphant in defeat."

Christopher Tam

"So hoist our colors, hoist them high, and vow allegiance true, so long as sunset gilds the sky above the ocean blue, unlowered shall those colors be whatever fate they meet, so glorious in victory, triumphant in defeat."

Richard Vagts

D-dddd-d-d-dd-ddd–ddick Vagts was best known for his detailed exploration of the anatomy during all available off periods, though this event was never actually witnessed by any others. When not hard at work studying electrical engineering, he was prone to falling asleep at odd moments and for copious amounts of time. Maybe all that sleep is what gave him the energy to absorb hours upon hours of adult swim cartoons and video gaming each day. Although his roommates always adored the simple charm and friendly nature of the Cumming, Georgia native, Dick's miraculous loss of over thirty pounds after summer training one year served to accentuate his boyishly bumpkish looks. How was such a simple man blessed with such generous gifts? In his own words... "I was born this way, sir."

Ault

Ward heard that authentic calling of service, which summoned him to lead warriors in sandy terrains. With the logic unique only to men from Arkansas, he rationalized that in order to effectively take charge of Marines in near-landlocked territories, our maritime academy would best make him a qualified ground officer. Beneath that stoic façade lies the heroic ideal: sound mind and body. Ward would always accompany a friend for a drink, if for nothing else but the antioxidants. If your own resolve cannot prevent you from that extra helping of dessert, his piercing gaze provides reason enough for healthy living. If anything can be said for Ward, he is that pocket-knife friend that we all need, where certain benefits go overlooked until that moment when you really need that bottle opener after all.

David
Bates

Affectionately known as "DJSB" or "Switzerland", Dave was the most physically dedicated and enjoyable guy around. He came to USNA with a simple aspiration: simply serve his country. Over his four years Dave turned in one of the most accomplished lightweight rowing careers in USNA history, captaining the team and leading them to a silver at IRAs his firstie season. Dave was known to get literally "hopping mad" and to get a tad emotional while creating online family picture albums. He was always ready to don the loafers and cuffs for a classy Sunday brunch ... drove the preppiest Saab wagon to ever grace the yard ... and he continually found himself in awkward romantic situations. The Corps is lucky to have this savage, but hairless beast. Dave will always be one of the "Three Bananas".

Breckenridge

Let it be known that Ryan P Breckenridge never had the true Academy experience like the rest of us. He was the man that the administration could not touch, and worse, he knew this fact. When it was time to grumble, he would be the first to laugh, even if it is at his own jokes. When we were caused to lament our missed real-college opportunities in brotherly fellowship at Pussers, he would sneer and find an establishment that "knows how to pour a glass of Beamish." He is a dabbler of anachronistic past-times. He would find better company with dead poets and a bowl of latakia tobacco. His car was known as the little civic carrying a 14-foot canoe, until one day in mysteriously disappeared. Rumor has it that his name is graffitied in the chapel dome only because he was dating the right kind of people. The man shows signs of being a legend. Not all the details about him are known in truthful detail, but what facts, which can be recalled, only testify to his rare authenticity.

Colley

Always running around with the constant energy of a robot from day 1, often with a hint of that USMC high and tight and an unbreakable charisma. Call him Charlie Brown, Scuba Steve, or a Vato, he will still remain faithful to friends, family, classmates, and company mates. Getting in trouble for watching movies at midnight, chilling at Brad's, nights at Pusser's, "climbing Everest" to the far corner of Mother B., or jumping the wall, Steve was always one of the guys through and through. Intramurals, Jujitsu, and boxing could only contain his curiosity for so long, before moving on to be Sherlock Holmes for the Honor System. Dedicating himself to the new Plebes or running all the investigations, his energy never ran short when pursuing that final "case closed." Most importantly his sincerity, dedication and integrity were always strong testaments of his character. Whether just in the halls of Bancroft or eventually in Afghanistan or Iraq, the Marines will be proud to have a strong willed individual.

Alexander George

Known as "Tucker" or "TK" to his friends, Tucker was known as one of the hardest hustlers to roam the halls of Mother B. Known for his painfully blunt candor and near perfect grades, TK was the best squash player to come out of the Academy in decades. He used his devilish charm to skip every mandatory function one can imagine… somehow managed to force the entire school to watch him earn All-American and was a rare member of the 2% club. Not a devoted DTA warrior, when TK did go out, he hit the bars with all the vigor he put into the rest of his life. "Posting-Up" at K-Fed, "Memphis" "Margarita Ville" and of course his NAFAC fiasco will go down in DTA infamy. Tucker is off for the Corps after Egypt and Grad School but we have a feeling he is destined for the Hill one day. Tucker is a proud member the "Three Bananas".

Ian Gill

Bearing? He never heard of it. Under the radar or not under the radar? The comfort of a long-standing relationship to the fun and freedom as a bachelor. Too cheap to go out to eat, the 'Jew' probably ate more meals in King Hall than anyone else. Not to mention the endless hours spent in the building so aptly named for Admiral Rickover. Infamous 2/C weekend out in St. Michaels made for many great memories. Life as a NADSter became more or less full-time, training crews. Sailing with the 'Soft'shore Sailing Team became an annual recurrence and made the unusual step from Farr 49, to a Farr 40, to a Navy 44, should I say armored tank. Losing the wheel in 25 knots, pea soup fog and directly in the path of the Pt. Judith Ferry…Chock it up to experience. Fair wind and following seas 4/C Allen, El Capitan!

Brigitte Klene

Brigitte embodies excellence in all her endeavors. This San Diego native's athleticism is evident as she logs mile after mile training for a marathon and scales gates "like a spider monkey". Her academic career is marked with achievement. Always humble, Brigitte had to be reminded that she "was an honors math major, too." This "dark haired exotic one" was frequently seen solving "lemmas" and curing "corollaries" as a tutor to anyone who needed help. Always empathetic, she gives back to the community through programs such as Big Brother-Big Sister and the tennis court power puking watch. She delicately balanced her responsibilities on battalion and honor staff with her social life. From summer cadre sail boats to riding horses down the beach and from hiking through mountain snow to building houses in Nicaragua, life with Brigitte is always an adventure. The Nuclear Surface community is lucky to have her. Reactor core!

Jason Matta

Affectionately known as "Lunch Box", "Mon-Man", and "Pukey-Face" to those close to him … JT started his career poised for greatness: running Varsity X-Country, indoor and outdoor track and as a loyal observer of the systems engineering department. For three years he was either running the trails or working the graph paper. But as the light at the end of his USNA career loomed, JT turned in one of the most illustrious firstie years of his generation. As his love affair from NH disintegrated, his work ethic was channeled into a consuming desire to become the ultimate DTA warrior … once showing a date his "robot" … and known to literally sprint down the cobble stone streets in a state of pure exuberance, JT did it all. Don't know if he would have passed a Rickover interview, but the Sub community is lucky to have him. A truly hysterical and loyal friend, JT will always be one of the "Three Bananas".

Miller

The Book of Jasonisms, defines who Jason Robert Miller really is: "Who is dumber, the dumb person or the people that live with the dumb person?" (Probably the people that live with him) "My better is better than your better." These are just two "pg" examples of things that were created in Jason's head, but there are many more. Jason's firstie year can be summarized into a few categories, driving his car into a gas pump, spending countless hours in the library doing who knows what, trying to forget his past girlfriend, you know who I'm talking about, eating protein, running the party platoon, and trying to solve the world's problems one dip at a time. Jason lived in the party corner and provided everyone with unlimited entertainment and amusement as well as unforgettable memories. Jason is truly one of kind and the Naval Academy will never see another person quite like him, and that's probably a good thing. Have fun doing the Marine Corp's head gouge Jason! Yeaaaaaaa...

Mark, mawk, HOT DOG....you have come a long way trooper. I can attribute your success to my leadership endeavors and teachings. You would not have turned out to be the man you are today if you hadn't come across me...your role model. From the day I set eyes on you and you did the "hot dawg" song, I knew we were meant to be. Not that you are going to be a crash test sunny in Pensacola, I will miss our pillow talking nights, snuggling, and random beatings with the bat. And who could forget: the cherry picker. Smeagle, you will be missed but your running limp, crooked face, greasy body and personality will be immortalized in our hearts and minds forever....NO HOMO! Let me axe you a question? Mark how did you screw things up with your ring dance date? Keep your chin up Mark! What chin? And yes, Jason is prettier than you, but I still think you would be gentler. And lets not forget about the infamous rectangle. The legend will always continue...of Mark Montaruli!

Good LUCK!!!

Robert, Rob, Cuban Bob- The future of Cuba, I mean America, is now in your hands. Where would we be today without your insatiable gaming antics, D.I. extravaganzas and drunken nights that will remain only in the darkest recesses of our brains? Hot nurses are on the docket, too. Rob was always the ideal midshipman, eating crab pretzels at Davis's Pub, drinking Dark and Stormy's at the Boatyard, developing "Jasonisms" with Mark, going balls deep in squash, and occasionally missing every parade. As a 4 year member of the Intercollegiate Sailing Team he has made a tremendous contribution through his sailing abilities and use of the goat- GO N.A.D.S. Sloop Champ's 2007-08 and J24's in Rio. Let's not forget the 8-4 party corner. Last thoughts, Atlantic City, representing Polaris in Newps and NYC, Texas Hold 'em nights on 8-3, the Indian Reservation cop after shark hunting, Schmitty at Riordans, craving Magner's , Hey Mambo, and of course, how long have you been a YN2? SWO-tivation awaits!

Shawn Stolsig

Shawn Stolsig is a man that needs no introduction. Since days of plebe summer he has stood out as a stalwart friend. Always willing to help out, except of course when one of his roommates is an idiot and continually is late and bleeds all over the place...we know who I am talking about. From an amazing lead guitarist in High Five Hiatus to being a much more reserved classical guitarist around his roommates and even sometimes a rising drummer, his musical talents knew few bounds. Peru was a kick, traveling through rugged mountains with his roommates is something I am sure he will always treasure, as well as eating poor little fluffy while toasting him with a liter-o-cola. Now a days the man can be found riding across the country, like the days of lone rider, except not as hippy and picking up way more girls. May his rides be sweet and many.

Carly Towers

Lumpy, my favorite Mormon prior enlisted (I still can't believe you're not either one of those), runs marathons on broken legs and drives "practical" (old fogey) cars. She served as 2nd Regimental Commander because she has the most powerful set of lungs of anyone in existence. Vietnamese laundry, WSS polar plunges, and the slippery slope are nothing as she bends the world to her will. And then she goes back for another helping of gelato. This kid doesn't have hobbies, she chooses crusades; "lukewarm" is not in her extensive vocabulary. The focused attitude often leaves Carly susceptible to my merciless heckling (Stomp on those Supe stars Ma'am, Miss Towers, Ma'am), but her friendship has made my years here worthwhile. Her amazing drive and sense of honor will ensure she is a successful officer and the epitome of "Marine" for the duration of her life. Twenty bucks says this bio will probably be read at a Distinguished Grad ceremony years from now. 'Til then, TBS ticks standby. -fuzzy

Raleigh Worcester

Where to begin? Easy answer. San Diego 2005: The birthplace of the legend of "The Wooster.". Five days of pure, good clean debauchery. Turning 21 youngster year was a life saver. Ram's Head, Georgetown, Caroline's: all places that Raleigh frequented and left his mark on. And who can forget the infamous Mackenzee Pierce? Well done, Raleigh, well done. "The Wooster" is truly the envy of every American male between the age of 15 and 30. Raleigh was also a frequenter of the legendary Armadillos where he could be found rocking out to the live band every Friday and Saturday night. His goal was to eventually rock 'dillos with his own band, FBJP. Sadly, the band never came to fruition for this guitar shredder, though its spirit still lives on. The final stanza of his exemplary midshipman's career was "The Great Escape," which magnified Raleigh's impeccable character and loyalty. Miles and miles deep in deliverance country, with all hope lost, he aided his friend in an escape for the history books, preventing a mistake of irreversible consequences. EPIC. I owe you one, Bud.

You have always been to us a source of love, happiness and inspiration.
You've made us so proud of the work you've done, the choices you've made, and the goals you've set for yourself and others, and the woman you've become.
As you go on into the world may you find the same come back to you.
May your dreams become reality, and your reality a dream come true.
And may the Lord bless you and keep you in the palm of His hand.

My father stood watch.

He stood the watch for thirty years,
He stood the watch so that we, our families,
And our fellow countrymen could sleep soundly in safety,
Each and every night,
Knowing that my father stood the watch.

Today we are here to say
"Father, the watch stands relieved.
Relieved by those you have trained, guided, and lead.
Father, you stand relieved: your son has the watch."

"You know a dream is like a river, ever changin' as it flows, and a dreamer's just a vessel that must follow where it goes. Trying to learn from what's behind you and never knowing what's in store, makes each day a constant battle just to stay between the shores. So don't you sit upon the shoreline and say you are satisfied; choose to chance the rapids and dare to dance that tide."

Your entire family and friends could not be more proud of you and the man that you are. As you face the next part of your journey, know that we all believe in you and love you.

Remember Copake Lake is home! Family, lifetime friends and great times always await you there! Thank you for serving your country and taking us along on your amazing journey. It's been awesome!

With quiet confidence and professionalism you have achieved excellence without arrogance. Your admirable strength of character in every challenging leadership opportunity has prepared you to lead and serve our nation. Unwavering faith has been your guiding force as you tirelessly persevered to make that which was wrong, right. Through four arduous years "by the bay" you experienced elation, frustration, deep sadness, humble satisfaction and contentment while always maintaining a heart of compassion for others. As you go forth to new and exciting horizons in your future, know that you are revered by your family and friends, and above all else, know how very much you are loved.

DELIBERATION. DISCERNMENT. POWER. TACT. Effective diplomacy requires all of these qualities. The United States Navy's next class of aircraft carriers, The Ford Class, has these traits and more. The first ship of the class, Gerald R. Ford (CVN 78), is already under construction, and well on its way to becoming reality. # Colophon

Publication of the 2008 Lucky Bag was completed by Taylor Publishing Company, in Dallas, Texas. Our local Taylor Publishing representative is Julia Jordan, and our Dallas-based account executive is Angela Holt. Freelance yearbook designer, Nicole Hammond, was hired by Taylor to complete layout and design of the book after the staff graduated. Julia and Nicole spent countless hours with the staff, and in the Lucky Bag office, organizing and cataloging items needed for completion of the Opening, Academic, Brigade and Ad sections of the book. TAD Ensign Brooks Rogers spent the majority of his time between graduation and flight school, locked in the Lucky Bag office gathering information, writing stories and coordinating efforts between the staff and Taylor Publishing to complete the edition.

The book had a press run of 4510 copies and each copy held 720 pages. The paper used for the pages was 100# dull enamel. The 23 32-page signatures were bound using Smyth-sewn binding. The pages were printed using four-color process printing.

Throughout the book, Mariposa Std. was used in varying sizes and densities for body, caption and headline copy.

Wherever possible, photo credits are given at the end of the caption, and copyright belongs to the individual photographers. Nearly all candid photos were taken by midshipmen on the yearbook staff. A few were contributed by outside sources or midshipmen not on the yearbook staff. Formal portraits were taken by Davor Photography of Bensalem, Pennsylvania. Jim Rainey is our Davor representative. Formal portraits of members of the chain of command were obtained from respective members, their staffs, or publicly accessible sources, such as web sites. Steven Williams of Thecoverartist.com, designed the book's cover.

Nikon photography equipment was used by the staff. This equipment included several Nikon D70 and D2X camera bodies; Nikkor lenses of varying focal lengths: 12-24 mm, 17-35mm, 17-55mm, 20mm, 35-70mm, 80-200mm, 70-200mm, 300mm, 200-400mm and 400mm. All lenses, except the 200-400mm, had a maximum aperture of f/2.8.

All pages were created using Adobe Indesign CS2. Adobe Photoshop was used to enhance resolution, contrast or color on a select number of photos. All programs used to create the Lucky Bag were run on Macintosh computers. Workstations included Power Mac G5's, iMacs, Mac mini and a Macbook Pro. All common files were shared via an Apple G4 Xserve server. Macintosh OS X was the operating system used.

The views expressed in this publication are those of the yearbook staff and do not reflect the official policy or position of the United States Naval Academy, United States Navy, Department of Defense, or the United States Government.

First things first, I had very little to do with this book. I'm not sure how I ended up in charge of one of the largest full-color books in the country but there are a few people who need to be thanked for the hours of work completed on this edition, before I ever stepped into the Lucky Bag office. (Now Ensign) Marta Drew was this yearbook's editor through the academic year. She was able to direct her yearbook staff all around the yard, and across the country, to snap pictures of Midshipmen competing in sporting events, completing milestones, and living their day-to-day lives. They took those pictures up to the catacombs and spent hours writing articles and finding just the right layout to reflect each club and event. Their goal was to create something, which decades from now, would take you back to that moment in your Academy life. I think they did a great job.

I did not have any involvement in the Lucky Bag until after graduation. After basket leave, four of us lowly Ensigns were tasked with finishing the book before flight school. Ensigns Charlie Miller, Sarah Andrews, and Marta Drew helped me learn the software and all the different tasks that must be completed before a page can be sent to the publisher; thanks guys. I can tell you that the greatest challenge was getting information for all the clubs and events that we were not able to send staff to, due to some awesome rules regarding ECAs this year. For those of you still at the Academy: please make an effort to help your Lucky Bag staff by submitting your favorite pictures each year to yearbook@usna.edu. You will be surprised to see how many of those pictures will make it into the book. If you had something significant happen on your team, let them know! Take a look at the Men's Hockey spread for an example of what is possible when people from a team or club get involved in their Lucky Bag spread.

I also want to thank Nicole Hammond and Julia Jordan who work on behalf of our publisher. Nicole touched almost every page on this year's Lucky Bag and is responsible for how organized and beautifully coordinated it all came together. Julia must be commended for dealing with my severe lack of yearbook knowledge and keeping on me to get this book done before 2010. Of course we could not have gotten anywhere on this book without the entire Lucky Bag staff and I would like to thank you all for your dedication to giving back to your shipmates through these books. To the 2009 Lucky Bag editors, Midshipmen Taylor Couch and Amy Gibson, I wish you luck and I hope we were able to minimize your hurdles enough so that you can focus your efforts on creating an amazing book this next year.

Finally, I would like to thank my classmates. The United States Naval Academy Class of 2008 has been such an important part of my life. I have learned far less from boot camps, NAPS, chemistry class, and club sports than I have learned from my classmates over these last 5 years. I have always said the best part of the Navy is the people you meet and during my time at the Academy I developed lifelong friendships with some of the most amazing people I have ever met: men and women who joined the military post 9/11, who could hardly wait to put their lives on the line in some of the most dangerous work in the world. Y'all are the best; I hope this Lucky Bag is up to your expectations and that it will find you safe wherever you are in the world.

Ensign Brooks M. Rogers, USN
Post-Graduation Lucky Bag Editor
